THE EDITOR'S PREFACE.

THE Selections now printed for the Members of the Spalding Club, from the Records of the Kirk Session, Presbytery, and Synod of Aberdeen, range over a period commencing immediately after the Reformation, and coming down almost to the Revolution of 1688. During that time, many and great changes occurred in the civil and ecclesiastical constitution of the country, which necessarily exercised a powerful effect in modifying or altering the principles and habits of the mass of society.

Of these changes and their effects notices more or less minute will be found in the present volume. The earliest part of it contains the regulations and ordinances issued by the authorities of the Reformed Church for carrying the newly-established system into practical effect in Aberdeen. Many of these refer to customs and superstitions which appear to have withstood, for many years, the assaults directed against them, and to have remained in occasional use by the people, after the ancient faith had been pretty generally relinquished by them.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The apparent harmony with which the new system was established in Aberdeen, has been alluded to in the "Extracts from the Burgh Records of Aberdeen," pref., p. xxxii. An ordinance, however, in the present volume, "that na disputatioun nor reasoning of the scripturis be at dennar, or supper, or oppin table, quarthrow arrysis gryte contentioun and debate," (p. 10), gives us a glimpse of the heat and kecnness which must have attended the arguments of those who took different views of the great changes then introduced. The feelings of reverence with which the people had been in use to regard things devoted to sacred purposes, seem to have been much diminished at the time of the Refor-

Some of the sports and pastimes in which the younger part of the inhabitants had been in use to indulge were clung to with a particular tenacity, and required repeated efforts to put them down. Of these we may refer to the midnight revels and promiscuous dancings, on the streets, of the young men and women of the town, about the time of Christmas and New Year's even, against which practice the following, among other ordinances, occurs:—"That na man nar woman in this burght, about the superstitious tyme of Yuill or Newyeris day, or ony vther superstitious tyme, sall presume to mask or disagyse thame selffis in ony sort the men in wemennis claythis, nor the wemen in mennis claythis, nor vtherwayes, be dansing with bellis, ather on the streittis of this burt or in privat houss, in ony tyme comming; bot expresslie prohibbitis and forbiddis all sic superstitious formes of behaviour in tyme cumming, vnder the pane to be puneist in repentance and penaltie at the appoyntment of the session."<sup>1</sup>

The superstition of kindling fires on Midsummer even, of which the precise origin seems to be doubtful, was common over the whole country; and in 1608 it will be found that several inhabitants of Aberdeen, of considerable standing and influence, still persisted in the use of this custom.<sup>2</sup>

Pilgrimages to wells and places sacred in the estimation of the people were very common, and required frequent interpositions, as well of Parliament as of the Church Courts, against them.

The well of Saint Fithac, in the Bay of Nigg, was one of these nation, as we have seen that the "whole silver wark, brasin wark, kaippis, and ornaments of thair paroch kirk," used in divine service, were sold to the highest offerer, without any apparent scruple (Burgh Records, p. 329); and, in the present volume, the following notice, among others, indicates the breaking up of old feelings of this sort: "It is ordered that the organis, with all expeditioun, be removit out of the kirk, maid profit of to the vse and support of the pure; and that the preistis stallis and bakkis of altaris be removit furth of the places quhair thai now remane, and situat in the partis of the kirk quhair men may be best easit be thame to heir the sermones," (p. 19).

places of resort ; and, from its tempting vicinity to Aberdeen, was frequently the means of inducing the citizens to break through the many ordinances issued against those who resorted to it.

In 1630, “ Margrat Davidson, spous of Andro Adam, wes adjudget in ane wnlaw of fyve pundis, to be payed to the collector for directing hir nwrish with hir bairne to Sanct Fiackes well, and washing the bairne thairin for recoverie of hir health, and the said Margrat and hir nwrish wer ordanit to acknowledge thair offence before the session for thair fault, and for leaving ane offering in the well.”<sup>1</sup>

In 1652, the Synod gave injunctions to the Presbytery of Turriff, that they should take special notice of all superstitious persons frequenting the Well of Seggat. The following Act of Parliament, passed in November, 1581, “ Aganis passing to chapellis, wellis, and croces, and the superstitious obseruing of diuerss uther papisticall rytes,” notices most of the prevailing superstitions of this kind :

Forsamekill, as pairt for want of doctrine and raritie of ministeris, and pairtie throw the peruers inclinatioun of mannis ingyne to superstitioun, the dregges of idolatrie yit remanis in diuers pairtis of the realme, be vsing of pilgramage to sum chapellis, wellis, croces, and sic vther monumentis of idolatrie ; as also, be obseruing of the festuall dayis of the santes, sumtyme namit their patronis, in setting furth of bain fyris, singing of caroles within and about kirkis at certane seasones of the yeir, and obseruing of sic vtheris superstitious and papisticall rytes, to the dishonore of God, contempt of the trew religioun, and fostering of greit erreure among the peopill : ffor remeid quhairof, it is statut and ordanit be oure souerane lord, with aduice of his thre estatis in this present parliament, that nane of his hines lieges presume or tak vpoun hand in tyme cuming to lant, frequent, or vse the saidis pilgramages, or vtheris the foirnamit superstitious and papisticall rytis, vnder the panis following, videlicet : ilk gentill man or woman landit, or wyfe of the gentilman landit, ane hundreth pundis ; the vnlandit, ane hundreth merkis, and the yeman, fourtie pundis, for the first falt ; and, for the secund falt, the offenderis to suffer the pane of deith as idolateris. The Church found it necessary to pass a similar enactment against such superstitions in 1616.<sup>2</sup>

The many injunctions which occur at an early period about swearing, show that this vice was very prevalent. With the view of repressing it, it was ordained that, in "euere honest mannis or vomanis house, thair be tane up of euere swerar quhow off the samin chance quhilk is potent to pay silver, for euere falt ane hardhied,"<sup>3</sup> and any person who might be heard swearing on the street, was to be "scharplie punished with a palmer on the hand."<sup>4</sup> The following Act of Parliament, dated 29th November, 1581, imposing penalties on those who were guilty of this vice, would lead us

It appears to have been a difficult matter to root out various practices which led to the desecration of Sunday. At first the prohibition against craftsmen and labourers performing work on this day, was limited to "the tyme of prayers and preaching." "All persons duelling in this toun, gangand in the gaitt, or playing in the lynks, or vther places, the time of preaching or prayaris on the Sone-day,"<sup>1</sup> were to be fined; but gradually the rule grew stricter, and we find "the wyff of James Banerman, for working on the Sabboth-day, vnlawit in sex sh. aucht d.; and it wes ordained that na baxters within this burt work nor baik any bakin meatt in tyme cuming on the Sabboth-day,"<sup>2</sup> under a penalty. Persons absent from sermon were fined 3s. 4d. Two of the Bailies were ordered to "pas throw the towne everie Sabboth-day, and nott sic as thay find absent fra the sermones, ather afoir or efter none."<sup>3</sup>

It was more than usually difficult to put down a market which was held on Sunday for the sale of "flesche, fishe, peattis, grass, kail, and herbs." A slight relaxation was permitted to those who sold kail and herbs, it being allowable to deal in these after four o'clock afternoon on Sundays; but all the other commodities found in the market were to be escheited.<sup>4</sup>

Salmon fishing was carried on to a considerable extent on Sundays, and many of the proprietors of fishings refused to relinquish this practice, some of whom, "preferring, as apperis, thair greid and avarice to the glorie and worschip of God, hawe continewit and persistit hitherto in working and fisching of thair watteris on the Saboth day, to the heich dishonour of God, the manifest contempt of his law, and sclander of the gospell." Some promised to forbear from this practice absolutely, some "gif thair nichtbours will forbear," and some refused to abandon it.<sup>5</sup>

By and bye, the Bailies are enjoined to go through the town on the preaching days in the week, as well as on Sundays, "to caus the people resort to the sermones;" and Jean Barclay was "sharplie admonishit be the moderatour, in name of the Session, for goeing to the old tounne [Old Aberdeen] on the Lord's day betuixt sermones."<sup>1</sup> At a visitation of the Kirk of Kintore, in 1599, it is enacted, "That thair be na play Sondayes heirefter, onder all hiast pain that efter may follow."<sup>2</sup> This strictness continued throughout, and under the various systems which succeeded each other. After the Restoration, it was "ordained by the Lord Bishope, with consent of the brethreine of the Synod, that the Lord's day be exactly kepted, and that all attend the hearing and reading of the word before sermone, and that none depart from the church befor the pronouncing of the blessing; and that visitors be appoynted by the minister, throw the severall partis of the parochin, for visiting tavernis and ail-houses, that ther be no excessive drinking, nor that the people continew tipling in these places; bot that, with all diligence, they repair to ther awin homes for going about ther severall familie dueties, sutable to the holynes of the day; and that ther be no bargaining, buying, selling, feeing of servands, or any uther secular effearis gone about one the Lordis day."<sup>3</sup> Those who were found travelling on the Lord's day were to be censured by their respective ministers; and one of the articles for which a country yeoman had to do penance was the "scandelous rydeing by the kirk styll of Towie, his owne parochie kirk, upon the second of Februarii last, being also the Lord's day, when the people wer conveeneing to sermone, quhairthrow he wes at no sermon that day."<sup>4</sup>

Notwithstanding, however, of every precaution, there seems to have been a continual resistance on the part of the people to this strictness. In 1680, we find representations made, "how much the Lords day is evrie where profained by drinking, travelling to mercats, feeing of servants, and making other bargains and contracts;" and the ministers were recommended to "testife against these abuses, by preaching publicly against them."<sup>5</sup> of witchcraft and charming. The singularly curious trials for witchcraft<sup>1</sup> which took place at Aberdeen in the year 1597, and which were printed in the First Volume of The Miscellany of the Spalding Club, afford conspicuous evidence of the intensity of the popular belief in the existence of this crime, and of their terror at its supposed results. In the year 1597, not fewer than twenty-four victims were burned, in Aberdeen, as being guilty of the crime of witchcraft; and, during the time when the frantic feelings on this subject prevailed, very slight indications and suspicions were sufficient to bring down the arm of the Royal Commissioners appointed to "hauld justice courtis on witches and sorceraris." The violence of this popular disease seems to have shortened its duration; and it is curious to trace, in various entries which occur in the first part of the present volume, the great change in popular feeling which had occurred within seven years of the period when it raged with a fury so fatal to those who were accused of it.

In 1604, we find that Helen Cassie had accused Helen Gib of certain very suspicious deeds, viz. :—"That, on the Tuysday or Fryday befor Bartholl day, in the yeir of God, jai sex hundreth and thrie yeirs, the said Helene Gib past to the spout of the Nather Milne of this burt, and thair, with ane chopin stoup, keapit thrie sindrie droppis of watter out of the spout, and, immediatlie thairefter, past to the fluid besyd the Trinitie kirkyard with ane chopin stoup, and fillit the same full of the fluid watter, and tuke baith the milne spout watter and the fluid watter, and keist the same immediatlie thairefter in the first caldroun amang hir burne, and then maskit hir fatt and weische hir standis and bowyes, and tuik the waschinis thairof and watterit the four nukis of hir hous with it; and quhen scho kuist in the spaitter and the fluid watter in the caldroun, scho said thir words, This is deid and quick tuyis or thryis, and immediatlie thairefter scho tuke ane grene dog hillok and laid the ane half thairof aboue the dur, and tuke the vther half and put it vnder the gantries."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Of these trials a very ingenious use has been made by Mr. Charles Knight in his Life of Shakspeare, in the chapter which he has devoted to the enquiry, Did Shakspeare visit Scotland? The conclusion there arrived at is that Shakspeare probably formed one of "the Kingis seruandis quha playis comedeis and staige playis," and who visited Aberdeen in October, 1601; that the story of Macbeth might have been suggested to Shakspeare upon Scottish ground; that the accuracy displayed in the local descriptions and allusions might have been derived from a rapid personal observation, and that some of the peculiarities of his witchcraft unagery might have been formed in Scottish superstitions, and more especially those which must have been rife at Aberdeen at the period when the Trials in question took place, a few years previous to the period of Shakspeare's supposed visit.—William Shakspeare. a Biography; p. 431, et seq. Lond. 1843.

An accusation such as this, if it had been mooted at the period when the fears of the Royal Commissioners and their master were at their height, would have certainly resulted in a conclusion very different from that which now happened. It is probable that Helen Cassie had selected this as a mode of carrying out her ill-will against her neighbour, in the expectation that more attention would have been paid to her tale: and, indeed, some of the former trials appear to have sprung from feelings of the same sort. But so much had the public taste for such trials been sated by the victims already offered, that Helen Cassie's tale was scouted on account of its want of evidence; and she was ordained "to sitt down on hir kneis in presence of the sessioun, and thair crawe God pardon for hir sclander forsaid vtterit be hir aganis the said Helene Gib, and to crawe hir forgiwens in lyk maner for the same, and to grant scho knawis nothing of hir, bot that scho is ane honest woman."

In 1607, James Mar said of Andro Paull that he was "ane commoun witche, and cum of witchis, and not worthie to remane in ane civill tonne," and was punished as a slanderer.<sup>2</sup>

In 1610, Marjorie Mearns was similarly punished for saying that she would prove Margaret Mason to be "ane witche, and for spitting thryis in her face, and casting fyir:"<sup>3</sup> and other similar cases occur in the volume.

When the belief in witchcraft became so weak that ill-natured accusations against individuals were found to lead to no trial or other cruelties, these accusations seem to have been dropped, and consequently witchcraft was forgotten. The mania afterwards got strength about the period of the Restoration, when many women again were committed to the flames for their supposed guilt of this crime. About the time, however, when the disease was at its height in Aberdeen, the belief in it pervaded all ranks. The parish of Skene seems to have been afflicted with a number of witches, as, in 1602, a roll of them was ordered to be made up and transmitted to the Marquis of Huntly, "that the land may be purgit of sic instrumentis of the dewill;"<sup>1</sup> and in the ensuing year the Marquis desires the Presbytery "to tak tryell of the wiches, and consularis wiith thame, and to send to his lordship the delatioun, with the names of sic as ar maist meitt to pass upoune the assyse and tryell of thame."<sup>2</sup>

The belief in supernatural visitations occasionally shewed itself in a shape more grotesque. In 1601, an inhabitant of the parish of Dyce, was cited before the Presbytery of Aberdeen to answer an accusation brought against him, that he had "familiaritie of a spirite." On examination, it turned out, that about twenty-seven years previous to this time, "ther cam to his dur a spirit, and callit upone him, 'Wattie, Wattie,' and this wes in the barley seid tyme, and thairfra removit, and thair-eftr came averie yeir twa tymes sen syne, bot saw na thing, bot harde a voce, as said is." On one of these occasions, when the accused was in bed sleeping, "it satt down anent the bed upoune a kist, and callit upone him, saying, 'Wattie, Wattie,' and then he wakyunit, and saw the forme of it, quhilk wes lyke ane lilit bodie, haiffing a scheavin berd, cled in quhyt lening, lyk a sark; and it sed to the said Walter, 'thou art under wraik, gang to the weachmanis hous in Stanivoid, and thair thou sall find baith siluer and gold with weschell.'” Walter and some of his neighbours proceeded with “spadis” to the spot thus pointed out, and made the proper search, but, as might have been anticipated, they “fand nothing.”<sup>1</sup>

In 1659, the Synod recommended all ministers to speak against “charming, heathenish customes in cutting of thee heades of beasts, and carieing off them from one lairds lands to another.”<sup>2</sup> In 1663, we find two “charmners” punished. In 1665, James Smyth is accused “for using enchantment by casting of the knottis at mariages;”<sup>3</sup> and, in 1675, there are complaints made, “that some, under pretence of trances, or familiaritie with spirits, by goeing with these spirits commonlie called the fairies, hath spoken reproachfully of some persones, whair of some are dead and some living.”<sup>4</sup>

As illustrative of the tone of thinking of particular times, we may notice the great terror created by an earthquake which occurred in Aberdeen in 1608. “The Ministris and Sessioun convening in the Sessioun hous, considdering the fearfull earthquak that wes yisternicht, the aucht of this instant, throughout this hail cite about nyne houris at evin, to be a document that God is angrie aganes the land, and aganes this cite in particular, for the manifold sinnis of the people,” appointed a solemn fast and humiliation of the whole inhabitants, and enjoined them to renew the covenant with God, “be haulding up of their handis all publictly before God in his sanctuarie, and promising, be his grace, to forbear in tyme cuming from thair sinnis that hes procurit Goddis wraith and anger aganes thame.”<sup>5</sup>

About two years afterwards, a fast was appointed to be held on account of “the visitatioun of the young childrene with the plague of the poeks” and the wet season.<sup>6</sup>

In the spring of 1615, a solemn fast and humiliation was appointed to be held, “for sindrie weghtie caussis, and namely in respect of this present uncouth storme of frost and snaw, quhilk hes continewit sa lang that the bestiall ar dieing thik fauld ;” and a national fast was held in the ensuing month, “be reason of the great number of Jesuits and seminarie preistis come within this yll, and dispersit throw all the corneris thair of, pressing be all meanis possible to subvert the trew religioun.”<sup>1</sup>

A pretty minute detail of the various punishments inflicted on transgressors at various periods will be formed. Besides being occasionally “put in the kirk wolt,” and being “doukit at the cran,” the frail female penitents had to sit on the “pillar of repentance” before the congregation. A natural feeling of shame induced them to cover their faces with their plaids; but, as this prevented the necessary exposure, a special ordinance was passed to prevent such an occurrence in future, on the ground that “in times past the greater number had come having thair playdis about thair heid, cumming doun over thair faces the hail tyme of thair sitting on the stuill, so that almost nane of the congregatioun culd sie thair faces, or know quhat thay wer, quhairby thay maid na account of thair cumming to the stuill, bot misregardit the same altogidder.”<sup>2</sup> A recurrence to the use of the plaids, about forty years after this time, drew out another ordinance of the Session, to the effect that all who sat on the public place of repentance should “sit and thair face towards the congregation, without any plaid about them, bot thair discovered; quhairin, if they failzie and doe in the contrair, the Minister noways to absolve nor speak any to them till thay appear the next day.”<sup>3</sup> That such a system would often fail in producing the desired effect is readily to be believed. James Riach, who had been sentenced to undergo this ordeal, and who seems to have been desirous of giving at least some outward tokens of grief, was found to “mack ane moke of repentance, by putting in of sneishen in his eyes to make them tear, and by laughing vpon several persones in publict.”<sup>1</sup>

Various specimens of the proceedings used to compel those who either were Roman Catholics, or suspected to be so, to “adjoin them to the religion,” occur throughout the volume. The parties were generally required to subscribe the Confession of Faith and to receive the Communion, and their refusal to do so led to the usual process for compelling them to conformity, which, against those who continued obstinate, terminated in excommunication.<sup>2</sup>

I, Barbara Farquharson, lawfull daughter of the deceast Farquharson, sometimes Achnerran, and at present servitrix to Robert Farquharson, in Pitintaggart, Forasmuch as I am fully convinced in my conscience of the heresie, falshood, and idolatry of the Roman Popish persuasion, in its doctrines, worship, and discipline, and therefore have renounced, likeas I hereby do renounce, disclaim, and simply disown for ever all the errors, heresies, superstitions, and idolatries of the Romish Church; and for the peace of my own conscience, and for the satisfaction of all the sincere professors of the Reformed Protestant religion, and to obtain the more undoubted right to all the outward priviledges of the Protestant Church, and to make sincerity of my said renunciation the more fully to appear, I did, by my own free choice and voluntary consent, appear before the Kirk Session of Tarland and Migvie, met at the Kirk of the day of , seventeen hundreth and twelfth year, and then and there did judicially renounce, disclaim, and disown all the false tenets and articles of the said Popish profession, particularly the Pope's infallibility, the preferring of or equalling the traditions of men to the word of God contained in the scriptures of the Old and New Testament, the idolatry of the mass, and denying the cup to the people in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper; the gross absurdity of transubstantiation, and idolatry of praying to or giving any sort of divine worship to saints, angels, images, or any other creature whatsoever; the errors of auricular confession, pardons, penances, indulgences, purgatory, and praying for the dead; superstitions of pilgrimages, relicts, and all other superstitions practised in the said Church of Rome; together with every other tenets, doctrines, and articles that are contrary to the sound faith contained in the word of God, as above exprest. And, further, I did profess before the said Kirk Session, and likeas I hereby declare, that hereafter I shall own and maintain all the doctrines of the true Reformed Protestant Religion, and shall attend, submit, and adhere to the whole worship, and discipline thereof to my life's end, as the same is contained in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, and more summarly comprehended in our Confession of Faith and Cate-

Occasionally the accused persons offered to attend sermons, but declined to communicate. Some of them were willing to sign the Confession, but refused to swear to it, "in respect of the difference amongst scholaris concerning these poyntis."<sup>1</sup> Many demanded conferences with ministers to have their scruples removed, although it generally appears that they merely wished to gain a respite from the ecclesiastical censures.

Having been required to "subsryve, sweir, and communicat," in terms of an ordinance of the Provincial Assembly, he had excused his non-appearance at previous courts, and on 8th May, 1601, "after lang conference," it was agreed to suspend the sentence of excommunication till the first of July, "upon thir conditions: First, that this day efter nune he sall conferre with the Bischope of Abirdene, the said Mr. Charlis and Mr. James Rosse in New Abirdene, quha sall reid with him the Confession of Faith, and the larde shall shaw to thame his doubtis; and efter thair conference sall remitt his farther resolutioun to thame of his awin presbyterie, quhais doctrine on the presbyterie dayes he sall heir. And I further profess that I do heartily adhere to, as I have judicially owned, the whole particulars contained in the premisses in the true simplicity of my heart and conscience, without any equivocation, mental reservation, or any other fallacy or deceit whatsoever. And I do solemnly promise that I shall never accept of any indulgence, pardon, or dispensation from any priest or papist, or any person whatsoever pretending to have power to exoner or discharge me from this my obligation, but that I shall faithfully perform the same, in all points, to my life's end, and that under all highest censures and penalties, civil or ecclesiastic, that I can be lyable to thereanent. And I consent to the registration hereof in the records of the said Session, therein to remain for future memory, and to be made use of as an authentic testimony against me, as shall be found needful.

And gif, upon this conference and hering, the larde beis nocht resolut, he sall cum in at the same tyme to New Abirdene, and sall haue conference with the ministeris thair of, and haue the hering of the worde be the space of the hail moneth of Julii; at the expyryng and end quhair of he sall ather satisfie the kirk in subscribing, swering, and communicating with the trew religione presentlie professit within this realme; or than to be content to be excommunicat; or than immediatlie to depart aff this realme, without ony appellatioun fra the saidis tua presbyteries to ony assemblie, ather provinciall or generall. It would appear that, however powerful the Laird of Gicht's scruples were, he failed to comply with most of these conditions, as is stated at the court held on 24th July, 1601, when his father prevailed on the Presbyteries of Aberdeen and Ellon (conjoined for the purpose of cognoscing this matter) to delay issuing the sentence for other fifteen days.

On 7th August, he wrote a letter to his judges, in which he informed them of his severe diseases, which led him to expect that his days were few, and offered to “warde myself within my awin hous and ane myle about me induring your wisdomes pleasuris; and, in the meantyme, I sall recept nane bot sic as sall be frie baith be your kirk and be his Majestie ciuill lawes of the cuntraytht.” He concludes, “I persuade my self ondoubtitlie that ye will nocht be hastie in pronouncing the sentence of excommunicatione aganis me, for I knaw ondoutitlie that sentence will preiuge my wardlie es-

This letter had not the desired effect; and, in respect that the said George Gordon had failed in his promises, “and that he is nocht departit aff the realme, nor hes nocht subscriuit, suorne, nor communicat, bot professis him self ane Catholick Romane,” it was concluded, that, unless he appeared on the eighth day after the date of the meeting and gave satisfaction, he should forthwith be excommunicated.<sup>2</sup> Other two meetings followed, at which certain offers were made on the part of the accused, which were not held to be satisfactory; and a day was appointed for pronouncing the sentence of excommunication, which every minister was ordered to do under pain of deprivation.<sup>3</sup>

During the Usurpation, the principles of toleration were more recognized than they had hitherto been. Thus, in 1653, a servant to the Laird of Pitfoddels having been cited before the session to give an account of his religious profession, he refused to recognize the same to be “ane judicatorie,” “wnless we wes authorized be the comon wealth; and, being demandit againe if he wes of our professioun, he anserit, he cam not to give ane acquittance, and all the wholl tyme he carried himself vncivillie and wpbraidinglie, thanking God that the tymes wer not as formerlie."<sup>1</sup>

After the Restoration, the zeal for obtaining conformity to the established religion led to a renewal of measures against Roman Catholics. It was ordained that lists of them should be sent to the Bishop by each Minister throughout the diocese, as well as of those who should "converss with excommunicat persones, or shall receipt seminarie priestis and Jesuits;" and apostates to Popery and Quakerism were excommunicated with equal rigour.<sup>2</sup> Means were to be taken for restraining this spreading "leprosie of Poperie—for training up in the Protestant religion the children of some gentlemen and persons of qualitie who have been sent beyond seas to be educated in Popish universities, especiallie the young noble Lord the Marques of Huntlie."<sup>3</sup>

Three Members of the Privy Council met at Ellon, in 1676. to notice the conventicles of Quakers, Non-Conformists, and Papists.<sup>4</sup> At an earlier period, we find the same care manifested as to the education of noblemen and as to the orthodoxy of their "pedagogues."

On an examination of the teachers of the Lord Gordon and the Master of Caithness, in 1604, they professed their adherence to the religion established in Scotland, and "testifeit thay saw neur ane uther religioun within this realme, nor out of the same, except that the said Mr. Johnne declarit, that he being in France be the space of tua yeiris, or thairby, could nocht haef the sight of the King thereof, and wpoun the informatioun and convoy of ane familiar of his, he saw the King at the messe, quhairunto the said Mr. Jhonn geff na reuerence, for his goyng thaireto was bott to gett the sight of the King, and nocht of the messe, quhilk he abhorris and detestis fra his hairt, as he allegit." "And as to the instructione of the said lorde and maister, they declared that they teichit

The following Act of Parliament, dated 27th January, 1609, was passed with the special view of preventing the "youth" of the country from being educated in foreign countries, except under the conditions therein expressed :

Forsamekle as the saidis estaitis, considering that ane of the grete causis whiche hes procuret the grouth and incresce of papistis within this kingdome hes proceidit frome the small cair and regaird that hes bene had of the educatioun and vbringing of the youth, who, being send furth of the realme to placeis of contrarie professioun, and not being first wele grounded in religioun, and accumpaneit with pedagogis skairce weele affectit to religioun, thay do often returne bak so possesst with superstitionis and hereticall error as thay may be iustlie suspectit for dangerous subiectis in the estaite. It will be found that the present volume illustrates the proceedings of Church Courts, at different periods, as well as various general points of ecclesiastical law and discipline.

Among cases of this nature, reference may be made to the proceedings which occurred relative to the election of Mr. John Paterson to be minister at Aberdeen, in 1654, as affording a curious instance of the widely different views taken by the contending parties of the construction of an Act of the General Assembly, regulating the election of ministers, passed only five years previously.

The first notice of the matter which occurs is a protest by the Kirk Session against the nomination and call given to Mr. Paterson from "ane part of the magistratis, counsell, and people of the said burghe," on the ground, among others, "that, according to the lawes of this natioune, acts, and constitutioune of the Kirk of Scotlande, since anno 1649, and the constant practice generally observitt bothe in burghe and land, that the Sessioune aucht to haue, and hes haid, ane speciall interest with the people in the nominatioune, calling, and electing of ther ministers, and as they had nevir been so much as once acquainted, as a Sessioune, ather with anie lait, or from anie lait, to be ane minister at Aberdeine;" therefore the Session dissented from the call, not only as being illegal and informal, and for the preservation of their own and their successors' interest in the matter, "but also for the inexpediencie of the thinge it self, as being nowayes fit nor convenient for the good of this place for the tyme."<sup>1</sup> It does not appear how the proceedings terminated at this time: but, in 1658, one of the Baillies of the Burgh "signified to the Sessionne that the Councill hade falleine vpon the nominatioune of Master Johne Patersonne and Master George Meldrum to be ministers of the towne, and desyrit to knowe if the Sessionne would concurre with them in that thing."<sup>2</sup>

At the meeting of Session held to consider of this matter, the call of Mr. George Meldrum was unanimously sustained. Mr. Paterson was nominated by some members of the Sessione, "after whose nominatioune, Master Andrew Cant, thair moderator, declairit that he did whollie disassent frome the said nominatioune, and eftir severall reaseoneings, and a whilles debate pro and contra, betwixt Master Andrew Cant and others with him, and Master Johne Meingzies and others with him, cencerneing the conveniencie and inconveniencie thairrof, the said Master Andrew Cant, in the close of thair reaseoneings, did remaine still dissatisfied with the said nominatioune, and dissassented thairfrome, and withall declaired that he would not, as moderator, put the Sessione to any new vote thairintill, and thairvpoune removed himselff." Thereafter, the matter being put to the vote of the Session, call or not call, they voted negatively, and wholly dissented from the call.<sup>3</sup>

The case next emerges in the Synod, to which court it had been appealed. We have here at great length the grounds and reasons for Mr. Paterson's call, which is said to have been given "bie consent off thie wholl inhabitants of thie said burgh, and people of thie congregation, viz., bie thie provost, bailyies, councill, and community, as thie severall acts off councill and toune bearing thie samen doe sufficiently instruct: and at thie tyme of thie wholl people ther call, ther wer conveyened many hundreds of peple of all sortes, and all in one voyce did consent, except only our reverend pastor, Mr. Andrew Cant, who, without any just reaseone yett

knowne to us, though oft requyred, can not be induc'd to give his consent to thie said call, but oppones thie same, and hes not ceased since that tyme to reflect upon the persone called." "And seeing the toune off Aberdeen have been so tender, and so observant of the Presbyterian way and present order of thie Church of Scotland. it is our desyr that, in these tymes of different judgments. they bie not discourag'd." "And this powir off nomination by thie people hes been observed in this burgh since evir it was in capacitie to hawe ministers off thie Gospell, yea without any respect or relation to ane right of patronage which may bie alleadg'd to have been taken away bie thie late Acts off Parliament and Assemblies, which is cleer by thie call off Mr. Androw Cant, and othirs since his entree; as also wie hawe this bie our greatt charter, granted bie thie supreme authorities to this burgh."<sup>1</sup> "This is also conforme to thie book of discipline, giving thie nomination to thie people in thie call of thie ministrie, as in the first book of discipline, p. 27, and syndrie other places; as also, this is conforme to thie Act of Parliament in 1649, wherin is taken away thie power of patronage, and the nomination declared to belong to the people."<sup>2</sup>

It would be impossible, within the compass of a Preface, to enter farther into the arguments adduced on either side; but they are full of interest, as exhibiting the views entertained by opposite parties on a point of church government which has never been without its interest in Scotland, and which of late years has engaged more than usual attention.

The synod having sustained the call of Mr. Paterson, the kirk session, on 2d May, 1659, addressed a letter to that gentleman, relative to his "pretendit call for beeing minister at Aberdeine," in which they dissuade him from accepting of the same. Among other reasons, they say, "Wee finde our reverend pastor, Master Andrew Cant, resolutit never to give you the right hand of fellowship as minister of this toune; and, in this caice, wee judge ourselfs bound in conscience to adhere to the disasent and protestatioune of our pastore, neather will wee ewir consent to anie man whose entrie anie of our ministers judge to be greivous to them. And this is not the resolutioun of a few in the place, or of a few members of the sessione onelie, but of the bodie both of elders and deaconnes, quhich may appear by our subscriptiones, quhair of the bearer, one of our number, will furdre informe yow; so that to come hither at this nick of tyme in such a way, will kendle a fyre, the lyk quhair of was newir in this place.”<sup>1</sup> About fourteen days after this letter was sent to Mr. Paterson, the session addressed another to the Presbytery of Ellon, in which they state their adherence to the dissent formerly expressed to Mr. Paterson’s call, fearing that it would heighten the divisions existing in the town, “our reverend pastor, Mr. Andrew Cant, haveing resolvit nevir to give the said Master Jhonne the right hand of fellowshipe as minister of Aberdeine; neather will the sessione, in this cace, consent to anie whose incoming to the place may be greevous to the present incumbents, especiallie to that old reverend man who has servit faithfullie in the ministrie so long.”<sup>2</sup>

The session appointed commissioners to attend various meetings of the Presbytery of Ellon, in order to oppose Mr. Paterson’s transplantation, but their endeavours were unsuccessful, and he was settled as one of the ministers of Aberdeen, after several additional protests by the session.<sup>3</sup>

It is well known that the soldiers of the Commonwealth frequently interfered with the proceedings of the Church courts in Scotland. An instance of this occurs in the present volume at that period of our history when the country was distracted by domestic broils, and divided into the two great parties of the Resolutioners and Protesters. Of the animosities and misunderstandings which subsisted between these parties various notices occur. Mr. Andrew Cant was a zealous champion of the protesting party in the north;<sup>1</sup> and, in 1653, he introduced certain regulations regarding the administration of the communion which gave great offence to the Town Council and many of the inhabitants, who considered them to be unauthorised “novations.” These regulations, which were generally introduced by the protesting party throughout the country, had for their object a more marked separation between the godly and ungodly, and the exercise of a greater discrimination in the admission of their people to the communion.<sup>2</sup> He proposed to exclude from the communion “all such who are guiltie of grosse ignorance, atheisme, denying God plainlie by ther words, ther lyffe, and conversatioune, all who ar mockers off pietie, rewylers, railers, contemners of ordinances, carelesly neglecting off them, when they are not withhelden by anie necessary bussienes from them, ordinarie sleepers in tyme of sermon, though they be strong and healthie personnes, such as make no conscience of prayer and other duties with thair families, and all superstitious and meer formall personnes that can not pray

<sup>1</sup> April 8, 1653.—Yesterday, there was delivered to us a letter subscribed by Mr. Andrew Cant, directed to Mr. Robert Baylie and Mr. James Fergusson, to be communicat to the rest of our mind in the West, a large and injurious invective against all who will not joyne with the protesters to serve the enemy, to continue the yocke of strangers for ever on their native countrie, and to lay a necessitie on the consciences of people to exclude, without all cause, the king, the nobilitie, and all who will not be proselytes to them, from possessing their civil rights.—Baillie's Letters and Journals, vol. iii., p. 217. Edin. 1842.

“If purging would help this, Oh! if it were sweit if we could sett activelie about it; but quhen the major parte of the General Assemblie, Synods, and Presbyteries are corrupt, and congregations in such a frame that if, in a great congregation, yee have ten or twenty free of ignorance or scandall, either privative or positive, it is much; in some congregations (heire att least, by the ministers confession, not one).—Ibid.”

if they doe it not in the kirke, and regarders of superstitious dayes, blasphemers, sweerers that in ther ordinarie discourse sweere by the holie name of God, faith, and conscience, and such lyke, all Sabboth brackeris that macks no conscience to serue the Lord in their famielies wpone his holie day, but are wagers abroad or spenders of the tyme in worldlie and improffitable discourse, disobedient to parents, murtherers, and all that hes anie malice againes ther neighboures, adulterers, fornicatores, or anie who are vnder anie scandalous sin and yet not cleared, drunkards or ordinarie tiplers in tauernes without anie lafull occasiounes or expedencie, ordinarie haunTERS with profane and dissolute personnes without anie relatione or ordinarie bussienes, theifes, deceauers, cheeters, lyares, backbyters, perjured personnes, malignants, haters of the worke of reformatioun, and such-lyke.”<sup>1</sup>

Against these regulations, the provost, baillies, council, and others of the town, protested that Mr. Andro Cant “hath of lait brought into this incorporation and citie certaine innovatiounes and dangerous practices, and especiallie one relating to the sacrament of the Lords Supper, whairby, vnder pretence of eschewing of promiscuous communioun, he hath fallein vpone ane way, that none sall be admitted to the holie communioun except only such who in ane Pharisaeicall way most offer themselfs to be tryit be him, and thes whom he calls his elderis, so that all others, tho, without questionne, members of the congregatioun, albeit neather groselie ignorant, nor declairit scandellous, who sall be laid by vpone thair private verdict and inquest and judgment of charitie, as they call it, are to bee debarrit from the comfort of these holie misteries, and none admittit but such as they sall pronounce blameles (in so far as can be knowenne, and none else),”<sup>2</sup> and adduced various arguments in support of their assertions. This led to a counter protest on the part of the kirk session, in which, among many other reasons, they remark that the "magistrates paper contains gross erastianisme."<sup>1</sup>

It would appear that the Presbytery of Aberdeen had supported Mr. Cant and the Kirk Session in their views, as, in 1656, we find a petition or appeal to the Synod, by the Provost and Council of Aberdeen, against the judgment of the Presbytery on this subject. The Synod appointed a committee of their number to meet the parties, and "mediate ane reconciliation, and to take away thie forsaid differences."<sup>2</sup> At this time, however, the protesters declined to sit in the same court with their brethren, the resolutioners. The latter recognized the validity of the General Assemblies of St. Andrews and Dundee, and Edinburgh, which were held wholly invalid and corrupt by the other party; and for several years the recognition or denial of these General Assemblies was looked upon as a criterion by which the orthodoxy of any person might be judged.

Mr. Cant agreed, however, to attend the conference which had been thus appointed; but the Commissioners of the Synod reported that they had "met in the sessione house at thie time appoynted, and werr readie to have gone on in a friendlie conference with thie said Mr. Androw and his session, butt that nether the said Mr. Androw, nor any from thie sessione did countenance thee said meeting." The Synod, however, felt themselves bound to proceed to the consideration of "thie saids presentes novationes, and to discuss the appeall." They had made some progress in doing so, and were "about the trying of that mater in a most sober, peaceable, and tender way," when they were interrupted by the unexpected entrance of an officer sent by the Commander of the Forces of the Commonwealth stationed in Aberdeen, who ordered them "peremptorily to desist from meddling any more in that business, or otherwise to ruse; upon which motion the Assemblie waved the business, and layd it asyde."<sup>1</sup>

The Government of Cromwell, for many reasons, gave its weight to the protesting party, and it seems probable that this special interposition of authority had arisen from the general reasons which dictated that policy. Mr. Andrew Cant was a zealous and energetic member of his party, and had attained considerable influence with the ruling powers of the nation. The following instance of the exertion of that influence in behalf of a friend (Sir Robert Farquhar of Mouny, and Provost of Aberdeen), is recorded by Sir James Balfour, who, with sufficient propriety, entitles it

A Merry Jest.<sup>2</sup>

About the latter end of this past winter, ather in the end of Februarj or beginning of Marche, this yeire, Mr. Robert Farquer, in Aberdein, being fallin in dislyke with the Campbells and present gouvernours, for hes agility in the lait expeditione to England, being then commissarey for the northe shyres, was now called to ane accompte, and summond to Edinbrughe for that end. He was grately perplexed, fearing that if he came in ther handes without some holy recomendatione, per expressum, notwithstanding the naturall drynesse of hes lancke leane bodey, yet they would so squisse him with ther skrewes, so longe as they could perceauie any comfortable juce in him, that heirafter he wold looke rather lyke one thunder-slaine then a living creture. Bot he, a sutle craftie fellow, haaving wex'd hinselue a long tyme quhat course to take, to euitt the racke and gins layd for him, at last bethinks hinselue of one way of addresse, as the moste assurid of all othes, wich was thus:—

The tyme of his compirance at Edinbrughe drawing neire (for he behoued to take iorney one Monday), causes aganist Sunday at night hes wyffe make good cheire, and sendes a particular confident of his to Mr. Andrew Cant, the minister of Aberdeen (one quhosse northerly motion had a wery grate influence one the south, he knowing Arcana Imperij), to invitt him to supper. He refusses to come, once, tuyce. At last, Mr Robert resolues with hinselue to haue him at aney rait, and furthwith goes to his housse hinselue, and wery earnestly, in submissione and humble termes, intreatts him to lett him be honoured with hes companey at supper. The minister refusses, in respecte of the coldnes of the night; he still vrges him to goe, and he should find ane sure antidote for aney cold. At last, being ouercome by Mr. Robert's importunity, he goes home with him, (all this tyme it is obseruable how he cald him no wther but still Master Robert: and being sett by the fyre, and made wery velcome, Mr. Robert goes to his closet, and brings to the hall a goune of blacke veluett, lyned with martrickes, and wold haue Mr. Androw putt it on, wich, with small intretty, he did: therafter, in all his discourses, he calls him ather prouest or comissary, and not Mr. Robert). So hauing supt, and made a plentifull meall, and being againe sett by the fyre, Mr. Robert asks the minister if he had any seruice to command to Edinbrughe, for he was citted to appeir ther befor the parliament, to make his accompts; and therfor besought Mr. Androw that he wold recommend him to some of his most confident frinds, wich he promised to doe. At last, bed tyme drawing neire, Mr. Androw rysses to be gone, and wold haue castin off the goune: bot Mr. Robert intreated him not to doe so, nor wrong him that farr, in respecte he had brought him from his auen varme housse, in so cold and rigid a night, to pertake of so houly fair, for no other end bot to bestow that chamber goune on him, as befitting his age and grauity, wishing it had beine better, for his cause; bot, such as it was, he humbly intreated to accept of it, as ane assurance and token of hes love and affection to him, which Mr. Androw did, without more ceremonieis. So Mr. Robert did accompaney him home, with his goune on his shoulders, and at pairting Mr. Androw told him he should not doe weill to goe without his letters. He said he wold not. To-morrow he got his letters: one to Argyle, ane vther to Lothean, and the third to the Register, Warrestone, with two to some ministers; wich mad him velcome to Edinbrughe, and afterwarde to dance about that fyre, wich (as he feared) should, if not burned him, yet at lest scalded him wery sore. This historey I had from a wery confident and intrinsicke frind of Mr. Roberts, quho had it from his auen mouthe, and told it to me, the 10 of Sept., 1649. M. J. M.

A somewhat similar interposition of the civil power, which occurred in the early part of the century, was viewed "as such a thing as had never hapened against the Church," "sen the first reformatioun of religioun within this realme," and as not only "uncouth, but [as a thing which] appeirit to be a beginning of ane fyrie triell, quhair-withe God is to temp his Kirk, for probatioun of the faith of his elect and chosyne chyldrene."<sup>1</sup>

and Tweeddale, is another parallel instance of the violent interference by the civil powers with the proceedings of a church court, from an opposite quarter.<sup>1</sup>

The processes depending before the synod being brought to a close, and the moderator having moved that now the synod would consider what might be done for vindicatione of the synod, the Erle of Callender did desire that, before the synod should proceed to any farther business, they would take to their consideration a paper presented by him. And the moderator having earnestly desired that they might have their own liberty in the method of their proceeding, the said Earle did still presse the reading of that paper, and desired the synod's positive answer therunto, which, after some debate, was read; the tenor wherof follows:

Erle of Callender's paper read.

The Earle of Callender, as having power from his majesties commissioner, desired that the synod would make an act ordaining the scriptures to be read publicly in the congregations on the Sabbath day before sermon, the Lords Prayer to be said once before or after every sermon, an account of the belief, at the baptising of the children, to be taken of the father or presenter of the child, the singing of Glorie to the Father put in practice, and that reading of scriptures and prayers be publicly used in townes and villages every morning and evening on the week day, according to that former laudible practice of this church; and craves a positive answer whether the synod will grant his desire or not. After reading wherof, the judgement of the synod being heard in the matter, and the moderator having drawn up the same in wryte, the said Earle of Callendar desired a formal voyce in the bussines, whether the synod would approve of that draught or not; and, therupon, it being put to the voyce whether to approve of the same as the judgment of the synod or not; be pluralitie of voices it was carried in the affirmative; the tenor quhairof follows:

The Synod's answer to Callender's desire.

The synod doeth humbly returne this answer to the desire proposed by the Earle of Callender. That, as to the first, concerning reading of scriptures, the synod recommends that two chapters be read before sermons, both before and afternoone, according to the act of the General Assemblies in 1645. And, as to the other particulars, the synod recommends to the severall presbitries to try what is ordained by the Generall Assemblies theranent; and that they observe the same till the Lord blesse us with ane Generall Assemblie (which, considering his Majesties gracious promise, wee have good reasone to hope shall not be long wanting). And withall ordaines presbitries to prepare any grivance or ovector they have in relatione to these particulars against the said Assemblie, quhich is the only judge competent to determine therein.

M[ess]rs. William Thomsone, James Ramsay, Edward Wright, Andro M'Ghie, Oliver Colt, George Phin, Mr. George Winrahame, and many others, for themselves, and in name of those who did or would adheer to them, protested against, and discented from, the said act, and desired the same to be marked.

Erle of Callender commands the Synod to dissolve.

The moderator haveing after this voice again moved that the synod might now proceed friely to follow the worke of the synod, the Earl of Callender, professing he wes not satisfied with the synods ansre, did, thairfor, in name of his grace, his Majesties commissioner, command the synod to dissolve and rise, and to act no farder as a synod. The moderator having desired of his lordship that, for satisfacione of the synod, he would show his warrand for his dissolving of the synod, his lordship replied, that he would answer for what he had done; and so commanded the moderator again to come downe from his place, saying that he would no more speak to him as moderator, but as Mr. Robert Ker.

Therefter the moderator, having desired to close with prayer, did, before prayer, declair that, in obedience to the command, they were to act no further at this tyme, and appealed to God as witnes, that this interruptione wes not for ane unwarrantable and unpeaceable deportment of theirs; and with all said, that he hoped the brethren (for preserveing of their libertie) would remember of their ordinary tyme and place of meeting, at Edinburgh, the first Twesday of November nixt; and so prayed.

After prayer, the Erle of Callender haveing enquired, and commanded the clerk that he might make the register of the synod furthcomeand, upon demand, to the Kings majestie, the lord commissioner, his grace, or parliament, as he would be answerable, and therupon immediatly removeing, the moderator protested that the clerk might have special cair of the synod registers and papers, and that he should preserve them for their vse, as he would be answerable to the synod; and therupon tuik instruments.

It will be remarked that the Synod held in June 1652 restored Dr. William Guild to the exercise of his office as a minister, from which he had been discharged by the Presbytery of Aberdeen in the month of June, 1650. At the same meeting which restored Dr. Guild, every minister within the province being examined as to his judgment of the constitution and government of the Church of Scotland, "they being severallie called upon by their names, thie wholl Assemblie did unanimouslie approve thie constitution and government of the Kirk of Scotland, by sessions, presbyteries, provinciall and generall assemblies, beeing in subordinatione one to another, except these brethren, who gave in ther judgment under ther hands, viz., Mr. Jhon Row, Maister Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Jhon Seaton. These gentlemen declared that for a considerable space of time, "wee have been searching, and yett purposis further to search, into the mynd of God in these thingis; but according to our present measure of light, wee humblie conceive, with reverence to precieuse, holy, and learned men of another judgment, that ther are not to be found convinceing scripturall grounds for our classically subordination, with power of jurisdiction in point of censur. As to the constitution, wee judge that our sinfull mixtures and promiscuous administration of ordinances, without due distinction betwixt the precieuse and the vile, is not the least sinne of thie land for which thie Lord is contending with us."<sup>1</sup>

It was probably this inclination to Independency which Row now manifested, as much as his character for learning, (which, however, was considerable,) which qualified him, in the eyes of the English Commissioners, to succeed Dr. Guild as Principal of King's College, Old Aberdeen, from which they dispossessed the latter in 1651.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Menzies conformed to the Established Church after the Restoration; and it seems probable that Row was also inclined to take the same course. But the expressions of his loyalty, which he published,<sup>1</sup> availed him little, “as, finding himself liable to be dispossessed of his principality, he resigned the office; and, having recourse to his original occupation, he opened a private school in New Aberdeen, living for some time on the scanty emoluments derived from this source.”<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> June, 1655. Aberdeen will never be out of some fire. Mr. Meinzieis, being wearied of his Independency, seems to content to return to the Presbyterie and Synod; yet Mr. Cant and he hes continuall fighting from the same pulpitt, till at last Mr. Cant is removed in small reputation. [Mr. Cant, however, survived till 1664.] Baillie's Letters and Journals, Vol. III., p. 364. Edin. 1842.

Many incidental illustrations of the rudeness and contempt of law which were so prevalent occur throughout the present volume. It is curious to observe how frequently the outrages which are noticed occurred on Sunday, and during the performance of divine worship.<sup>3</sup> The long proceedings against Lord Glamis and his friends

<sup>3</sup> The following Act of Parliament, dated 5th June, 1592, which narrates that “commonlie all revenges of querrellis and deidlie feidis is now execute in kirkis and kirkyairds,” and during the time appointed for divine service, shows that cases like those of Lord Glamis, were not confined to a particular district of the country. It is entitled, “For Punishment of slauchter within kirkis or kirkyairdis”:—

resulted out of the murder of Patrick Johnston, committed by them at the kirk of Belhelvie on a Sunday, during the administration of the sacrament of baptism. From the evidence given on the subject, it appears that Lord Glammiss "drew the first suerde, and than beand furtht of the kirk yarde, he and his complices came within the same againe, and, persewit the said umquhill Patrick within the said kirk yarde, distant fra the said kirk dur tua space or thairby." The minister deponed that he could not see how the fray began, "in respect he wes than on cum furtht of the pulpitt in the actione of baptisme." He, however, afterwards came out "to sie giff he culd stay the truble," but found that the bloody deed had been completed. He remarked that Lord Glammiss and his "complices, as well as Patrick Johnstone, hade suerdis drawin in thair handis, and sic lik saw in John Lyon and John Scrimgeoris handis pistollis, and ane in the said Patrik Johnestounis handis."<sup>1</sup> Lord Glammiss, after many attempts had been made to induce him to compliance, having failed to satisfy the wife and family of his victim by payment of a suitable composition or assythment, and to submit himself to the discipline of the Church, "it was ordenit that the censuris of the kirk be execute aganis my lord and his complices, committaris of that slauchter,"—but at this stage of the proceedings, the actione was "advocatit befor the Kingis majestie, and the moderatour and commissionaris of the General Assemblie," so that the presbytery were now to "heir and sie the king and counsall modifie the satisfioun to the partie."<sup>2</sup>

ing of pistollettis contrair the tennour of the Actis of Parliament ;"<sup>1</sup> but, at the first diet, the proceedings were adjourned in virtue of a warrant from the King. And, on the arrival of the second court day, the cause was deserted by the complainers, so that it is probable the whole matter had been compromised.

In 1608, a complaint is made against Alexander Mortimer, "for injuring of Maister Johne Makbirnie, minister, upon the xxviii day of Junii last, in tacking his hatt aff his heid, and stricking him on the face thairwith."<sup>2</sup>

At a time somewhat later, we find reference made to the "mis-carriage" of William Creichtoune and his wife, in their parish kirk of Auchterless, "on the Lords day, immediatlie after the close of worship (the minister being in the pulpit), by blaspheming, cursing, and swearing, as also upbraiding and threatning the minister."<sup>3</sup>

At the same time we read of a "discord and outfall betuixt Williame Forbes of New, and Johne Forbes of Edinglassie, with ther complices, and ther feichting, wounding, and hurting uthers upon the Lords day."<sup>4</sup>

In the subsequent year, a complaint is made by the minister of Inverury against George Ferguson, in Ardtamies, "for wronging and injuring him upon the Lordis day, whilst he wes about his duetie at dwyne service."<sup>5</sup>

In 1668, an act was passed by the Synod for restraining scandals at marriages, partly on the representation that "ther haue bene some unmarried women surprysed and caried violentlie away be men (especiallie be the men of the Highland countrie), under pretence to marie them."<sup>6</sup>

and close upon the fastnesses of the Highland district on the river Don, seems to have been very difficult to "deal" with, and the precautions given as to citing him afford no proof of his peaceful habits. It is ordered that "any proces persued, or to be persued, against Alexander Innes of Sinnahard, befor the Presbytrie of Alfuir, quher he leives, or any other churche judicatorie (in case he shall threaten or offer any violence to the officer who is to summond him, and the same being provine and made out), his citatione to any dyet from pulpit, by the minister of the parochin quher he leives, on ane Lords day after sermone, shall be als sufficient as if he wer cited by any messenger or officer."<sup>1</sup> The citation of witnesses in Strathdon, a district lying a few miles farther into the Highlands than the residence of Alexander Innes, was not considered a safe business even fifty years after this period. On one occasion, in the early part of the eighteenth century, it was stated by an officer, during a trial before the Sheriff of Aberdeenshire, that "the law did not pass into Strathdon"—meaning that warrants could not be enforced in the ordinary way in that district.

Patrick Leith, the laird of Harthill in the Garioch, had bequeathed two communion cups to the kirk of Oyne, and one to the kirk of Rayne, "all of which were plundered in the tyme of the troubles;" but the laird's successor was anxious to reclaim these cups, and "incessantly vexed both the ministeris of the saidis kirks, as also the wholl Presbyterie of Garioch, because the saids cuppes ar not given back to him, that he may make use of them at his pleasor." In this dilemma it was judged prudent to take steps for restoring the cups to their original owners; and, in the meantime, the presbytery was directed "to keep the saidis cuppes in a secreitt and prudent way."<sup>2</sup>

The following adventure, which befell Alexander Jaffray of Kingswells, his brother Thomas Jaffray, and Mr. Andrew Cant conveys to our minds a lively picture of the prostration of law and utter disorganization of society which were produced by the domestic wars of the time of Charles I. The incident, which occurred in 1644, is narrated by Alexander Jaffray in his curious Diary.<sup>1</sup>

One day having gone with Mr. Andrew Cant to Crathes to visit his son, Mr. Alexander, on our way back we were encountered by the Laird of Harthill, the younger, who was then returning from the battle of Kilsyth, where Montrose had gained the sixth and last battle he had over Scotland. We were, by the said Harthill and the Laird of Newton Gordon, taken prisoners (Mr. Andrew Cant, my brother, Thomas, and I).. After very much threatening presently to have killed us, especially I was threatened, as being guilty, they alleged, of Haddo's death, who had been executed for his rebellion against the State; yet it pleased the Lord to restrain their fury. We were that night kept prisoners at Aberdeen, and the morrow, carried to Pitcaple, where we were left under the custody of Petrie Leathe, brother to Old Harthill . . . . At last we attempted a very desperate like piece of service, which, had it not pleased the Lord, in a wonderful manner, both to give us courage and success more than ordinary, we could never, in any probability, have been able to have carried through . . . . One day, in the afternoon, all the men, except two, being abroad, whereof one was an old decrepid body, we resolved to go and shut the gate. Having had advertisement that some of our friends, commanded by Major General Middleton, were that night at Aberdeen, having come north after the battle of Philiphaugh, we were confident that if we could get possession, and maintain the house till the morrow morning, our friends would before that time be at us for our relief. We having gone down (I and my brother, Thomas, with a soldier of Middleton's, whom they had caught straggling from his colours), found, by our expectation, two as able men as any in the company standing in the very passage of the door, being about the flaying of an ox which they had lying within the door. I being first, when I saw them began to think of returning, but fearing that they would espy what we were about by the others following me, I resolved to go forward, and was much encouraged by their withdrawing a little without the door to make sharp their knives for the work they were about. Finding them without, though they were close at the door, we went down and offered to make it fast, which at last, with much ado, we got done. Then, having full possession of the house, we made fast the iron gate, and put ourselves in a posture of defence. The rest, being advertised, came about the house, and so continued until night. By reason of their being there, one of our servants, who had undertaken to give advertisement to our friends at Aberdeen that they should come for our relief, was forced to lie and hide himself all that day, so that it was the morrow, at nine hours, before he came to Aberdeen, and then our friends were gone. So our help that way was disappointed. but the Lord provided for us another way. The Laird of Leslie, the younger, having advertisement from the country people that we had taken the house, gave advertisement to some friends, who came on the morrow by one or two hours in the afternoon—the Lord Frisell, the Laird of Echt, Colonel Forbes, with the number of thirty horse, or thereabout, and fifty or sixty foot. This was very observable, that as they came without any advertisement from us, so did they come in the most seasonable time, when we were well near spent, having been pursued very sharply from nine hours until then. After we had beat them several times off, and killed one of them, at last they were driving through the wall, at a place where we could get no sight of them; and when they were almost gotten fully through, then our friends came, when we were even fainting and going to give over. We received our friends, and entertained them the best we could, and parted that night with them, having set our prison on fire, it not being tenable.

Mr. Jaffray adds the following remark as to the behaviour of the garrison:—
“ Sometimes some of them were content to be present at our private exercise of God's worship, morning and evening, which was constantly performed by that gracious and worthy man, Mr. Andrew Cant, who, on the Lord's-day, occasionally preached publickly in the great hall. Sometimes all of them were present, and had something like convictions at the hearing of the word, which was preached unto them with much boldness and freedom. Yet did they go on in the frequent practice of their drunkenness and abominable vices, so that we, being very weary of their company, frequently would project and talk among ourselves of ways to escape.”

When the Episcopal form of Church Government was established at the Restoration, it appears to have been almost unanimously received by the clergy within the province of Aberdeen.

and Mr. George Meldrum, one of the ministers of Aberdeen, refused for a short time to conform, and, on that account, were suspended from their offices; but they appear to have speedily relented, as they both were members of the immediately succeeding Synod. There are few sources of information more full and authentic than these Records in illustrating the forms of ecclesiastical proceedings in the Scottish Establishment, between the Restoration and Revolution.<sup>1</sup>

The "Directiones for the visitationes of churches"<sup>2</sup> show that the rigour with which this part of discipline was exercised in earlier times had not relaxed.

The visitation of a parish church was performed by certain ministers of the Presbytery in which the parish was situated. The enquiries then made were, in the first place, directed towards the conduct of the clergyman. After this was disposed of, the behaviour of the elders was considered, the general parochial economy was enquired into, and exhortations were addressed to the minister, elders, heritors, and masters of families.

The elders were examined one by one as to their opinion of the minister's conduct; and the searching nature of the examination on this head will be understood from the questions which were addressed to them at the outset—" Primo, Iff ther be preaching on each Lords day, and how often; 2d, Iff the minister preach to ther edificatione, and be careful in reprovng of sinne, both publiclie and privatlie, especiallie these sins which most prevall among the

<sup>1</sup> As authentic materials for illustrating this period of our Church History are very scanty, the Editor has annexed to the Preface a few extracts from "A Short Account of Scotland," by the Rev. Thomas Morer. This gentleman, who was an English clergyman, passed part of his time in Scotland as chaplain to a Scotch regiment, and in this little volume (now very rare) he gives the result of his observations on the general state of the country, and particularly as to the forms of public worship, and the general economy of the Scottish Establishment.

After the testimony of the elders had been received, the minister was required to answer certain questions, addressed to himself, with respect to his conduct, which extend over three pages of the present volume.

The Records also present us with the forms by which proceedings in disputed elections of ministers were conducted at the period in question,<sup>1</sup> and the volume contains throughout many minute facts which can only be here generally alluded to, but which will materially assist the historical enquirer in arriving at a just conception of the effects produced by great political and religious measures on the mass of society ; and will afford materials for enabling him to realize to himself the manners and opinions which prevailed at various periods of Scottish history, in a way more accurate and picturesque than he can do by the pages of the general historian.

The selections have been in all cases made from the original Reords. Those which appear at the commencement of the volume are taken from the first five volumes of the Records of the Kirk Session of Aberdeen. It is to be regretted that various gaps occur in this series. Thus, the Record from 1578 to 1602 is wanting, as well as from 1623 to 1630, and from 1640 to 1651.

The ancient Presbytery Record of Aberdeen, from which the second part of the volume has been gleaned, is in the Advocates' Library; and no intermediate Record of this Court is known to exist till the commencement of another series several years posterior to the Revolution.

The Registers of the Synod of Aberdeen, from which the concluding portion of the work has been selected, consist of two volumes. The earliest one contains the proceedings of fifteen Assemblies, from 21st October, 1651, to 17th April, 1660. Of these the first twelve were held in the New Kirk of Aberdeen, and the last three in the College Kirk of Old Aberdeen. The second volume contains the Records of thirty-one meetings of Synod, from 21st October, 1662, to 21st October, 1680, of which the first twenty-seven took place in the College Kirk of Old Aberdeen, and the last four within "the Bishops Lodging;" "the Bishop<sup>1</sup> not being able, by reason of his weakness of body, and the coldness of the weather, to go to the ordinarie place."

The last entry records the proceedings relative to the admission of Mr. James Garden to be Professor of Divinity in King's College, and is dated 2d February, 1681.

The principle on which the extracts now printed have been made was to select those entries which served to illustrate the history, the prevailing opinions, and general state of society of the various periods over which the Records extend, and where there were many entries of the same nature, and relating to the same class of subjects, to prefer a specimen which might be considered as most interesting, either from the character of the parties or the importance of the circumstances connected with it. The heterogeneous contents of the Records prevented any classification or arrangement of the Selections, farther than what resulted from an adherence to a chronological order, which appeared to the Editor to be the least objectionable plan which he could pursue. With the view of facilitating reference to subjects thus unconnected, a Table is prefixed to the volume, which contains a short note, indicating the subject of each extract; and an Index of the principal persons and places is added at the end.

APPENDIX.

A SHORT ACCOUNT OF SCOTLAND :

Being a Description of the Nature of that Kingdom, and what the Constitution of it is in Church and State, written by the late Reverend Mr. Thomas Morer, minister of St. Ann's within Aldersgate, when he was chaplain to a Scotch regiment. London, 1715. [The copy, from which the following extracts were made, is in the Library at Auldbar.]

P. 47. To shew the unreasonableness of so much heat and rudeness in shutting Episcopacy out of doors, when its temper in Scotland is such, that tho' in name and jurisdiction it is called Episcopal, yet the way of its administration is so wide from Episcopacy elsewhere, that any stranger would take it for little else than Presbyterian, and an indifferent eye that sees the agreement in their worship and discipline, cannot but think it a dispute about words.

For, to examine particulars under the late government by bishops,

1. They had private courts in every parish, sometimes called consistorial, and sometimes kirk sessions, where the minister, as president, and a competent number of laymen (according to the parish), took cognisance of lesser scandals, &c. They met once a week, kept a register, which was put into the custody of the precentor or parish clerk, and was produced as often as they had business. In these meetings, the provost, or some other civil magistrate, was present, to give 'em countenance, enforce their acts, and awe sawcy offenders, which, as it took off much of the odium the Church had otherwise had, so it made her censures more terrible upon instances of scandal.

2. They had their presbyteries likewise, of the same nature and number of ministers as before represented. Here they handled weightier matters, considered and punished greater scandals, and sometimes capital crimes, yet only as offences injurious to the honour and safety of the Church, not to exempt them from the secular judges. They met monthly; had a sermon in the church where they sate upon business, then dined together, to compose those little feuds which might probably arise upon debating questions.

3. They had provincial synods, as they call 'em, twice a year, made of one bishop and the several presbyteries within his jurisdiction. Here the bishop was president, who took knowledge of what was done in their ordinary meetings, examined the most important scruples and highest matters relating to the Church; and, in case any misunderstanding arose between him and his presbyters, there might be an appeal to the metropolitan or General Assembly, or King, whom the law made judge of all such emergencies. So that thus far, in point of discipline, there seems little difference between the Presbyterians and them; and, for the next thing, the Divine Service, they agree as well in it, as we shall see anon.

However, though their kirk-sessions and presbyteries savour of the Presbyterian classes, and are, as one might conceive, derived from 'em, and follow them so close in the methods of governing the people, yet because they allow and respect the name of bishop, and give him an account at their six months synods of what they did in their presbyteries and parishes, because, as perpetual moderator, he influenced their consultations, and had the power of mission and ordination, as with us, therefore this government of their Church was called Episcopal, though hardly to be discerned for such by travellers who have seen what Episcopacy is in other places.

P. 50. The ministers are regular, and whilst Episcopacy kept its standing the prelates and they wore gowns and cassocks, which, as they are garments of distinction, so they warn the wearers to walk more carefully, and do nothing unbecoming their profession.

They have no casual perquisites, which we call surplice fees. Christnings, marriages, and burials are gratis, at least nothing is demanded, but left to the generosity of the party, which seldom shows itself on these occasions.

P. 52. The ministers of Scotland crave a blessing on what they eat or drink at any hour, tho' only a glass of wine or a quaff of beer to treat a visitant, and this they repeat as often as fresh company invites 'em to it. And after an entertainment, as soon as the table is rid, the mistress of the house shakes the guests by the hand, one after another, as a testimony that she meant 'em welcome.

I know of no Book of Canons they have except the Perth Articles and the Directory above mentioned, which they also seem to have an eye to, and are very uniform by that means in their worship and discipline, which is much helped by the Pastoral Letters sent the Presbyteries, and their frequent Synods, at which the Presbyteries meet together, and though they have very rarely a General Assembly to draw together all the Presbyteries at once, yet the constant correspondence they hold with one another, and the often meeting of the bishops, especially in Parliament time, is found sufficient to procure and preserve uniformity, and make 'em speak and do the same thing.

In the country they [the churches,] are poor and mean covered, no better than their ordinary cottages, . . . but in the burghs and cities they are bricked and tiled, and well enough furnished with galleries and other conveniences for the parishioners. The precentor's desk is under the pulpit, and, under him, the stool of penance, or rather, a bench, for five or six to sit on, to be seen by the congregation, and bear the shame of their crimes.

Chancels they have none, nor altars, and though there are tables for the use of the presbyteries, and to administer the sacrament, yet they are differently placed in several churches, lest the uniform situation of them might end in superstition. So very careful was the Episcopal Church of Scotland not to give offence to the Presbyterian, that she became little more than Presbyterian herself, to reconcile that party to her.

Bells they have none, or very rare, excepting the Saint's Bell, to call the presbytery or congregation together. Yet, on the steeples, besides the hand-dial, they have an engine to show the change or age of the moon, and how she appears in her several quarters.

P. 59. However, the Episcopal Church have hitherto used no Liturgy at all, no more than the Presbyterians, who now govern; yet she every where agreed in the way of worship, and their whole service on the Lord's-day (having no other holidays, except fasts and feasts upon special occasion; for though they had a Calendar in the Directory, above [mentioned], where there are the names of divers saints, yet it is more for the use of their fairs, and to know the age of the moon, or when the sun enters the signs, than anything else) depends on these particulars:—

First, the precentor, about half-an-hour before the preacher comes, reads two or three chapters to the congregation, of what part of scripture he pleases, or as the minister gives him directions. As soon as the preacher gets into the pulpit, the precentor leaves reading, and sets a psalm, singing with the people till the minister, by some sign, orders him to give over. The psalm over, the preacher begins, confessing sins and begging pardon, exalting the holiness and majesty of God, and setting before him our vileness and propensity to transgress his commandments. Then he goes to sermon, delivered always by heart, and therefore sometimes spoiled by battologies, little impertinences, and incoherence in their discourses. The sermon finished, he returns to prayer; thanks God for that opportunity to deliver his word; prays for all mankind, for all Christians, for that particular nation, for the sovereign and royal family (without naming any), for subordinate magistrates, for sick people (especially such whose names the precentor hands up to him), then concludes with the Lord's Prayer, to sanctify what was said before. After this another psalm is sung, named by the minister, and frequently suited to the subject of his sermon, which done, he gives the benediction, and dismisses the congregation for that time. This is the morning service, which being repeated, pretty early in the afternoon (because in the interim they eat nothing), makes up the Lord's-day duty as to public worship, saving that they forget not the poor, who are numerous and unprovided for by law, and so put into the basin what they think fit, either at their going in or coming out, to be disposed of by the minister and elders in such proportions as the necessities of the people require and the sum will allow 'em.

This is the Churches way in Scotland, and it seems to us Presbyterian, and, therefore, we the more admire that the two parties shall so much disagree between themselves, when they appear to the world so like brethren. . . . They both do it [their worship] after the same manner, saving that after the psalm the Episcopal minister uses the Doxology, which the other omits, and concludes his own prayer with that of the Lord's, which the Presbyterian refuses to do.

P. 62. Baptism is mostly done in the church, and on the Lord's-day, when (after sermon) the minister discourses on the institution, necessity, and benefits of that sacrament, then he prays for a blessing on the present action, and beseeches God that the baptising of the child (or children) may answer the ends for which the ordinance was made and continued among 'em. After which, some questions are proposed to the father (for he presents the child, and holds it in his arms) concerning the creed, and the care he is to take for the education of the infant, to make his behaviour suitable to it and the honourable character which baptism confers on him. To all which, the father giving affirmative answers, the minister prays the second time that God would be pleased to continue the parents in this belief and good resolution, and dispose the child to be governed and guided by him; then, with water out of a bason conveniently fastened to the pulpit side, the minister sprinkles the child in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and so a very few words more added, dismisses 'em with the usual blessing. The same method is used at home, in private baptism, but without a sermon.

2. The Eucharist, or Lord's Supper, is rarely administered (perhaps once or twice a year), and with great caution. 'Tis given to the congregation sitting after the example of the Apostles eating the old Passover, who did it in a gesture like our sitting at table; but whether the same gesture was kept after the Paschal Supper is more than anybody knows.

3. Marriages are openly solemnized in the church, and indifferently on any day of the week.

Being come to the church, and standing before the pulpit, and standing apart from the rest of the company, the minister offers a short discourse about the nature and reasons of matrimony, such as the Directory and our Liturgy mention, directs 'em to join hands without using the ring.

There is a custom in some places where the bride, at the time of the marriage, goes bareheaded to the church, and so continues all that day, but is covered ever after.

Burials are made without a minister, whom they will have so far from Popery concerning the dead, that he must not be concerned in interring the corps, and is seldom seen at their most solemn funerals. As soon as the party is dead, notice of it is given by the sound of an hand bell and a cryer, who, at the most convenient places of the town, proclaims it after this manner: "Faithful brethren and sisters, I let you to wot that there is a faithful brother [or sister] departed, as it hath pleased Almighty God. He or she was called [name him]. and lived in [so gives his dwelling]."

A day or two after, in a way of invitation, the same man goes about the second time, and notifies the hour and house where the neighbours may assemble to attend the deceased to the place of buriall. There they accordingly meet; and the coffin being covered with a large black cloth or velvet pall, sprinkled with herbs and flowers, the body is carried in this order: 1st, Divers ranks of men walk before it; then comes the dead party, carried, not on the shoulders, but by three poles (like those our chairmen use), with three men on each side the coffin or bier to support it, and convey it along. After the corps, follows a greater number of men than was in front, but in rows or files, and in the rear a promiscuous company of women; then [the] body is put in with little ceremony. and [they] separate.

Right trustie and right weilbeloved cowsignes and counsalours, and right trustie and weilbeloved counsalours, we greit you weil: Whereas, be reasone of these trubles in France, a werie great number of people professing our religioun have left thair fortunes in that kingdome, and for thair saiftie have fled, with thair wyffis, childrene, and famelies, into this, having no other meanes of mantenance, saiffeing the charitie of weil disposed people, we have bene pleased, out of our royall commiseratioun of thair distrest estate, to permitt a voluntarie contributioun to be levied in this our kingdome from suche as out of thair christiane charitie sal be disposed to contribute to thair releiff. And althocht we ar not ignorant of the small store of money presentlie to be fund in that our kingdome, yett, in so pitiefull a cace, we have bene pleased to yield to the humble sute of the deputies of the Frenshe kirk heir, who hath most humblie besought ws that the volontaire help of weil disposed people there may lykvayes be craved and collected: It is, therefor, our plesure that ye giwe directiones to the archbishops to wreitt to the bishops of thair provinces to recommend it to the charitable devotioun of thair particular flocks. And such money as shal be levied for that effect, to be by the minister of eache paroche brought to his ordinar, and by him to the archbishop, who is to caus it come to the handis of the commissioner for the Frenshe Kirk; and, not doutting of your furtherance of so charitabill a work, we bid you faire weil. Given at New mercatt, the 8th of November, 1621.

Copie of the Letter sent be the Lordis of the Hight Commissioun to the Brethren of the Ministrie within everie diocie.

Right worshipfull and weilbeloved brethrene, Thair hath laitlie come hither ane of the chois ministers of the reformed churche in France, who hath bene heir befor ws, and declarit to ws the lamentable estate of that churche, and withall schawed vnto ws ane ampill commissioun from the same, togidder with a warrant from his Maiestie to come into this realme, and to seik such relief for the afflicted state of that churche as may come by the voluntarie contributioun of devott charitable people; thairfor, we having considerit that the professioun of the gospell there is in great danger evin to be exterminat and rooted out of that most floeshing kingdome, to the vnspeakable hurt and detriment of the whole reformed churche, whairof we are a pairt, have thought good, as feilling memberis of one bodie with thame, earnestlie to recommend thair present cace to all weill affected professoris of religioun. And to the effect that quhilk shuld be done heirin, may be performed with expeditioun, ordour, and some good effect, we have thocht it meit that in everie presbyterie thair be appoynted one of the ministrie thairof, and tuo or thrie of the gentillmen of best creditt within thair boundis, assuming to thame selffis in everie paroche the minister thairoff, to gadder the volutar benevolence of all that ar abill and weill disposed within the landwart paroches of that presbyterie; thairfor, we entreatt yow in the bowellis of the Lord Jesus, that ye tacking with yow the minister of ilk paroche, will be pleased to tak the paynes to go throp all the landwart paroches within the precintis of your presbytrie, addressing your selffis to the gentillmen and vtheris that ar abill, and efter a trew declaratioun of the great necessitie of our poore afflicted brethrene, to receawe and collect what it shall pleas God to mowe thair hartis to bestow; and that ye wald have ane booke whairin the particular contributioun of everie one may be set down, gentillmen and vtheris of gude moyen, testifeing by thair subscripcioun what thay have gewin, and the minister macking a nott of the rest, with a soume of all in the end, which roll or booke we desyre yow subscrywe with your handis, and to send it to the bishop of your diocie, together with your contributioun, that it may be tymouslie delyverit to the forsaid commissioner who presentlie attendeth the end of this bussienes at Edinburght; thus assuring yow that this ministratioun being faithfullie performed by yow, will both have praise with all good men, and the awin dew revard at the handis of God. We commend yow and this service to his blessing, Always resting, &c.

Quhilks letteris, togedder with ane vther letter direct from Edinburcht, be the reverend father in God, Patrick, Bishop of Aberdene, to his brethrene of the Presbyterie of Aberdene, being all opinlie red in sessioun, and thay thairwith being advysed, findis the desyre of the same most reasonable; lyk as, for thair pairt, thay will be content to contribute to thair powar, for the help of the distrest estate of thair afflicted brethrene, and will giwe ordour that a voluntarie contributioun be craved to that effect from such inhabitantis of this burght as ar habil to giwe the same, efter thay hawe hard what course is taken thairanent be the burrowis in the south pairtis of this realme.

The quhilck day, efter incalling of God, the ministeris, eldaris, and deacones of the sessioun of the kirk of New Aberdene, being convenit in thair sessioun hous, anent the summondis gewin in, dewlie execute and indorsit, againes Thomas Mengyeis of Balgonie, Margrat Gordoun, his spous, Maister Willeame Paip, Jeane Irvyng, his spous, Maister Alexander Paip, Jeane Andersone, his spous, Robert Irvyng, sone to vmquhill Mr. Richard Irvyng, Elspett Leslie, relict of the said vmquhill Mr. Richard, Issobell and Mariorie Irvyngis, hir dochteris, George Leslie of Auld Craig, and Willeame Andersone, prenteis to Thomas Layng, goldsmyth, whairby thay wer all lawfullie summondit to this day to ansser to the poyntis of the said summondis; that is to say, in so far as thay hawe a gude space bygone, openlie substracted thame selffis from all ordinarie publict worship in the fellowship of Godis kirk amongst ws, ather in publict prayer, ordinar hering of sermons, or commvnicating at the Lordis table, and so had made manifest apostacie from the trew religioun presentlie professit and by lawis established in this kirk and kingdome: Thairfor, to heir and sie thame selffis, and every ane of thame, convict of apostacie, and such censure decernit againes thame, as to the qualitie of so great ane offence aperteaned, quhilkis persones being callit, compeirit the saidis Thomas Mengyeis, Maister Willeam Paip, and Robert Irvyng, quha being accused of the saidis poyntis, manifesting thair evident apostasie, anssered thay did forbear to resort to, or be partackeris of, our publict worship, and to commvnicat with ws, becaus thay professed that thay wer none of our professioun; yit, for avoiding of any sentence quhilck might be gewin againes thame, and for gewing satisfacioun in any scandall had arissin be thair behaviour, so far as in conscience they culd, thay wald resort to the hering of sermones heirefter quhen thay convenientlie might; the sessioun anssersd, that in so pertlie allowed contrarietie of religioun, albeit thair apostacie wes by thair awin confessioun and cariage so evident, as the kirk had iust reasone to excommvnicat thame, who so wilfulle and contemptuouslie did separat thame selffis from the commvnioun of the church; yit to shaw in what compassioun and lenitie the sessioun wes willing to deall with thame, it wes offered to thame that if, according to the lawis of the kingdome and kirk, thay wald conforme thame selffis in swearing and subscriyving the Confessioun of Faith of this church, and commvnicat at the Lordis tabill (whair of the commodite wes offered thame within fyftene dayes, to wit, vpon the nyntene day of Maij, instant, in the old kirk of Aberdene), the sessioun wald cease from farder proces or juioyning any farder censure for ought wes passed: heirto it wes ansserit be the personis forsaidis that thay culd not yeild thairto, bot that thay wald be ordinarie heraris of sermones, and should commvnicat at the nixt ordinar occasioun, viz. at Pasche nixt. To this the sessioun ansserid, that this wes not the first tyme that thay had bussienes and trubill with thame, and that often befor thay had schifted proces with such verball offeris; yea some of thame had bene alredie excommvnicat for apostacie, and, vpon great and solempne promeises of conformitie thairefter, had bene assoilzeid from the said sentence, and receaved in the communioun of sanctis; in all which, notwithstanding, the kirk hes fund nothing bot ludificatioun, farder contempt and insolence, nothing being keped that thay promised, and, thairfor, askit of thame gif, for assuring the sessioun of thair vpright meining to performe what thay offered, thay wald give thair band thairvpon, vnder such paynes as might give to be presumed thay intendit no more to mock and schift, as in tymes past: and avat it wes too far for the kirk to go with thame, of whome thay had such experience, yit perhappis thay wald be induced to tak this provee of thame also. Heirto the persones forsaidis ansserid that thay wald not give any such bandis. Whairby the sessioun, considering thair allowed apostacie, and proud and insolent behaviour, intending nothing bot ludificatioun, ordanit that, except thay did conforme thame selffis, the proces of excommvnication suld be led aganes thame, as being cleirly convinced off manifest apostacie from the treuth of christiane religioun. And the remanent persones afoir wreitit, viz.: the saidis Margrat Gordone, Jeane Irvyng, Jeane Andersone, Elspett Leslie, Isobell and Mariorie Irvyngis, hir dochteris, George Leslie of Auld Craig, and Willeame Andersone, being oft tymes callit, and not comperand, the sessioun ordanes thame to be warnit of new agane to this day aucht dayes for the secund terme: with certificatioun as efferis, and summondis to be direct to that effect. At Aberdene the allevint day of August, jaj sex hundreth tuentie tua yeris. Et sic subscribitur, Thomas Mengyeis, Robert Iryng, for my self, mother, and sisteris, Thomas Layng. Quhilk appellatioun being opinlie red in sessioun, and thay thairwith being ryplie advysit, as also weying and considering the manifest contempt done vnto thame, and fraudfull abusing of thair gudewill in gewing thame a sessioun extraordinarie vpon hopes gewin of conformitie, and to find nothing bot such mockrie, and withall considering the said appellatioun to be nather relevant in mater nor forme, first, in that the samen is groundit vpon a meir calummie, to wit, thay maliciouslie and falslie alledging that to be the poynt vrgit vpon thame, quhilk, bott to convince thame the more, wes a courtesie and mitigatioun proponit be way of conference, wheras the poynt in process still vrgitt, is thair satisfactioun for thair apostacie and conforming of thame selfis to the present professit and established treuth of religioun; secundlie, becaus from the sessioun of Aberdene, the said appellatioun is maid immediatlie to my Lord Archbishop of Sanctandrous, thairby informallie and inordourlie overleaping and contempting thair awin immediat ordinar, the Bischop of Aberdene, to whom the appellatioun ought to have been made in prima instantia: Thairfor the session repellis and reiectis the said appellatioun as being both informall and irrelevant. Efter the quhilk anser, the saidis Thomas Mengyeis, Robert Irvyng, and Thomas Layng, for thame selffis, and in name forsaid, gawe in ane vther appellatioun from the session to our soueran lord the Kingis maiestie, and his hienes counsall, quhairof the tenor followis: Vnto your wisdomes moderatour, ministers, eldaris, and deacones of the session of Aberdene: forsamekle as, aganes all law and ordour, to our great preiudice and hurt, and be apperance to bring ws perforce within the compas of his maiesties lawis, ye will wilfullie and maliciouslie proceid aganes ws, and, aganest all right, reiect our appellatioun to the metrapolitan and generall Kirk of Scotland, whairby we have most justlie declynit your jurisdiction, as rigorous and partiall aganest ws, quhilk ye also declair now opinlie by this most vnlawful reiecting of our said appellatioun; thairby most wrangouslie denying ws the commoun benefit of the law, patent to all in sic caces: Heirfor we, Thomas Mengyeis and Robert Irvyng, for our selffis, and in name and behalff of the rest, not finding vther refuge from your rigorous and partiall dealling bot to have recours to his most sacred maiestie, and his secreit counsell and high commissioun appointed be him for decisioun of sic materis, by thir presentis appeallis (without overseing the ordinar prelat, bot in respect ye have reiected him,) to his maiestie, as visible heid of the Kirk of Britaine, and his counsell coniunct with him. And heirfor intimattis to yow the day of our comperance to be befor his most sacred maiestie the last day of October nixt, in Londone, or quhair it shall happin him to be for the tyme, thair to receawe his maiesties ordinance concerning your said proces, our offeris and appellatiounes made; to whose most sacred judgement we humblie submitt our selffis, the alleuint day of August, jaj sex hundreth tuentie tua yeris, at the session in Aberdene; sic subscribitur, Thomas Mengyeis, Robert Irvyng, in name and behalff of myselff, and mother, and sisteris, Thomas Layng. Efter reding of the quhilk secund appellatioun, the session, being lykwayes advysit thairwith, thay repel and reiect the same also, not onlie for the reasons above mentioned, bot, moreover, becaus it overleapis all ecclesiasticall jurisdiction allowit be the word of God, and ratefeit and approvit by his Maiesties lawis, and in prima instantia appeallis to his Maiestie, as if his hienes wald allow ane vtter aboleshing of all ecclesiasticall jurisdiction; and last of all, both the saidis appellations aucht to be reiected and ar null, yea, and schaw most arrogant presumption and contempt of his Maiestie and all established ordour, in that, without any warrand from ather of the tribunallis appealed vnto, thay durst presvme, out of thair awin privat autoritie, to advocat a caus to certain dayes and places, and without his Maiesties speciall plesure knawin, to wrong so far the independent libertie of this kingdome and kirk, as to prefix dyettis, and to summond the sessioun, to compeir at Londoun and Sanctandrous; in all quhilkis considerationes the sessioun ordanes that the proces be advysed with the Bishop of Aberdene, and the samen receaving his approbatioun, that the sentence of excommnicatioun suld be pronuncit. According to the quhilk ordinance, Mr. James Ross, minister, and moderatour of the sessioun, and Walter Robertsoun, clerk, past to the Bishop of Aberdene vpon the said allevent day of August at efternoone, and schew him the proces and hail proceedings theroff; quhairwith the bishop being ryplie advysit, and considdering the deduction of the samen, with the heigh contempt and obstinacie of the fornamed persones, allowit of the proces as the same wes led; and except that yit by dealing thay might be inducit to a better resolution, ordanis the sentence to be pronuncit aganes thame this day aucht dayes.

18th August, 1622.

The quhilk day, befor the foironnes sermones, in presence of the magistrattis and ministrie, compeirit the said Robert Irvyng, for him self, and in name of the hail remanent persones forsaidis, and desyrit the sentence of excommnicatioun to be continewit till the bishopes hame cumming, who wes presentlie in landwart, promesing that he and the hail remanent shuld folow my lord bishopes advyse; quhairvpon the pronunciation of the sentence wes yit continewit till this day aucht dayes, and the said Robert, with the hail fornamed persones, appoynted to meit at the Bishoppis place in Auld Aberdene, the tuentie fourt day of August, instant, at tua houris efternoone.

At the Bischoppis place of Auld Aberdene, the tuentie fourt of August. 1622.

Compeirit befor the bishop, Mr. James Ross, moderatour of the sessioun of New Aberdene, and Maister Alexander Scrogie, minister at Auld Aberdene, Thomas Mengyeis, Robert Irvyng, and Thomas Layng, for thame selffis, and in the name of the remanent persones mentioned in the proces, intreating for a continewatioun of the sentence of excommvnicatioun, whairto the bishop, efter grawe demonstratioun to thame of thair insolent and contemptuous behaviour and maliciousnes, schewed in thair vane appellationes, told thame that he wald presentlie discover whether if thay had any sincere mening, or (as apperit) wer bot contemptuous mockeris of God and his kirk; and, thairvpon, asking thame whither gif thay had offerit to the sessioun of Aberdene to be heirefter ordinarie heraris of sermones, and to commvnicat at Pashe nixt ensewing, as thair proces did bear? Thay ansserit, that indeid thay had made that offer, bot refused to bind thame selffis thairto, vnder sa great sowmes as wes required: the bishop ansserit that he perceaved that indeed, and how that thay had maliciouslie takin occasioun vpon the sessiounes courteous offer to ground foolishhe appellatiounes; bot now, to stap thair mouthis, he wald be content, and shuld mowe the sessioun of Aberdene to content thairwith also, to accept of thair awin offer without any other penaltie, bot that the offer being acted in the sessioun booke, and subscreyvit be the offeraris, in which case the proces shuld stand over in the same state it now is at; sa as quhen ever thay sal be fund to fall back from ordinarie heiring, or, in cace of ordinarie heiring, sall yit fail in commvnicating at Pashe nixt, that then, vpon lawfull convictioun of ather, the sentence shuld be pronuncit aganes thame, and thus thay had thair awin offer accepted, and no penaltie socht of thame, bot that quhilk lawfullie and properlie the kirk might inflict. Heir, being reducit to thair wittis, thay fled that poynt agane, alledging that thay had indeid maid that offer, bot menit not absolutelie to keip it; bot that thay wer content to bind thairto vnder some penaltie. Heir the bishop ansserit that thair proces evidentlie refellit that, in sa far as being socht of thame to secure vnder penalties, thay not onlie refused, but verie maliciouslie and impertinentlie had takin thairvpon a ground of appellatioun, quhilk the kirk perceaving, had iust mater to flie any sic dealling as might giwe thame any more mater of cavillatioun; and offerit to tak with thame a werie easie cours, if thay menit vprightlie to performe what thay offered, for that wald end all proces; bot if, as wes to be suspected, thay meint nothing bot ludificatioun, the kirk had reasone to hauld the terrour of a sentence over thair heidis. To this thay anssered, in presence of the bishop, Mr. James Ross, and Maister Alexander Scrogie, that thay wald bind vnder sic penalties, as thay wald rather chuse to pay the same, then to joyne with ws in any commvnioun of our religioun; and being resolued in conscience of the vnlawfulnes thair of, and that thay intreated for delay of tyme, onlie becaus thay wer asuredlie informed that from his maiestie a warrand wes alredie come to Scotland that no man shuld be processit or molestit for religioun. To which contemptuous speiches, the bishop sayed no more, bot that he wald clois vp the process with that thair saying, that all men might sie to what measure of insolence thay wer come, not onlie in contempting the kirk, bot in darring to speik so licentiouslie and audaciouslie of the Kingis maiesties procedings and government: and thairvpon ordanit the said Maister James Ross and his college, the nixt Lordis day, to pronunce the sentence of excommvnicatioun aganes thame.

The sessioun ordanit the haill elderis and deacones to meit in the

sessioun hous on Thursday nixt, and ordanit the act anent the celebratioun of the communion to be registrat in the sessioun book, quherof the tennour followes: Forsameikle as the sessioun tacking to thair consideratioun how pressing a duetie it is lying upon them, and how necessarie for the comfort of the Lordis people, that some speedie and effectuall course may be tacken be them for administratioun of the Lordis Supper, especially seing it hes bein wanting heer for a longe tyme, be reason of manie difficulties occurreing in the place; and haueing haid a frequent meeting of the wholl sessioun, and spent the most pairt of a day in seiking the Lord, for his directioun to ordore them aright, and helpe them to fall upone the most spedie, faiceable, and warrantable way for celebrating that most holie ordinance, as they might winn to for the present: and findeing thair was no possibilitie imaginal for them for ane exact examinatioun of the wholl respectiue famelies in the toune, and haueing but one minister for the tyme, aged and sickelie, who hath the wholl burden of examinatioun of parents whose children are to be baptized, mariages, discipline, and tuye preaching weekelie, yett being most desirous that such a refreshing ordinance should not anie longer be withholden from those who (for any thing knowen to them,) might warrantable be admitted thairto, they, thairfor, unanimouslie, all in ane voice, finds and concludes that the speediest way for effectuating that so necessarie a duetie is, that the nixt Lordis day, being the [ ] day of Februar, Mr. Andro Cant. minister, shall intimat and publishe from pulpitt in the old church. in the forenoone, and in the new kirke, in the after noone, the sessiounes mynde to that purpose, that is to say: That all personnes, quho findes ane earnest desire and hes ane hunger after Christ to participate of that most holie ordinance, and are content to offer thameselfes to be tryed by the minister and elders anent thair knowledge in the misteries of Christianitie, and if thair conversatioun be such as becometh the gospell, being blameles thairin, so far as can be knowen (and none elss), are heirby desyred to repaire to the old church upone such dayes and such houres as the said Mr. Andro shall appoint to them, ewerie quarter of the towne as thai sall be called, whair the minister and elders sall attende such as thus offer themselffes to the effect forsaid, and such as are found to be thus qualified after tryall are to expect toakens before the first day of the celebratione of the communioune, at least before the seconde; earnestlie requesting heirby, and intreating in all lowe and meekenes, that all such per-sones who are ignorant of the misteries off Christianitie, or are scandelous in thair conversatioune, not being such as becomes the gospell or professores theroff, doe forbear to offer or present themselffes to tryall.

seeing the sessione resolues (as the Lord sall helpe them impartiallie to discerne,) to admitt none quhomsoever to the Lordis most holie table that are such, being fullie convinced that this is, and hath bein, one of the manie sinnes for quhich the Lord is contending with this natioune; and if, throw indulgence or negligence, they should yet continew in so hie a provocatioune, to be partackers of other mennes sinnes, they could not looke but to be maid partackers of all those judgements denounced in Gods worde againes those who are guiltie of Christes blood, not knoweing how to discern the Lordis bodie: Butt that the congregatioune may particu-larlie knowe whom the sessione cannot admitt, they doe earnestlie intreatt, that no persones quhosoever that are known to be scandalous in these thinges followeing, will offer themselffes to tryall at this tyme:
That is to say, all such who are guiltie of grosse ignorance, atheisme, denying God plainlie by ther words, ther lyffe, and conversatioune, all who are mockers off pietie, rewyler, railers, contemners of ordinances, carelesly neglecting off them, when they are not withholden by anie necessary bussienes from them, ordinarie sleepers in tyme of sermon, though they be strong and healthie persones, such as make no conscience of prayer and other duties with thair families, and all superstitious and meer for all persones that can not pray if they doe it not in the kirke, and regarders of superstitious dayes, blasphemers, sweerers that in ther ordinarie discourse sweers by the holie name of God, faith, and conscience, and such lyke, all Sabboth brackeris that macks no conscience to serue the Lord in their familie wpon his hole day, but are wagers abroad or spenders of the tyme in worldlie and improffitabill discourse, disobedient to parents, murtherers, and all that hes anie malice againes ther neighbours, adulterers, fornicatores, or any who are vnder anie scandalous sin and yet not cleared, drunkards or ordinarie tiplers in tanernes without anie lafull occasiounes or expediencie, ordinarie haunTERS with profane and dissolute persones without anie relatione or ordinarie bussienes, theifes, deceauers, cheeters, lyars, backbyters, perjured persones, ma-lignants, haters of the worke of reformatioun, and suchlyke: bot if anie of these personnes thus guiltie sall ingenouslie, and with a broken and penitent heart, confesse and acknowledge this ther knowen guiltiness, and giue such evidence of ther heartie sorrowe thairfore, withall professing ane sincere resolutioun throwe the Lords grace, to amende and forsacke such wayes, so that the eldaris may, in judgement of Christiane charitie, declair such personnes truelie penitent ; and if they sall be found qualified in the knowledge of the grounds of Christiane religioun, they finde themselfes obleist to withhold no ordinance of Jesus Christ from such, after due tryall that they are qualified, with knowledge and repentance as said is.

Jhonne Keannie, baxter, was this day sharpelie rebuked befor the sessioun be the moderator for careing pyes one Yooldey. He promised newir to baikie pyes for Yuilday, nor to carie anie that day throwe the streates in tyme coming, with certificatioun, &c.

20th March, 1654.

Yesterday, James Robertsoune, younger, and Alexander Gordoune.

servitor to Pitfoddells, ware both excommunicat with the greater sentence, in the old church, be Mr. Andro Cant, minister, for thair poperie and apostasie from the true Protestant religioune, formerlie professed be them.

Thomas Maine compearit this day, and enacted himself that he should frequent sermones; and, in respect that the said Thomas declaired befor the sessionne that he would newer heare Mr. Andro Cant preache, becaus he haid excommunicat his sonne, the sessionne thairfore appointed him to keepe the new kirk in the forenoone, and the old kirke in the efternoone, that he might haue no pretence of excuse why he did not frequent the ordinances; and the said Thomas vndertooke so to doe.

The said day, compeared Jhonne Shepherd, post, and became inacted and obleist that he should not be founde at anie tyme drunke vpon the streates heereftere, or absent himself from the church one the Lordis day, or be heard curseing or sweiring at anie tyme, or trawell one the Lordis day, vnles it ware in matteris of necessitie; and, if he failyied in the premisses, or anie pairt therof, he was content of his owne consent to be sumarie excommunicat, the fact being maid out against him.

Nota.—The sessionne mett the 13 of June, and enacted ane act agains the counsells nominatioum of Mr. Jhon Paterson to be minister at Aberdein, quhilk, being forgotten in this place, is registrat vpon the 10 of July next.

The said day, the sessionne, considering howe hughlie God is provoked by the frequent committing of the abhorrible sin of fornicatioune in this place, quhich is come to so great a height throw the lousenes of tyme, that it cannot but presage some great judgment in this citie; and, findcing thameselfes bounde in duetie, by all meanes possible, to prevent the samen so far as they can, they haue, therfor, inacted, and heirby inactes, that quhatsumewir person or personnes, man or womane, within this citie, sall be founde guiltie of the forsaid sine of fornicatioun, vpon the notarietie of the fact, aither be confessione or otherwayes, sall be sumarlie excommunicat with excommunicatione the lessor, vpon the next Lordis day, after the thinge is maid evident, without any proces: provideing that, in caice anie such persone sal be founde throughlie senceable of thair sin and truelle weight-ed with it, then the sessioun, as they finde just matter, may speake with such personnes, and admitt them in publict, without anie sentence.

Followes the tennor of ane act of the sessioun, maid be them vpon the thritteint day of Junij last by past, against the magestrates and counsell ther nominatioun of Mr. Jhonne Patersone, minister at Ellon, to be minister at Aberdein, quhilk, being forgotten to be inserted in the due place, is inserted heere, as followes: The said day, the ministers, elderes, and deaconnes of the kirk sessioun of Abeirdeine, being conveinit in the sessioun house theroff at ther ordinarie place of meeting, consulting of ther duetie in ordore to the pretendit nominatioun, electioun, and calling of Mr. Jhonne Patersone, minister at Ellone, to be an minister at Aberdeine, whose nominatioun and call as flowe from ane part of the magistrates, counsell, and people of the said brughe, after incalling vpon the name of God, they founde that, according to the lawes of this natioun, acts and constitutioun of the Kirk of Scotlande, since anno 1649, and the constant practice generally observitt bothe in brughe, in land, that the sessioun aucht to haue, and hes haid, ane speciall interest with the people in the nominatioun, calling, and electing of ther ministers; and that in this late practice, in ordore to the nominatioun and electioun of the said Mr. Jhonne Patersone, the sessioun haueing beine so far neglected by the nominators and electores, that thay ware newir so much as once acquainted as a sessione, ather with anie lait or from anie lait, to be ane minister at Aberdeine; but, one the contrarie, the nominatores and electores publictlye disclaimed them as haueing power or interest in that thinge, and, by themselfis, did let ministers, and nominated and elected the said Mr. Jhon Paterson from ther lait to be ther minister, newir once acquainting the sessioun with anie such thinge, notwithstanding, not onelie sundrie of the magistrats, counsell, and people of the toun evidences ther dissatisfioun to the thinge, and disasented therfrom:

but also it was sufficiently known to them the sessiones earnest desire that the vacand places heer should be speedily provided with honest and able ministers fitt to the place: in consideratione quheroff, the sessione of Aberdeine haue founde that thay could not be anserable to the trust put vpon them, in relatione to ther duetie in ther present functione, if they should not testifie against, and dissasent from, the legall and inordarlie way of the present electioun and call of the said Mr. Jhonne Patersonne to be ane minister of Aberdeine, and, thairfore, the ministers, elders, and deaconnes of the said kirk session of Aberdeine doeth heirby vnanimously dissasent frome the electioun of the said Mr. Jhonne Patersonne to be minister at Aberdeine, vpon anie call yet giuen, not [only] in regardes of the informality therof, and for the preservatione of thair owne and ther successors interest in the thinge, as actes of Parliaments and Generall Assemblies provides, bot also for the inexpediencie of the thinge it selfe, as being nowayes fit nor convenient for the good of this place for the tyme, for graue reasones vnderstood to them, quihilk they thought fitt to forbere at present, not doubting but the reverend Prisbitrie of Aberdene, to quhom the actes and constitutiones of this churches is well knowne, will, from quhat is said, finde sufficient grounde to them to obstruct the said Mr. Jhone his transplantatioun to this place. And, thairfore, the said session haue represented thir presents to the prisbitrie for that effect, not intending to wronge anie who are concerned, bot to witness thair affectiones to the laudable acts and constitutiones of this church, and practicess of the samen anserable thairvnto, and that none who should succeed thame should haue occasioun to blot there names with negligent silence in such a caice. And thairfore haue enacted thir presentis as ane act of our sessione; and ordaines the samen to be enacted in our session booke, to be extracted be our clerke as neid shall require.

21st August, 1654.

Margaret Robertsonsone, cited to this day, callit, compeared not; and, in regarde that shee contemptuously refused to obey the citatioun quhen shee was cited, but hes gone to the Mairnes to be maryed with ane excommunicat deposit minister, the session thairfore concluded that shee should be excommunicat with the greater sentance herself.

15th January, 1655.

Compearit John Farquhar, and was appointed to meet with certaine elders in Mr. Andro Cants chamber one Thursday next, to informe anent his professione; the eldars are to report quhat they finde of him the next day.

29th January, 1655.

Report was maid anent Jhonne Farquhar, that he haid mett with the minister and elders one Thursday last, and that he being desyred by them to purge the scandale of poperie he wes vnder by subscriyveing the negative confessionne, he answered he was no Papist, and was not holden to subscriyve anie thinge: The sessioun order him to be cited to the next day himself befor them.

5th February, 1655.

Jhonne Farquhar being summonsed to this day for the reasones aboue written, compeared and solemnlie deponed that he was neather in judgment nor practice a Papist, nor did ever heare a messe in Scotland, and when he heard anie out of the countrie, it was only out of curiositie, no wayes favoureing the thinge; and did ingadge himself that, by the grace of God, his practice in tyme comeing in attending ordinances and the worship of God in publict and private, should evidence that he was speakeing the trueth; in respect quherof the sessioun desisted frome anie furdre proces against him, and dismiss him with ane grawe admonitione.

12th February, 1655.

The said day, compeared Patrick Whyte, and humblie acknowledgit his miscariage in the church one the Lords dey, the fourt of February, in his rashe, wicked, and foolishe expressions, saying that he caired not for the sentance of excommunicatioun the less, and professed himself truelie penitent for his said miscariage: the sessioun therefore ordaines him to appear befor the pulpit the next Lords day, to sitt bareheaded in tyme of sermone, and eftir publictly to confesse his sinfull and foolishe speaches, and howe justlie he was sentenced; and in regarde of his foolishe spirit, the sessioun thought good not to put anie furdre censur vpon him.

Forsameikle as certaine personnes within the cite being suspect of poperie and dishaunters of ordinances. affirme, quhen they or anie of them are inqyred after, that they keepe the new kirke : the sessioun, thairfore, ordaines that one of thair number sall keepe the new kirke Sab-bathlie thair, day about, to see if such personnes keep the said church as they alledge.

19th February, 1655.

The said day, Georg Meldrum reported that he haid atendit the new yesterlay, beeing the Lords day, and did see none of the personnes suspect of poperie or dishaunters of ordinances in the said church, except William Andersonne and Thomas Moncur in the forenoone, and none at all after noon. Walter Melwill appointed to attend the next day.

12th March, 1655.

The said day, the sessioun redde ane papper from certaine of the magistrattes protesting agains the sessiounes act anent the comunioune, quhilk is appointed to be seine and ansered ; the sessioun haueing considered the aforesaid act, they appoint the sameine, with ane anser to be maid thervnto, to be registrat in the session booke ; off the quhilk protestatioune and anser maid vnto the samene, the tenor followes :—

Att Aberdein, the tent day of March, ja jv je and feftie-fyve years, in presence of the provost, bailies, counsell, certaine of the brethrene of gild. deacones of the craftes, and others of the craftes conveinit for the tyme : the said day, the personnes nominate be the counsell and the night-boures conveinit for the tyme, be vertue of ther act, of the dait the thrid day of Marche instant, to draw vp the disassent frome and protestatioune agains the innovations introduct be Mr. Andro Cant, did present ane draught to the counsell and remanent persones conveinit ; quhich, being tuyce publictlic red, was approueie be the hail meeting, all in ane voice declaireing they would adhere to the sameine, and was ordanit to be subscriueit be the provost and tuo present bailies, in the name of the rest of the meeting, and to be registrat in the counsell buiks, and ane extract thairoff delyuerit to the personnes nominat the said thrid day of Marche, for presenting and prosecuting the same, in manner therein exprest, of the which draught the tenor followes : We, the provost, bailies, counsell of the brughe of Aberdeine, and common-tie therof adherent to ws, whairas Mr. Andro Cant (quho thir diuerse yeares bygane hes beene our minister), and hes profest, and constantlie does profes, that he does adheer to the Presbyterian way, and to the doctrine, discipline, and government of the Church of Scotland, hath of lait brought into this incorporation and citie certaine innovatiounes and dangerous practices, and especially one relating to the sacrament of the Lords Supper, whairby, vnder pretence of eschewing of promiscuous communioun, he hath falleine vpon ane way, that none sall be admitted to the holie communioun except only such who in ane Pharisaeicall way most offer themselffs to be tryit be him, and thes whom he calls his elderis, so that all others, tho, without questioun, members of the congregatioun, albeit neather groselie ignorant, nor declairit scandellous, who sall be laid by vpon thair private verdict and inquest and judgment of charitie, as thay call it, are to bee debarrit from the comfort of these holie misteries, and none admittit but such as they sall pronounce blameles (in so far as can be knowenne, and none else), which, as it is ane practice vnwarrantable by anie lawe or constitutione of this churche, and being ane mater of so hie concernement, is far aboue the power and authoritie of anie private sessioun or minister, albeit newer so full and rightelie constitute, so wee looke vponne the samenne as a cleare innovatioun and practicall separatioun, tending to gather some fewe out of this incorporatioun as onelie thought be them worthie to be admittit members of this congregatioun; and that all others, who out of conscience cannot give way to this innovatioun, sall in so farr as in them lyes, be holdinne as no members of this churche, beeing debarrit, as said is, from participating of the sealling ordinances quihich are the cheefest priviledge of ane church member; and all means possible that are incumbent vponne ane Christiane people and magistratts of ane Christiane incorporatioun, haueing beene vsit for makeing him sensible of this dangerous schisme and divisioun made be him, and for persuading him to forbear anie such practices, and haueing mett with nothing but ane strong resolutione to persist in his way: wee sall not complaine of his vnduetifull and vncivill cariage too, and expressiounes agains, the magistratts and others in place. Wee, out of sense of the charge lying vpon vs, least this present generatioun and posteritie should justly challenge vs, that wee in our tyme haue sufferit such ane snare and slandere to be brought wponne the Lords people, haue founde it necessar to de-clair and make manifest to all that may be concernit, that as wee are far from countenanceing anie profane or promiscuus mixtures at such sacred ordinance, and sal be heartielie willing, and cordiallie concurre, that all personns groslie ignorant, and openelie scandelous, and declairit to be so in anie ordinarie and approveine way, bee debarrit from haueing acces to these holic misteris; and as wee sall be far from beeing so rude and vnanserable to our statiounes as to offer anie violence to the said Mr. Andro, or anie that will adheere to him in this way of separatioune, haueing ane honorable and Christiane respect to anie tho of ane different judgment, who shall, without disturbance, practice or profess with sobrietie, according to thair light and knowledge; so we conceaue the lyke libertie to bee allowitt to ws, from the power the Lord hes set ower this commonwealthe, to enjoy, and not to suffer ourselfes to bee drawenne away frome, the good old way so purelie manteaned and vniversallie practiced these manie yeares bygane in this churche and natioune: And, thairfore, wee declair our dissasent frome the said innovatioune and practice introduct, or to bee introduct, be the said Mr. Andrew, in debarring anie from being partakers of that sacrament who are unquestionable members of this congregatioune, and not declairit groselie ignorant or convict of scandle in anie ordinarie and approveine way; as also our disasent from anie other innovatioune in doctrine, discipline, worshipe, or administratioune of the sacraments introduct, or to be introduct, without warrand frome authoritie or consent of the congregatioune, and that, as wee conceaue the said Mr. Andrew, or anie who sall adheere to him, in so far as they sall practise the forsaid innovations, are in ane practicall separatioune frome this congregatioune, and that wee haue libertie with sobrietie to hold furth, practice, and profes, according to our light and knowledge, conforme to the worde of God, doctrine, and gouvernement of this churche and natioune, without beeing disturbit by him or his adherents, by imposinge vponne our consciences, or anie other way hendering us in the free exercise of our faithe, worshipe, or participating of the sacraments; and as wee doe heerby declair our dislyke of, and disasent frome, the saids innovatiounes, so wee doe protest for us, and such as adheere to us, that we are, and, in all tyme comeing, sall be, holdeinne as free and saffe from all censures, dangers, hazards, and inconvenientes that may result from the said Mr. Andro or anie of his adherents, in relatioune to the saids innovatioues, throughe pretence of anie authoritie, power, or jurisdictione of his, or his adherentis, which wee, be thair presents, doe disclame, and, as to us ward, do protest that the samenne be null, and of no force, strengthe, nor effect, and that we may enjoy our libertie to profes and practice in manner aboue written, and that it sall be lawfull to ws, when tyme and occasioun serves, to elect and choose ministers and sessioun, to practise according to the ancient forme of this church and our judgements, and so it is subscriyvit. Georg Morisonne, provest, be ordour of the councill, Thomas Mortimer, bailie, Patrick Moir, bailye. Followes the anser to the forsaid protestatioun: The said day, the sessioun of Aberdene, tacking to thair consideratioun a paper presentit to them by certaine of the magistrattes, and other nieghbures in the citie, commissionat by the counsell for that effect, and findeing in the said paper manie strange, v unexpected, and groundles challenges laid vponne the minister and sessioun by the contryvers thair of and consenters thairto, they finde that they can neather be anserable to God nor thair own consciences, nor faithfull to the trust committed to them, if they should not giue ane free, plaine, and tymous warneing to the people, not onelie for preventing the ewills and dangerous consequences that inevitable most followe vponne such ane vnparalleled practice, as is held furthe in the paper, bot also to obviat and cleare, befor the Lord and all vnprejudiced christians in the place, and to whose knowledge the thing may come, how vnjustlie the paper challanges both minister and elders as innovattors and inbringers of dangerous practices vponne people in the citie. As first, whairas the minister and sessioun ar challenged for innovators, quhilk sal be cleared to be otherwise, in it awine place, they finde just reasonne to say: Searche all the records of the natioun, aske at your forefathers, and see if ewer such ane innovatioun was heard of, since ther was ane reformed church in Scotland, as this, that magistrattes by ane act of thair councill should disclame the minister and elders quhilk the Lorde hath sett ower the congregatioun, being lanfullie called in ane ordourlie way, and thair electione maid according to the acts and constitutiounes of this church, quhilk is offered to be maid out in due tyme befor ane competent judicatorie.

Secondelie, quhich is yet worse, the paper containes grosse eras-

tianisme, and fearfull ineroachments vpon the liberteis of the Church of Jesus Christ, for what greater ineroachment can be vponne the liberteis of Christs Church then for magistrattes, by ane judiciall act of counsel, not onelie to condemne ane lauffullie constitute church iudicatorie as innovattores in the administratioune of spirituall ordinances, bot also to declaire the iudicatorie void and null, and that without the sentence of ane ecclesiasticke court or addresse to them, quihch wee hope church iudicatories will carefullie look into, for it is causa communis.

Thridlie, The paper opens ane doore to all atheisme and licentiousnes, for if magistratts sall at thair pleasure condemne and nullifie lauffull church iudicatories, without aither accusing or hearing of them befor the iudge competent, thene anie atheist or prophane personne whatsoever, vponne conceavit prejudice or discontent, may shake off all church government and discipline, and declayne and despise all church iudicatories, so that they mey walk in all excesse and ryot without anie challenge or controllment, quihlk is verie far contrarie, not onelie to the holie scriptures, as is knowen to all acquainted thairwith, but also to the manie laudable acts of this church.

Fourthlie, It enervattes all church discipline, for if the magistratts haid anie thinge quherof they could justlie accuse the sessioun, or anie member thairoff, haid they not superioure church iudicatories to maikie thair addresse to, and enter thair complaints befor, against the hail sessioun, or anie particular act of thairs, if gronde hade bene thairfore; but the caice is harde heer, quhen they both accuse and iudge, and so, according to thair practize, church iudicatories will be turned to ciphers, if magistratts sall at thair pleasure declaire them void and disclame them.

Fyfthlie, The paper is inductive to ane vnavoidable confusiuon: what can thair be but dismall confusione, if, according to the purpose of the paper, tuo collateral sessiones of different rises sall be set up in one toune and one congregatioun, to iusle one with another, quher neur any befor but one, quihlk might produce verie sad effects; and therefore it is earnestlie wished that the contryvers of, and consenters to, the paper would examine, first, whether ane act of couusell can empower them to choice ane new sessione? Secondlie, if ane new session can be chosen till the old be layde aside be ane competent judge? Thirdlie, if aither new minister or elders can be brought into the place without the consent of present incumbents? Itt is hoped that sobber men, professing to adhere to the principalls of this church, will not adventure vpon such attempts.

Sextlie, The paper tends to the obstructing of the worke of God and promooveing the gossell in the place: for vnder the pretence of dissenting from sune pretendit innovatiounes, the designe of the paper would appeare to be, aither to haue the holie orlinance of the Lords supper whollie laid aside, or at least so gone about, as it could not be but prophaned and polluted by the admissioun of a scandalous multitude, whose conversatiounes are so contrarie to and vnbeseeing professors of the gossell, that (pitie it is,) ther need not anie iudiciall convicting of them, for thair verie works condemnes them, not onelie befor the Lord, but also befor all who desires to keepe themselves through his grace vnspotted, and to walke with him in all godlienes and honestie, and it might proove verie comforeteles to all that fears God in this place, to want the benefite of such a refresheing orlinance, till such tyme as all the ignorant and scandalous personnes in Aberdein should be iudiciallie conveened and convicted of thair ignorance and scandle, and processed and censured accordingle.

Sewintlie, The paper presadges dreadfull wraethe to the place if the Lord mercifullie prevent not: It was the Lords great contraversie with his ancient people, that they ware stryvers with, contenders agains, and persecuters of, his most faithfull servands; the scripture manie tyme accuses them of that sin; manie threatnings are pronounced agains them, and sad judgments fell vpon them for it; yea, Christ himself vpbraids them in ane eminent way with it. It seemes the Lord may challenge manie in this place with that guiltines, when he who thir manie years hes beine painfullie labouring amongs the people, and doeing good to manie soules throw the Lords blessing, now quhen he shold be reapeing the sweet fruit of his laboures, he and his ministrie is publictly disowned and disclaimed, and factiones raised vp and incensed agains him, and rulers turning thair backe and fleeing his ministrie.

Aughtlie, Not to adde anie further to the ewills held furthe in the paper, it is exceeding strange quhen the authores of it, and consenters to it, are pretending dewtie to prevent snares and slaverie to be brought vppone the Lords people in this place, they are doing nothing els but draueing them vnder snares, and bringing them vnder the basest slaverie of anie ; for quhat greater snare can bee imagined to bee brought vppone the Lords people then that they shall bee stirrd vp and mooved to disowenne and disclame thair faithfull pastor, whose greatest desire is that they may be all the Lords people. And als the church judicatorie, in the place who are als lauffullie called as anie others before them, and who hes endewored, as the Lord gaue them strength, to doe thair duetie for serueing of the Lord and the people in the place, neather did they aither intende it as a snare or slaverie to anie, to invite all that feares the Lord, and desires to haue a communioune, to come and present themselffs to ane ordinary way of tryall as to thair knowledge and gospel lyke conversatioun ; nor doe they think that anie who are not in some measure consciuous to themselffs aither of thair insufficiencie in the matter of thair knowledge or Christiane walkeing, or at least prepossessed with some prejudice one other accompts, will judge it aither ane innovatioune, snare, or slaverie. And, thairfore, it is earnestlie wished that the authors of the paper wold seriouslie, as in the sight of the Lord, examine who indeed is insnaring and bringing in slaverie vpon the Lords people: They that are indaveing to haue thair interest in the Lord maid sure, will examine it and finde quher the roott of the matter is.

In the second place, it is desyred that notice may be tackeine how that the paper is full of vnjust apersiounes laid vppone the minister and sessioun (quheroff onelie a few sall be hinted at and ansered), in calling them innovattors, practiell separatists, schesmaticks, mackers of divisioune, insnareing of and draueing slaverie vppone the Lords people, and backslyders from the guid old way, and also vpbraideing others who offer themselffs to a communioune, out of conscience, as Pharisaicall persones.

First, quher they accuse the sessioun of bringing in dangerous innovatiounes, it is earnestlie wished that the authores of the paper could als easeelie vindicat thameselffes from that imputatoune as thes can doe on quhom they charge it. Is it ane innovatioune to celebrat the sacrament of the Lords supper, or is it a novatioune that, when so long tyme is tackenne for exammeing som quarters of the toune (one pastore onlie beeing in the place for this charge), quhen all cannot be overtackenn, to demande quho haue ane earnest desire after the comunion, and vpone what grounde, and thairvponne to try such as doe desire, not by one, but by the eldershippe or a sessioun; or is it a novatioune that none should be admitted to that holie ordinance but thes that haue a competent measure of knowledge, and walke vnblameable, so far as can be seene, as becometh the gospell; or is it ane novatioune that minister and elders should cognosce both one the knowledge and conversatioune of the people that ar to bee admitted to this ordinance. Thes are all the innovatiounes that is or can be charged vponne the minister or sessioun, who offers to proove from scripture, antiquitie, confessiones of fayth in all reformed churches, and acts of our owne Generall Assemblies, that these things haue alwise bene acknowledged for duties, and laid doune for rules. It is true, godlie ministers and professors, thir manie years bygane, haue beine groaencing that our practices ware so far short of our rules; and, thairfore, if the Lord wold helpe us who are now challenged to innovate former practices, and bringe them vp to ancient rules, wee would judge it our mercie, our honour, and ane innocent innovatioune; and wee think, if the paper be rightlie examined, thair sall be als much strictnes founde in it in relatioune to admitting personnes to the aforsaid sacrament, as ewir the minister and sessioun haue requyrit, vnles thair be some other sense put vponne thair words then is desyrit to be put vponne them by us.

Secondlie, they charge us as practical separatists; but this challenge may be more justlie retorted vponne themselffs, who, without anie just cause or precedent, are separating from thair minister and elders: for us, wee desire to separate in the Church the precious from the wile, tho not from the Church, in which respect wee are not ashamed to be called practical separatists. Wee doe not disowenne all as church members quhom wee doe not admitt to the sacrament of the Lords Supper; we preache the worde to all, thair childrenen are baptized, them-selfes catechised, so far as possibelie can be reached, and discipline is exercised over all. Indeed, wee should dishonour God and pollute his holie ordinance, hardenne the wicked, and offende the godlie, and sin agains the generatioune of the righteous, if wee should prostrat that most precious pearle to ewerie one that hathe no grace in some measure to discerne it nor the Lords bodie there.

The thrid challenge is als groundles as the former, namely, that wee depryve men from the communion vpon our privat verdict and inquest; quheras wee doe debarr none who doe present themselffes to be examined and tryed but vpone judiciaall tryall; and we appoint ewerie elder in thair owne precincts to intimate to ewerie one quhome wee seclude, a just and relivant reasonne why they aucht not to bee admittit to that ordinance, that they may mende thair fault; but it is strange that wee most, in a way of publict proces, convince and judge at the verie first, and not wait for a letter from them, quhilk happilie the admonitioune may bringe foorth without anie furdre proces agains them; and quheras anie are bashfull and afraide to offer themselffs, wee trust that the Lord hathe giuene and sall giue such discretioun to vs, as to shewe pittie and compassioun to such as these, and to deall verie tenderlie with them. And as the authores of the paper are guilty of the former aspersiounes quhilk they vnjustlie throwe vponne vs, so of this in a hie measure, for they haue, indeed, vponne ther private inquest and verdict, condemned bothe minister and sessioun by themselffs without applicatioune to anie church iudicatorie, thair onlie competent judge as is formerlie touched.

But, Fourthlie, It is not enoughe to the authors of the paper not onlie to asperse minister and elders, but also they vpbraid all quho offer themselffs to a communion as pharisaicall: They judge it pharisaicall to desire to partacke of the sacrament of the Lords Supper: they may, on the same accompt, condemne these Jewes who came to Jerusalem at the command of Hezekiah to keepe the Passover, and offered themselffs, wheras manie other did mocke and dispise the matter; and Christ also as pharisaicall for offering himself to Johnne to bee baptized. It looks, indeed, pharisaicall lyke one the part, of those who thinke themselffs too good to desire that sacrament, and to evidence the truethe of thair desire by presenting themselffs to tryall; but since they will not doe so, it is ane verie poor way to cast the odium of pharissim vponne thos who, in the simplicitie and honestie of thair hearts, doe offer themselffs, tho they bee not cleanzed according to the purificationne of the sanctuary; wee sall leaue it to bee considered if such walke not rather in ther pharisaicall steppes, to quhom Christ said, they will neather enter the kingdome of God themselffes, nor suffer others to enter.

Lastlie, Not to rape vp more, nor spende tyme in ansering the other trievolous aspersiounes containit in the paper, wee earnestlie desire all, bothe magistrattes and people, in the fear of the Lord, to consider these followeing particulares: As first, The dreadfull wrathe that hes come from the Lord vponne those quho haue fallenne vponne such attempts; remember the vengeance that came vppone Coreh and his adherents, vpon Uzziah the king for streatching himself beyond his lyne, yea, vppone Miriam herself; the Lord keepe us from wisheing the like to anie, but are not these set up by the Lord for beakens and examples for them that lue in after ages? 2° Consider quhat comfort will bee funde in this course in the houre of deathe: yee may please yourselfs for the present, but wee dare boldlie say it will be found bitternes in the end, for ye are not opposing yourselfs to men but to God in this busienes. 3° Consider what terrible characters God hes put vppone magistratts that haue by thair authoritie and ordinances insnared the people. It is ane fearfull note that is put vpon sundrie magistrattes in the Old Testament for miscarieing of the people, and the people are sharplie threatened and heavie lie plagued for giueing obedience to them, as could easielie be held foorthe from the scripture. 4° Examine what spirite hath layde you furthe to this worke, if it be not inveterat personall prejudices againes them who would willinglie spende and be spent for the good of your soules. 5° Consider iff the hand of Joab be not in this matter, if Popishe spirits and freinds to and familiar conversants with excommunicat personnes, be not amongs the manie stiklers who would glaidelie see us all in a confusioune, and verie prophane personnes, haters of the servants of God with ane invetered and implacable hatred. 6° Reflect vppone the manner how this busienes hes been contryved, quither thair hes beene more gyneing or praying at the hatching of it, wee doe appeal to thair consciences if ewir they did or durst seek God for his assistance in this worke who did contryue it, quhat blessing then can be expected frome God vponne it. 7<sup>o</sup> If yee haue anie tendernes to such as fear the Lord in this place, remember that worde of Christ, Woe to them by quhome offence is come, &c. And does not this worke greewe the spirits of all that desire to macke more conscience of thair wayes then others doe in the place : wee hope there is said als muche as will deterre all sobber people from goeing alonge with this sinfull, disorderlie, and vnparalleled dangerous practice ; but if anie will refuse to tacke warning, wee tacke God, angells, and men to witness, thair blood is vponne thair owne heads ; howsoewir, for our owne exoneratioune, wee haue appointed thir presents to be registrat in the records of our sessioun, and to be publictly read in the face of the congregatioune if it sall be founde necessarie.

Followes the tennor of the act anent the said Mr. Georg Meldrum his call:—The said day, the sessione of Aberdeine have-ing mett sessionallie in thair ordinarie place of meeting, conforme to ane former act and appointment maid be them for that effect, to fall vpon the nominatione and call of ministers for supplieing the vacancies of this citie, a worke so necessarie that they finde themselless alwayes bounde in conscience to prosecut by all faseable meanes, notwithstanding of sundrie disappointments and discouragements they have mett with in thair former attempts maid for that end; and thairfore, efter the calling vpon the name of the Lord, by prayer, for his direction to them in so weightie and necessarie a worke, whairin his honor and the good of his people is so nearlie concerned, the sessionne beeing throughelie sensible of the sad conditione of this citie thow the longe want of ministers, and of the prejudice manie sowles thairin hes sustaint thairby, and vnderstanding that Master Georg Meldrum, regent in the colledge of New Aberdene, for his knowledge, learneing, grace, pious conversatioune, and vtterance, is a personne that, throw the blesseing of God, they look vpon to be weell and fitlie qualified for exerceing of the office of the ministrie in this citie of New Aberdene: Thairfore, the wholl sessionne, beeing frequentlie convened, all in one voice did vnamimouselie nominat and call the said Master Georg Meldrum to be one of the ministers of this citie, and did appoint Georg Meldrum, one of thair number, to acquaint the said Master Georg with the said call, and to make intimatioune therof to the reverend prisbitrie of Aberdene, heirby giveing full power to the said Georg Meldrum to prosecute the said call befor the prisbitrie in all things necessarie and observeable in such a cace; and the sessionne humblie intreats that the prisbitrie would, with all possible dilligence, authorize thair said call, by homologating and consenting thairvnto, and admitting the said Mr. Georg Meldrum to the ministrie, and his exerceing thairof in this citie, according to the ordour observit in this church in such caces, that therby the Lord may bee honoured and manie personnes refreshed; and ordaines thir presents to bee recorded in thir sessionne booke, and extracted furthe thairof. Followes the act of the dissasent frome the call of Mr. Johne Patersonne:—

The said day, the sessionne haveing, in ordour to ane former act maid by them, mett sessionallie at thair ordinarie place of meeting, for nominating and calling of ministers towards the supplieing of thair vacancies, after seekeing of God for directioun to them in the said worke, Master Johne Patersonne, minister at Ellon, was nominat by some members of the sessione to be one of the ministers of this burgh; after whose nomination, Master Andrew Cant, thair moderator, declairit that he did whollie disassent frome the said nominatione, and eftir severall reasonings and a whilles debate, pro and contra, betuixt Master Andrew Cant and others with him, and Master Johne Meingzies and others with him, concerneing the convenience and inconvenience thair of, the said Master Andrew Cant, in the close of thair reasonings, did remaine still dissatisfied with the said nominatione, and disasented thairfrome, and withall declaired that he would not, as moderator, put the sessione to any new vote thairintill, and thairvponne remowed himself; after whose remowall, Master Johne Meingzies moderating, some reasonings past in sessione towards the expediencie and in expediencie of the said nominatione, in the close of the quhilks reasonings, Master Johne Meingzies stating the questione, quhilk was, call or not, hee did put the same to ane vote of the sessione. The sessione, for the major and greater pairt thair of, the most sensible of the sad and longe vacancies of the place, and of the great difficultie of the planting thair of, in respect of present divisiones and distempers amongst us, yet fearing that ther shall arise more heat and dissentance in the place if the said call should goe one, quhilk they find themselffes obleigit in conscience to prevent, they thairfore voted negativelie in the said matter, and did whollie dissasent therfrom, and ordainit this present act to be recorded in thair session book.

The above writtene act was publictly read in sessione at severall dyets, and lastlie vpon the last day of January next (vpon the quhilk day it is also recorded), and sundrie of the above namit persones formerlie absent, viz., Walter Cochrane, lait bailye, William Gordone, Johne Moir, Johne Rose, and Johne Malis, did all give thair disassent against the nominatione and call of Master Johne Patersonne, adhering to the act and disassent thairin exprest, as if they had bene present the first dyet.

31st January, 1659.

The said day, the sessiones act, bearing ther disassent frome the call of Master Johne Patersoune, being publictly read abefor at severall dyets, and lastlie this day, was read and approvne, and sundrie of the persones formerlie absent, viz., Walter Cochrane, lait bailye, William Gordone, Johne Moir, Johne Ross, and Johne Malis, did all 2d May, 1659.

The said day, the sessioun having causit writ ane letter to Master Johnne Patersonne, minister at Ellon, whairby they expresse their thoughts to him in reference to his pretendit call for beeing minister at Aberdeine, did cause read the said letter publictly in sessione, quhilk was approvenne, and ordainit the same to be recorded in ther sessioun book, quherof the tenor followis: For the right reverend Mr. Johne Patersonne, minister at Ellon. Reverend sir, The desire wee have to be founde in some measure faithfull in the trust committed to us, the tendernes which wee owe to the sowles of the people in this place, and the respect which wee beare to yourselff, with whome wee love not to jusle, especiallie in anie publict way, hes drawene these lynes from ws. Wee finde our reverend pastor, Master Andrew Cant, resolutit never to give you the right hand of fellowship as minister of this towne; and, in this cace, wee judge ourselffs bound in conscience to adhere to the disassent and protestatioune of our pastore, neather will wee ewir consent to anie man whose entrie anie of our ministers judge to be greivous to them. And this is not the resolutioun of a few in the place, or of a few members of the sessioun onelie, but of the bodie both of elders and deaconnes, quhich may appeare by our subscrip-tiounes, quhair of the bearer, one of our number, will further informe yow; so that to come hither at this nick of tyme in such a way, will kendle a fyre, the lyk quhair of was newir in this place; yea, and will inevitabelie make divisiounes and rents greater here then befor: and what sad consequences this may produce, we leave you to consider. May wee thairfor, reverend sir, humble intreat you in the bowells of Jesus Christ, as you tender the advantage of the gospell, and the good of the soules of this place, as yee would not be accessorie to the kindleing of a fyre in this towne, which God knowes how or when it should be quenched, that yee would be pleasit, by a line vnder your owne hand, to lay by this call, wee may say it should never repent yow. It would add exceedinglie to your reputatioun with all who shall heare of it;

it would be a speciall ingadgment vpon our hearts towards you ; it would be a standing testimonie for tyme to come, of your tendernes to the peace of the church. Wee humblie suppose it now a fitter season for you to doe this then afterwards, before the matter be anie more agitated in a judiciall way. And we are the rather encouraged to ad-dresse ourselfs to you in this way, that wee haue benee informed by severalls that yee have no inclinaiounes to come to this place at this tyme to bee college to Mr. Andrew Cant. The inconveniences of setting Mr. Andrew Cant and yow together as colleges at this tyme, are so apparent, that wee beleeve no sobber wise man would come over them. Expecting, thairfore, a satisfeing answer to this our desyre, and wisheing a blesseing one your laboures quhair yee are, wee rest, reverend sir, your loveing brethren and servands, so subscriyvit, Mr. Alexander Skene, elder, Walter Cochrane, elder, Mr. John Campbell, elder, Charles Dune, elder, William Gordone, elder, Johne Rose, elder, Johne Moir, elder, Robert Burnett, elder, Walter Melvill, elder, Alexander Watson, deacon, John Sangster, deacone, Samuel Hunter, deacon, Johne Smithe, deacon, Robert Leslie, deacon, Thomas Mill, deaconne, Alexander Johnstone, deacon, Johne Hendrie, deacon, Johne Malis, deacone.

Captain William Neilson, delate for not frequenting ordinances, appointed to be summondit to the next day.

The said day, the sessioun ordainit ane letter to be writene to the Prisbitry of Ellone in reference Master Johne Patersonne, to be produced this day aught dayes in sessioun ; and they did nominat Walter Cochrane, lait bailye of Aberdeine, and John Moir, burges thair, to goe to Ellon for delyvering of the said letter to the prisbitrie, and for other causes mentionat in the commissioun, whairoff the tenor followes :

The said day, the sessioun of Aberdeine commissionat, nominat, and appointed Walter Cochrane, lait bailye of Aberdein, and Jhone Moir, burges thair, two of thair number, to pass vnto the Prisbitrie of Ellonne, and to delyver to the moderator thair of ane letter, direct from the sessioun of Aberdeine vnto the said moderator and remanent brethren thairoff, and to attend thair answer thairto, and, if need beis, to witesse to the prisbitrie the sessiounes constant adherence to the dissasent to the pretendit call of Master Jhonne Patersonne, minister at Ellone, to be minister at Abirdeine; and in cace the prisbitrie sall proceed to the transplantatioun of the said Master Jhonne, the saids commissiouners are heirby impowered to protest against the samene, for the reasonnes at lengthe conteanit in the sessioun of Abirdein, thair said dissasent frome the said call, and in the answer givene by the prisbitrie of Abirdeine to the appellatioun product to them by the townes commissionares, and other reasonnes alreadie eiked, or that shall be eiked to them, and to declair the sessiounes adherence to the appellatioun givene in to the last Provinciaill Assemblie be the said Mr. Andrew Cant, quhairby he appealit frome them to the next Generall Assemblie, and to make report of thair diligence betuixt and the twentie-thrid of this instant, and ordaines thair presentes to be recorded in thair sessioun book.

Compearit Captaine William Neilsonne, and was sharpelie rebuked for not frequenting ordinances. He promist to observe them more frequentlie in tyme comeing, at all ocasiones quhen he is in towne.

Ane letter writeine to the prisbitry of Elloun was this day read and approvenne, and the commissionars formerlie namit receavit thair commissioun for delyverie thair of, conforme to the former act, of the quhilk letter the tenor followes:—For the right reverend the moderator of the prisbitry of Ellon. Right reverend,—The sessioun of Abirdeine having appointed two of thair number, Walter Cochrane, lait bailye of Abirdeine, and Johne Moir, to attende your prisbiteriall meeting the eighteint of this instant, have thought fitt by these to hold furthe to yow, as a point of thair ductie, both as to yow and to the interest they have in your present statione, that they doe still adhere to thair dissasent anent the pretendit call given to Master Johne Patersonne to be minister at Aberdeine, fearing that, if the samene should be prosecute, it shall occasioun the heightneing of the divisioues in this place, whilk they would rather have healed and taikene away then aniewayes increased. And it is more then probable that the prosecutioun of that pretendit call will inevitabelie foment these divisioues more and more, our reverend pastor, Mr. Andrew

Cant, having resolvit never to give the said Master Jhonne the right hand of fellowship as minister of Aberdeine; neither will the sessione in this case consent to anie whose incoming to the place may be greivous to the present incumbents, especiallie to that old reverend man, who hes servit faithfullie in the ministrie so long: Thairfore, the sessiones humble and earnest desire to your reverend wisdom, is, that yow would not proceed towards the transplantatioun of the said Master Jhonne to this place, for they cannot expresse thair thoughts nor feares they have of the consequence thairoff, and humblie conceaves that they need not to use arguments with yow in this matter, for they doubt not but it does eminentlie appeare to your wisdom that the said Mr. Johne, your reverend brother, his coming heer will not be for his advantage nor comfort, nor to the satisfactioun of manie honest people in this place, whom the session is confident he will be loathe to offende. The sessione hes formerlie writene to the said Master Johne to this purpose, and they are informed the prisbitrie also. If your wisdom thinke fitt, yow may see bothe thes letters, quherby yee will knowe the prisbitrie and sessiones mynd as to that particular. Wee sall leave this to your reverend wisdomes serious consideration, and that yee would consider how vnpleasant a busienes it will bee to a minister to be admitted to a place quher neither the prisbitrie nor session to quhom hee comes will give him the right hand of fellowship. So, wisheing the Lord to direct yow in this, and that ane blessing may be vpone your laboures, the sessione hes appointed thir presents to be sent to yow, and subscrivit by the moderator and clerk in thair names, so subscrivit, Mr. Andro Cant, moderator, James Swane, clerk.

Vnto the quhilk appellatione the sessioun doeth adhere, and wee, in thair names, protests in regarde thair of, that anie act or appointment maid by yow, in ordour to the transplantatioun of the said Mr. Jhonne, may be void and ineffectuall as illegall and vnwarrantable, conforme to the knowene constitutions of the Church of Scotland, and constant practice thair of, observit in such caices. Quhilk protestatioun wee crave to be recorded in your prisbitrie books, and quhilk is enterit be virtue of our commissioun frome the sessioun of Abirdeine, beareing dait the nynt day of May, 1659, so subscriyvit, Walter Cochrane, J. The Provinciall Assemblie of Aberdeen, holden in the New Kirk of Aberdeen the third Tuysday of October, in the year 1651, with continuation of dayes,—Mr. John Paterson, minister at Ellon, being Moderator.

October 21. Session 2d. Post Meridiem.

The Assemblie haweing asked the Presbyterie of Alford ther diligence anent the plantatione of the kirk of Touch, ansred that they hade been diligent therin, and that that place of Touch is filled with Mr. David Swann, late minister at Tillinessell; the Assemblie ordaynes the said presbyterie to hawe a care of the plantatione of Tillinessell, wherin the said Mr. David is transplanted.

Anent haunterris and converseris with excommunicated personis, the Assemblie referris this materr to the visitoris of the bookes to make report theranent; lykeas the Assemblie ordaynes the severall brethren of the province to bee carefull, as befor, to hawe a watchfull ey over such as doe converse with excommunicated persones, and to bee diligent in processing them, according to the actes off Assemblie.

The Assemblie, finding that the kirk of Deskfoord is yett vacant, ordaynes the Presbyterie of Fordyce actively to goe about the plantatione of the same; and that iff, betuixt and the secound of Februarie nixt, the parishionerris of Deskfoord shall not find out a man for that charge, then and in that case the Assemblie ordaynes thie Presbyterie of Fordyce to fill that place with a qualified man ; as also ordaynes Mr. Andrew Cant to writt a letter to the Erle of Findlater for that effect.

Session 3d. Ante Meridiem. October 22.

Efter prayer, the Assemblie haweing heard the report of the brethren sett apart to cognosce and give ther judgment anent the insolencies and disorderres of proffane souldioris and utherris, and the band pressed by the Marqueiss of Huntley, found it verie necessarie that commissionerris should bee send to him, viz., Mr. Jhon Paterson, present moderator, Mr. William Douglas, professor, Mr. Robert Keith ; lykeas thee Assemblie appoyntes a letter to be wreittin by Mr. David Lyndesay, and send to my Lord Balcarras, for repressing the insolencies and gross deboardingis of souldioris, certifieing them, that, unless the crying sinnes and vile deboardingis amongst them wer not punished and restrayned, thie Assemblie could not longer forbear, bot would proceed to church censure agaynst them.

Concerning the professoris of divinity ther dictata, the Assemblie thinks it convenient that a quaere bee putt upp to the next Generall Assemblie, whither or not the professoris of divinity shal bee obleidged to give in ther dictata to the severall Provinciall Assemblies wherin ther charge lyes, to bie visited by them.

The brethren sett apart to conferr anent Mr. James Chalmer his process befor the committie appoynted by the preceding Provinciall Assemblie, haweing made ther report, and the Assemblie taking the said mater to ther seriouse consideration, found that they could not medle with the forsaid processe, in respect off thie Generall Assemblie at Dundy haide determined therin, and reponed the said Mr. James to the exercis of his ministerie at Upper Machar, who hade been formerlie suspended by the said committie ; whereupon Mr. Andrew Cant, in his awin name, and in the names of dyverss other subscriyveris, gave in befor the Assemblie a protestatione, and desyred the same to be redd publickly befor the Assemblie. Qahilk being redd publickly befor the Assemblie, the moderator protested that the reading of the forsaid protestatione should noways be prejudiciall to the late Generall Assemblie at Dundie and constitutions thair of. The tenor of the said protestatione given in bie Mr. Andrew Cant is after followes :—At Aberdeen, the [                    ] day of October, ane thousand sex hundreth fiftie one years, wee, the ministeres of the gospell and ruling elderis under subscribing, haweing seriously reflected upon the present difference of this kirk, and taking in consideratione our duety as memberris of the synod in reference therto, wee considere ourselfis bound to testifie and declar our adherence to the protestatione given in agaynst the pretended General Assemblie at St. Andrewes and Dundy, the tentic day of July last bypast, because of the reasones conteyned in thee protestatione agaynst the constitutiones and proceedings of the said pretended assemblie, in which wee are thie more strengthened and confirmed, because of the actes and resolutiones theroff, and warning issued therby, quich ar such as do not make for edificatione, butt for destructione, not only because of unjust sentences and censures agaynst able and godly ministeris, and upon no other accompt then the protesting agaynst the enormouse constitutiones of the forsaid meeting, bot also because of ther ratifeing and approving that lamentable course of defection caried on by the commission of the last General Assemblie, which has provoked the Lord to increase our plagues exceedingly, and to wreath thee yoke of our transgressiones about our neckes : And because of unjust aspersiones cast upon former warrantable actinges, and honest and graciouse men who haid hand therein : And because of the laying a foundatione both for keeping out of the ministerie such as doe dissent from the publick resolutiones, in order to a conjunction with the malignant partie, as also for censuring and putting out all such as doe oppose that present course of defectione : And being upon these grounds convinced in our consciences of the nullitie of the said assemblie, and of the unwarrantableness and unlawfulness of the proceedings therof, we doe humble beseech and obtest you, in the name of the Lord Jesus, not only to forbear to doe any thing which may import your approbatione and acknowledgment of the constitutione or authoritie and actis theroff, butt also to give testimony agaynst the samen, and to take course within your bounds how the euil therof may be remooved, and the snares therof prevented. And if, notwithstanding of these reasones and desyres, the synod shall goe on to doe any thinge that may import ther acknowledgment of the said assemblie, or for strengthening and executing of any of the actis theroff, then we doe, in our owne names, and in the names of all the ministres and elders and professors within this province, who doe or shall adhere to us, protest that we may not onely be free of all the sinne and guilt theroff, but also that all these proceedings may be voyd and null; and that nether they, nor any thing followinge therwpon in synod, committie, presbyterie, or any judicatorie whatsoever, may have any strength to bind or oblesse us to the obedience theroff, or censure in case of refusall; bot that wee, and all such as adhere to us, may have as much freedom in our consciences, and the exercises of all thie dueties of our callings, as if the synod had not, or any other judicatorie, so proceeded. And we protest that these presents may be insert in the registerris of the Provinciaill Assemblie of Aberden, ad futuram rei memoriam, and that we may have extractis theroff under thie clerks hand. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Andrew Cant, Mr. Jhon Menzies, Mr. David Swan, Mr. William Scott, Mr. George Tailifer, Mr. Jhon Young, Mr. Jhon Forbes, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Alexander Cant, William Forbes of Lesly, elder, Mr. Jhone Jonesone, Mr. Robert Cheyne, Mr. Jhon Seatone, Mr. Jhon Midletoune, Mr. William Glass, Mr. George Watsone, Mr. Alexander Gareth, Mr. Walter Ritchie, Mr. William Ramesay, Mr. Alexander Irvin, Mr. Nathaniel Martine, Mr. Jhone Mercer, Mr. Jhone Lundy, ruling elder, Mr. Duncane Forbes, Mr. Alexander Skeyne, ruling elder, Mr. Alexander Mitchell.

Anent the visitatione of the kirks of Auchindore and Kildrummy, the Assemblie, haweing found, after enquire, that the Presbyterie of Alford, within whose bounds the saids kirks lyes, have diligently and carefullie gone about the visitatione of the saids kirks, omologates and renews the act ordaining the saids kirks to be disjoyned, and appoyntes thie Presbyterie of Alford to be diligent in provyding them severallie.

Session 5th.—*Ante Meridie*m.—October, 23.

The Assemblie, haweing heard the brethren sett apart to give ther thoughts and judgment anent the forsaid protestatione given in to the Assemblie by Mr. Andrew Cant, after mature deliberatione, did give ther judgment therupon, wheroff the tenor followes: Thie Assemblie, taking to consideratione thie aboue wriitten protestatione, found themselves obledged in conscience and duety to give ther judgment and sense theroff; and, therfor, they disallow and condemme the forsaid protestatione in all the heads, grounds, and articles theroff, as tending to divisione, and prejudiciall to the just liberties and authority of this kirk, and unwarrantable reflecting upon the discretione and authoritie of the late Generall Assemblie convened at St. Andrewes, and translated to Dundy in the month of July last, 1651 yeeris, and upon the proceedinges theroff, and of the Commission of the Generall Assemblie 1650 yeris; and as casting uncharitable aspersiones upon many able, honest, and pious ministres and ruling elderris of this church, who have been verie faithfull and eminent in carieing on the work of reformatiōne, as if of late they had fallen from ther former zeall and principles to the careing on of a course of defectione and apostasie. Whereas (in or judgment), it is undenyable, to all who looks on thie matter impartiallie, that they have done that quhairunto they werr obleidged by the law of God, of nature, of nationes, by covenantes, oathes, protestationes, and declarationes, in reference to the just and necessarie defense of relligion, according to the covenant, of ane covenantant king and kingdome, in such an extremity and case of unavoidable necessity; and therfor the Assemblie disclaymes all the sinne, and guiltines, and sad effectes which the said protestatioun hes or may produce; and declares thie giveres in, and all that hes adhered, or shall adhere thertoo, censurable.

The Assemblie judged it convenient that, in respect of the differences of judgment amongst the brethren anent the Generall Assemblie at Dundy, the roll should be called; and that everie brother within this Provinciall Assemblie should be putt to it to declar himself positivly thairanent.

Mr. William Cheyne, minister at Dyce, his judgment being desired by the moderator anent the lawfulness or onlawfulness of the Generall Assemblie at St. Andrewes and Dundie, respectiue, declared himself un-satisfied in regard off the prelimitatione of thie meeting at Dundy (as he calles it), and in regard of the generalitie of the associatiōne with malignantes in putting them in places of trust; but whether or no to adhere to a protestation whollie declyning the said Generall Assemblie, he professes that he is not cler therein.

October 24. Session 7th. Ante Meridiem.

This day, anent thrie cuppes for the Holy Communion, mortified by umqll Patrick Leith of Harthill to the kirkes off Oyn and Rayne, tuo of them for the kirk of Oyn, and the third for the kirk off Rayne, all which werr plunderred in the tyme of the troubles, the Presbyterie of Garioch haweing represented to the Assemblie the unrulie cariage of Jhon Leith, now of Harthill, the father of the said Patrick, incessantlie vexing both the ministerris of the saids kirks, as also the wholl Presbyterie of Garioch, because the saids cuppes ar not given back to him, that he may make use of them at his pleassr, humble desyred the advyse of thee Assemblie theranent. The Assemblie, taking this mater to ther consideration, advyses the said presbyterie to adverteise the Presbyteries of Fyff, out of quich presbyteries it is thought the saids cuppes werr taken, that they would labor to take notice to whom they did appertaine, that after tryall they might be restored to the just owneris, and in the mean tyme advyses the said Presbyterie of Garioch to keep the saids cuppes in a secreitt and prudent way, till notice might be hade of the true owneris of them.

Anent Patrick Gordoun, alias Shawgand, his supplication to the Assemblie to be relaxed from his excommunicatione, the said supplicatione beeing redd, as also a testimony from the Presbyterie of Garioch, bearing that hie is in a capacitie to bie received and relaxed from excommunicatione, thie Assemblie appoyntes Mr. Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Andrew Strachan, to goe apart and conferr with him anent his sense off his former guiltiness and gross debordinges ; and they haweing returned that thie hade found in him some signes of repentance, the Assemblie referres him to the Presbyterie of Aberden to bie relaxed.

Thee excommunicat persones and fugitives within the province to bie intimat out of all pulpittes, that none receipt nor keep company with them, under the pain of censur ; and the names of the excommunicates to bie read publickly out of all pulpitts, befor thie Communion, in everie kirk of the province.

Session 4th. Apryll 21, 1652. Post Meridieum.

This said day, after incalling of God's name this day, anent the plantation of this now vacant kirk of Tillinessell, so seriouslie recommended to the Presbyterie of Awfuird to goe effectualle about the plantation theroff, bee the last Provincially Synod; the Presbyterie of Awfuird declared that they had not been deficient in ther diligence theranent, and for ane accmpt of ther diligence theranent, declared that, at ther last presbyteriall meeting at this kirk of Awfuird, the fyfteint day of Apryll instant, compeared John Leith of Whythaugh, as commissioner from this parishionerris of Tillinessell, and declared that he hade commissioun and warrand from the parishionerris of the said parish, that in respect they wer bot strangerris, and not acquainted for the present with all the expectants of divinitie within this province, they could not convenientlie fall upon the nominatioun of a man for the ministerie of the church and parish, yett for a demonstratioun of ther not onely willingness bot forwardnes for the plantation of the said kirk, they hade fallen, with commone consent, upon a desyr to hear ane expectant of divinity, Mr. Alexander Youngsone by name, and earnestlie desyred that the Presbyterie of Awfuird would give ther best assistance and concurrence for procureing ane call to the said Mr. Alexander, to preach befor them, that they might hear him; with the which petition the Presbyterie beeing ryply advised, did unanymouslie consent and promised to give ther assistance and best concurrence therunto: And for the mor expedit promooving of the same, the presbyterie did, according to the act of the provincially synod, enqyre of all the presbyteries within the province, iff they hade any thing to object or except agaynst the motioun and proposition mooved by the parishionerris of Tillinessell and Presbyterie of Awfuird: And the provincially assemble finding that no presbyterie within the province hade any exceptioun or alleadgeance agaynst the said Mr. Alexander, in his cariage or personall conversatione; and that divers brethren within the province, and particularlie Mr. William Douglas, Professor of Divinitie within the Universitie of Old Aberdeen, declared, provincially, that the said Mr. Alexander was both a good and a learned man, wherupon the whole assemblie taking the premisses to thir consideration, and finding that none within the assemblie did except agaynst the said petition, did allow and concentiat the said Mr. Alexander to repair to the kirk of Tillinessell, and to preach befor them according to the call he has received from the parishionerris and presbyterie forsaid.

Anent the plantatione of the now vacant kirk of Keirne, the Provinciall Assemblie, upon grave and seriouse reasones mooving them therunto, doeth ordayne that the tryalles of Mr. William Whytt, expectant of divinitie, alreadie entered to his tryalles befor the Presbyterie of Awfurd, for the said kirk, bie suspended to the nixt Provinciall Synod in Junii nixt, till he give his positive judgment anent the Generall Assemblie at St. Andrewes and Dundy, respectiue, in July, 1651; and, in the mean time, the Assemblie licentiates the said Mr. William to exercise himself in preaching the gospell in the said parish, for the comfort and edification of the people ther, till the forsaid synod, as said is.

Session 7th. Apryll 23. Ante Meridiem.

The said day, after incalling on Gods name, a paper was presented by Mr. Jhon Row, and redd, bearing overtures as followes: That each presbyterie, and each minister in everie presbyterie, bie carefull to revise actes of Generall Assemblies, and other thingis ordered by our reformerris, in relatione unto, first, ministerris of the gospell, what qualifications and cariage is requyred in them; secondly, elderis and deacones; thirdly, in public penitentes admitting unto repentance publick, and ther absolution; fourthly, in relation to the Sacraments of Baptisme and the Lords Supper; fiftlie, what qualificationes ar requyred in a constituent member of a visible kirk of Jesus Christ.

Session 3d. Junij 30, 1652. Ante Meridiem.

The said day, after incalling on Gods name, it was recommended to all the ministerres in thie province, to hee exact in absolving publick penitentes, conforme to the Word of God and actes off Generall Assemblies.

Session 4th. Junij 30, 1652. Post Meridieum.

The said day, after incalling on thie name of God, anent a former petition given in by Doctour William Guild, principall of thie Old Towne Colledge of Aberden, concerning thie restoring of him to the exereess of his ministerie, from thie quhilk he was discharged by thie Presbyterie off Aberden in thie moneth of Junii, 1650 yeris, humblie desyryng thie Assemblie to take to thier consideratione thie process and sentence ledd and pronounced agaynst him bie the said Presbyterie of Aberden. First, the questione being stated whither the Assemblie would take upon them to judge in the said mater, after voyceing the Assemblie did find themselves to bie judges, and resolved to proceed in the determinatione of thie said business; and therafter the said Doctour William Guild and Presbyterie of Aberden bicing heard at length, the Assemblie did find the sentence pronounced by thie said Presbyterie of Aberden agaynst thie said Doctour William Guild to have been illegal, and consequently null and void from the beginning, upon the reasones efter following, viz. :—first, becaus befor ever the said Doctour William Guild was cited befor the presbyterie, accused or heard, or any lybell given to him, they concluded to proceed to a sentence agaynst him, as thie act of the said presbyterie, Junij 12, 1650 yeris, importes; secondly, because at the same presbyteriall meeting thie moderator was ordayned to charge thie said Doctour William Guild to comper befor them at thie nixt meeting, to hear and sie a sentence pronounced agaynst him, hie haweing nevir been hard to answer for himself why thie said summons, to hear any sentence should not have been given out agaynst him; thirdlie, because in thier presbyteriall meeting, Junij 12, they voyced his depositione from his ministerie befor they took cognitione off the cause; and last of all, because it was found by the judiciaall confession off diverss brethren of thie said Presbyterie of Aberden, that they hade never seen, heard, or considered thie process transmitted to them, ledd by the visitoris of thie Universitie off Aberden in Junij 1650, wherupon thier sentence was founded, wheras thie Presbyterie Book off Aberden hade in it that they hade seriously considered the said process: Therfor, in respect of the wholl premisses, the Assemblie restores thie said Doctour William Guild to thie exereess of his ministerie, and ordaynes publick intimatione of thie same to bie made from the pulpitt of Old Aberden by the minister ther. To the quich act, Mr. Robert Keith and Mr. Nathaniell Martynue entered thier dissent.

This day, anent the posing of everie minister within this province touching his judgment anent the constitution and government of the Kirk of Scotland, they, being severallie called upon by their names, the wholl Assemblie did unanimouslie approove thie constitution and government of thie Kirk of Scotland by sessiones, presbyteries, provinciall and generall Assemblies, beeing in subordinatione one to another, except those brethren who gave in ther judgment under ther hands, viz., Mr. Jhon Row, Maister Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Jhon Seaton, thie tenor quhairof followes: wee, underscrybberis, being solemlie posed by thie moderator of thie Provinciall Synod what our judgment is of thie present church government and constitution in Scotland, declar that, for a considerable space off tyme, wee have been searching, and yett purpos further to search, into the mynd of God in these things; but, according to our present measure of light, wee humblie conceave, with reverence to precieuse, holy, and learned men of another judgment, that there are not to be found convinceing scripturall grounds for our classically subordination, with power of jurisdiction in poynt of censur. As to thie constitntion, wee judge that our sinfull mixtures, and promiscuous administration of ordinances, without due distinction betuixt the precieuse and thie vile, is not thie least sinne of thie land for which the Lord is contending with us; butt, when it shall bie more distinctly told us what our rule of constitution is, wee shall more distinctly ansuir to this last branch. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Jhon Row, Mr. Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Jhon Seton.

As lykwyse, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Duncan Forbes, Mr. William Ramesay, Mr. George Tailifer, gave in ther judgment under ther hands: the tenor wheroff followes: unto thie quere propounded anent the brethrens judgment of thie government and present constitution of this kirk, ansuir is humblie returned, that, for any thing wee have yett attained, we doe approve off, and resolve by Godis grace to adhere unto, Presbyteriall Government, as it is held out in the covenantes, actes, and constitutions of thie lawfull Generall Assemblies of this kirk and kingdoms, as agrieable unto, and warranted by, thie Word of God; but can not allow or approve the present exercis of Government as it is, and hes been, exercised since thie late defectioun begun and advanced by a prevalent partie off the commission authorized by thie Generall Assemblie 1650, because, since that tyme, the Assemblies have been, and continue to bie, corrupt in ther constitution, and wronged in ther fredome and liberties. Wee doe also esteem thie Kirk of Scotland a true kirk in regard of doctrine, disciplin, worshipp, and government warranted as forsaid, from which wee ought not to separate or withdraw our selffes. But we are no wayis satisfied with the present actual constitution or complexion of congregationes generallie faultie, by reason of thie sinfull mixture of thie precieuse with thie vile in dispensing off ordinances, especially the sacrament of the Lord's Supper; and wie think wie ought to remove, by thie censures of the kirk, from such as desyr to fear the Lord, all scandalouse, ignorant, and profane persones, who either have not so much as a profession, or who by ther constant practise, after panes taken on them, contradict any profession by lives contrarie thertoo. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Duncan Forbes, Mr. William Ramsay, Mr. George Tailifer.

Thee assemblie takeing to ther consideration thie forsaid paper given in bie Mr. Jhon Row, Mr. John Menzeis, and Mr. Jhon Seton, did find thie same contrarie to thie Word of God, to the covenantes and the judgment of the Generall Assemblies of this Kirk, and therfor condemned the said paper, and suspended thie censure of thie said brethrene till thie said mater should be advised with the Generall Assemblie immediatlie following; and, in the mean tyme, inhibites thie forsaid brethren, either privately or publickly, to vent any doctrine, or practise any thinge tending towards separation, or against thie present government of this church, and that under the pain of thie highest censures of the Church of Scotland.

Session 5th. Julii 1, 1652. Ante Meridiem.

Thee said day, after incalling on God's holie name, the mater bieing propounded againe to the provinciall assembly anent the slaughter off Thomas Forbes of Watertowne, by Jhone Kennedy of Kermuckes, elder; Jhone Kennedy of Kermuckes, younger, and ther complices, viz.: George Pirie, James Bruce, and Donald Fraser, and the said slaughter bieing made notor to the assemblie, after long consultatione and voyceing in the business, thie fornamed are ordayned to bie summarly excommunicated thie nixt Lords day, by Mr. Jhone Patersone, minister at Ellon, as he wil bie ansrable to the next Provinciall Assemblie

The Provinciall Assemblie of Aberden, holden in the New Kirk of Aberden, on thie third Tuysday off October, being the nynteinth day theroff, with continuation of dayes, anno 1652, Mr. Adam Barclay, elder, minister at Awfurd, bieing moderator.

Session 1st. Post Meridiem. October 19, 1652.

Anent thee reposition of Mr. William Guild to his ministeriall charge, thie assemblie findes that publick intimation had been made theroff from thie pulpitt of Old Aberden, by thie minister ther, anent the which reposition dyverss protesting brethren entered their disassent, whose names ar as follows: Mr. Robert Leith, Mr. Robert Cheyne, Mr. Arthur Mitchell, Mr. Jhon Mercer, Mr. William Scott, Mr. Duncan Forbes, Mr. George Tailifer, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Walter Rithie, Mr. George Watsons, Mr. William Ryress, Mr. William Ramsay; and that upon the grounds and for the reasons to be given in by them in tyme and place convenient.

Anent the Well of Seggett, the Assemblie recommendes the Presbyterie of Turreff, beeing within ther bounds, to have a speciall care to take notice of all superstitious persones frequenting that well, and upon the notorietic theroff to censure them.

Anent a referr from the Presbyterie of Awfurd, regraiting that Mr. Androw Gray, minister at Coull, hade medled with a part of thie ministerie of thie lands of Corse, som tymes belonging to thie lands of Coull, and now annexed to the parish of Lochell, particularlie in baptizing of some children without the minister at Lochell his testimoniall, thee Assemblie ordaynes thie said Mr. Androw Gray, that in any tyme heer-after he presume not to medle with the exerceiss of any part of the ministerie within the compass of any other minister his charge, and particularlie with any part of thee lands of Corse, as he wil bee anscrable.

Anent the supplication of the parishionerris of Strathdivren given into the Presbyterie of Awfuir, representing that, at Ennercharach, ther was nether accommodation, nether possible could be hade, for celebration of thee publick ordinances, wanting both manss and gleib, and therfor desyryng that thee minister might be licentiated to celebrat the ordinances, and that it may bie lawfull for the people to conveyin with him for that effect at the kirk of Cabrach, ay and whill convenient accommodation may be obtayned and promooved in some other centralc part of thie said parish; with thie which petition, thie Assemblie, beeing ryply advysed, and beeing satisfied with the reasonableness theroff, doe yield therunto, and licentiates thie said Mr. James Ross and the parishionerris forsaid, to repair to the said kirk of Cabrach, for thie ordinarie publick uorshipp, untill the tyme above expressed.

Anent thee processing of Mr. Jhon Row, Mr. Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Jhon Seaton, minister in Old Aberden, who have separated themselves from thee disciplin and government of this kirk to independencie, the Assemblie find it convenient that befor they enter into any strict course agaynst them, that some brethren bee appoynted to conferr with them, and to informe themselves what hopes may be intertaind of ther returning to thee bosome of this Church; and to that effect appoynted Mr. David Lyndesay, Mr. William Douglas, Mr. William Strachan, Mr. Robert Keeth, to conferr with them, and to make ther report to the Assemblie.

This day, a literall summons was given in, duely execute and indorsed, agaynst Mr. Andrew Ballanden; and hie, being lawfully called, comparred, and confessed that he had entered into thee exercis of thee ministerie in thie kirk of Drummoack, being a deposed minister, and that hie hade done the same by warrand from thie Englishers, in respect he was upon the independent and congregational course; yet, being brought to a sense and acknowledgmen of his error and oversight, was content, for satisfaction to thie Assemblie, to subscribe with his hand thie acknowledgmen and obligation, wheroff the tenour followes: I, Mr Andrew Ballanden, doe acknowledge that I have given most just offenss to thie Presbyterie of Aberden, Provinciall Synod theroff, and so to thie wholl

Church of Scotland, by my intruding of myselff, without any just or honest call, either from congregation or presbyterie, or any haweing interest in ane ecclesiastick and legall way, into thie exerceiss of thie ministerie at Drumoack; for thie which I crave God heartily pardon, and that you of the Presbyterie and Provinciall of Aberden wil bie pleased to superseed from any sentence agaynst mee; and obleidges myselff to deport myselff from this countrey, and never to returne to act any thing, nor exerceiss any part of thie ministeriall function heer or elsewhere, within thie province of Aberden, without a lawfull call from congregation, presbyterie, or provinciall, under the pane of excommunication, bee thess presentes subscrivit with my hand, at Aberden, the twentie one day of October, jai vic fiftie tuo yeris, befor witnessis, Mr. David Lindsay, minister at Bahelvy, Mr. Androw Strachan, minister at Kintor, Mr. Jhon Young, minister at Birrs, wreitter of these presents. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Androw Ballanden, Mr. David Lyndesay, witness, Mr. Androw Strachan, witness, Mr. Moir Young, wreitter and witness. And thie Assemblie ordayne thie Presbyterie of Aberden, upon the notoriety of his transgression of any part of the above wreitten band, to pronounce the sentence of excommunication agaynst him.

Session 4. Post Meridiem. Apryll 20, 1653.

After prayer, thie moderator haweing asked thie brethren appoynted for visiting thie registerris of thie severall presbyteries, if they or any of them werr readie to give a report, to quich the visitoris of the book of Turreff auned, that in thie said book, they hade found ane act reflecting upon a brother of the said presbyterie, viz., Mr. Arthur Mitchell, minister at Turreff, and bearing upon him great reproaches, contained, as they alleadge, in a paper given in bie thie said Mr. Arthur to the Presbyterie of Turreff, declared by them in ther act to bie full of lyes and calumnyes, for quich thie visitoris of thie book of Turreff sawe no ground in ther act: Wherupon the assemblie determined that thie mater should be taken to thie consideratione of a committie of thesse persones following, viz., Mr. David Lindsay, Mr. John Patersone, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Alexander Seaton, elder, Mr. Duncan Forbes, Mr. William Scrogie, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Andrew Strachan, George Meldrum, Alexander Uinchester, ruling elderris, who shall, God willing, meett at Turreff, upon the eighteint day of May nixt, with continuation of dayes; the quorum is appoynted to consist of any seven of the said commissionerris, who shall have power to try and determine finallie on thee said business, with power to the said quorum, or any two of the said commissionerris, to appoynt new dyettes anent the said business, thie place alwayes beeing the towne of Turreff.

Session 5th. Ante Meridiem. Apryll 21, 1653.

The visitoris of the Presbyterie Book of Dear haweing made ther report theranent, and thie mater being considered, thie book is approven, except in reference to ane act therin contained, of thie daitt December thie last, 1652, relaiting to tuo referres from thie Provinciall Assemblie in October, 1652, of which act the tenor followes :—Att Crimond, 1653, December the tent. Anent thie other tuo referres, wherin it is said to be recommended to thie brethren of severall presbyteries to have a care that no presbyterie or session admitt any to be memberris in presbyteries or sessiones, butt such as ar conforme in judgment and practise to the Kirk of Scotland and Generall Assemblies theroff, and conforme to the act of the late Generall Assemblie; secondlie, it is said also to bie recommended to thie severall presbyteries, that thie actes of the late Generall Assemblie at Edinburgh bie made use off and put in execution, as they uil bie anuserable, according to the tenor of thie saidis actes respectiuey. The presbyterie, after mature deliberation, finds thie saidis tuo recommendationes not onely unjust and sinfull in themselffes, as upon thie mater bearing a direct exclusion of all such from church judicatories as hade not gone along with the late course of defection, and leaning upon no better ground then the pretended authoritie of thie tuo late Assemblies at St. Andrewes 1651 and Edinburgh 1652, bot also that never any such thing was concluded in the provinciall assemblie, as the most part of the brethren of the presbyterie who hade been present at all the sessiones of thie assemblie doe perfectly remember, nether could any declare that they heard any such thing publicklye inacted, though they all werr severallie posed. Therfor, thie presbyterie findes themselffes obleidged in conscience (for preventing, so farr as in thie lyes, the corruption of kirk judicatories,) to putt the mater to ane exact tryall at the next provinciall, that it may bee knowne by what usurpatione the saidis tuo recommendationes have been insert among the referres extract by Mr. Alexander Seaton, minister at Banff, and Mr. Alexander Seatoun, younger, visitores of the book. This Assemblie, after long debate anent the said act, and the question beeing stated whether or no this Assemblie would owne these two challenged referres as actes judicallie passed in their Assemblie holden in October last, 1652, this affirmative was concluded by plurality of voyces; and sicklyke, this Assemblie taking to their consideration the forsaid act of this Presbyterie of Dear, and finding the same to contayne verie reproachfull and sinfull reflexiones upon the last two General Assemblies at St. Andrewes, Dundy, and Edinburgh, they did condemne this said act in all the heads, clauses, and articles thereof, wherunto the brethren underwreitten entered their protestation.

This Assemblie taking to their consideration that Mr. Jhon Forbes, minister at Kincardine, hes been found absent from this and diverss preceeding Assemblies, and that it was declared befor this Assemblie that the said Mr. Jhon was not satisfied with the present government of this Kirk, therfor the apostle appoyntes the Presbyterie of Kincardyne, with all convenient diligence, to visit the said kirk of Kincardyne, and to take exact tryall anent the doctrin, lyff, and conversation of the said Mr. Jhon Forbes, and to take notice how hie keeps the presbyteriall meetings, as also to informe themselves in everie thing concerning him in his ministeriall charge ther.

This book of Kincardine is approven.

Session 2d. Post Meridiem. October 18, 1653.

Anent the Laird of Craig beeing challenged for poperie, it is reported by the Presbyterie of Avfuir, that hie hade said that hie hade never been of our church, nether mynded to bie of our church; and it being found that this forsaid presbyterie had begunn to process him, this Assemblie recommendeth to them to insist and to proceed agaynst him, and report of their diligence to bie made at the next Provinciaall Assemblie.

Session 3d. October 19, 1653. Ante Meridiem.

Report of this book of the Presbyterie of Garioch:—Thee Assemblie, finding from the report of the visitoris of the Presbyterie Book of Garioch, that Mr. Andrew Logie, sometyme minister at Rayne, hade been summoned by the said presbyterie to appear befor this Provinciaall Assemblie, and to anser for his meddling with the ministeriall charge at Rayne, by baptizing children and marieing persones within the parish of Rayne, the said Mr. Androw beeing called, and compearing, was sharplie rebuked and inhibited in tyme coming to medle with the ministeriall charge or anie part theroff, whilk if he did, then and in that case thie Presbyterie of Garioch is ordayned to proceed agaynst him with thee highest censures of the Church; lykeas thie Assemblie ordaynes thie said Presbyterie of Garioch to concur with the heretoris, elderes, and othere of the parish of Rayne, in the plantation of that kirk upon the call already given to Mr. George Leith, minister at Bethelny, or, failzeing of him, to any other honest, able, and qualified man to whom the parishionerries forsaid shall give a call to the ministeriall charge ther: and in case any of the said parish shall give a call too, or supplicate for thee said Mr. Androw Logie to the ministeriall charge at Rayne, thee Assemblie ordaynes thie Presbyterie of Garioch to oppose and not to accept of any call or supplication for thee said Mr. Androw to the charge of the ministerie at Rayne. Lykeways, the Assemblie recommends to the Presbyterie of Garioch to take notice of those who did present the children to bie baptized by him, and off these who werr married by him, and to convey and censure them as the said presbyterie shall judge expedient, and inhibite them from doeing so in tyme coming.

Session 6th. Apryll 21, 1654. Ante Meridiem.

This day, anent a supplication presented to thie Assemblie by Elspet Forbes, in Peterhead, spous to George Garden, sometyme in Hopshill, shewing that Mr. Nathaniell Martine, minister at Peterhead, his proceeding with the censure of thie Church agaynst her for cohabiting with Androu Currie, her now married husband, upon pretenss that her first husband, George Garden, is yett liveing, the contrarie wheroff shie was credible informed of by thie report of diverss who have trauailed in England, whilk in hir esteem is thie more probable, threttein yeeris beeing expyred since his goeing abroad thither, enduring thie which tyme shie hade never heard from him either by word or wreitt, and therfor does supplicat thie Assemblie to wontchase a convenient time, either to evidence thee deceas of hir former husband, or then to obtaine a decreett of divorcement befor the judge competent. Which mater the Assemblie taking to ther consideration, doe assigne her thie first of November nixt, betuixt and the which tyme she must be diligent to evidence one of the premisses ; and becaus the death of the first husband is not yett cleirly evidenced, thie Assemblie ordaynes hir to separate from the said Androw Currie during the tyme above expressed ; and ordaynes Mr. Nathaniell Martine to surcease from any process agaynst her untill thie said first day of November nixt, except it be evidentlie found that shie has contravened thie appoyntment of thie Assemblie by cohabitation with the said Androw Currie within the said tyme.

The said day, anent ane appellation made by thee Erle of Erroll, and remanent heretoris, in the name of thie elderes and wholl congregation of the parish of Crimond, presented by William Watson of Haddo, and Mr. Alexander Hay, commissionated from the said congregation, which appellation is from the Presbyterie of Dear in reference to thie entering of Mr. William Hay, expectant, on his tryalls for the ministerie of the forsaid parish. Anent which appellation, the Presbyterie of Dear declared that they could not admitt the said Mr. William Hay to enter upon his tryalls in reference to the ministerie, becaus hie had not passed his tryalls as ane exspectant, nether had the people of that congregation heard him preach : wherupon thie Assemblie did requyre from the said Mr. William Hay, personallie present, if hie had brought testificates from reformed communities and churches of France, wher he had resided these eight yeiris bygone ; who did immediatly produce two famous testimonialls, one from Placeus, rector of the Universitie of Somerr, another from thie minister and session of Russificald. Which testimonialls beeing redd, Mr. Robert Keith did challenge them as not faithfull ; in which challenge he did instantly succumbe, thie saids testificates being declared honest and true. In reference to which groundless challenge, and upon ane verie earnest and pressing letter from the Erle of Erroll, desyring thie Assemblie that they would fall upon such an equall and fair way for enterring the said Mr. William Hay to his tryalls, and planting that kirk, as may best prevenin any contention which was lickle to aryse betuixt the presbyterie and parishionerres, in respect of diverse aprehended prejudices in that mater : Therfor, they did ordayne thie Presbyterie of Dear to enter upon the tryalls of the said Mr. William Hay as ane exspectant ; and, for eschewing of priedjudices above written, adjoynes Mr. Jhone Patersone, Mr. Ritchard Andersone, Mr. William Seaton at Logibuchan, Mr. Alexander Scrogie, Mr. William Jaffray, younger, Mr. Alexander Garden, to the said presbyterie, to concur with them as assessoris in thie tryalls of the said Mr. William; and ordaynes the Presbyterie of Dear to give tymous advertisment to thie forsaids assessores of ther severall meetings for that effect, and if the said presbyterie shall neglect to give tymous advertisment to the forsaidd assessoris, ordaynes Mr. Alexander Forbes to adverteiss them tymouslie. And siclyke ordaynes thee said Presbyterie of Dear not to proceid or intend thie planting of the said kirk with any other man till the said Mr. William his tryalls bie past, and hie found either qualified or not, in respect of his unanimous call to that charge. Agaynst which Mr. Robert Reid, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Duncane Forbes, Mr. William Ramsay, protested, for the reasones following: 1, Because to passe ane act ordayning a presbyterie to enter upon the tryalls of a young man within ther ounne bounds, in relation to the opening of his mouth, beeing a practise formerly unheard off, seemes to speak out ether some strange prejudice agaynst that presbyterie, or some uncouth designe in the mater, or both of these, especiallie seeing the said presbyterie did never deny to admitt the young man to tryalls simple in relation to thie opening of his mouth, bot still offerred to admitt him in that relation. 2, The prejudice against the presbyterie seemes to be more therby spoken out by thie adjoyning of thie assessoris, ane unheard off incroachment upon a presbyteries priviledges; as thie presbyterie can not think thie Provinciall Assemblie so uncharitable as to look upon them as needing help in thie tryall of young men; so they can not conjecture what can bie thie true reasone of this, if it be not because they think thie young man may be dealt too rigorously with for his difference of opinion from them (if it bie the ground,) is a groundless prejudice, nor can any thing flowing from such a principle bie admitted by thie presbyterie, leist it should seem to be a taking with the challenge. 3, Thie third part of the said ordinance can not bie closed with, because it is a preparative never before passed (for any thing is knowne) that a presbyterie should be tyed so farr, to accept such ane unorderly call of a man uncapable for thie tyme, as to be obleidged not to proceed to the plantation of that kirk till that man wer tryed: as to the alleadged ground of this ordinance (to witt, the unanimous call given to Mr. William Hay), this presbyterie hes already made it appear, by ther anseres to the paperes from Crimond, that there was never yett any orderly and unanimous call of thie parish presented yett or seen by them. Besides that, though there had been such a call, it could not have been taken off ther hands for a man incapable of such a call for thie present, according to the actes of this Church; all quich was clerly held out befor the Provinciaall Assembly by thie Presbytery of Dear in their paperes and debates to that purposs. For these reasones, and otherres to bie added, in tyme and place convenient, thie persones above mentioned have dissented from, and protested agaynst, the said act, as is forsaid; as also, that they bie not tyed, by reason therof, to consent to, or admit of, any preparative towards the infringeing of ther owne libertyes, except during ther oune pleasure; and that thir presents be putt upon record ad futuram rei memoriam; and that the persones protesting may have authentik extractes from thie clerk, as they shall find need. In witness quherof, thir presentes ar subscrievd by Mr. Robert Keyth, in name and at desyr of the rest. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Robert Keith. Agaynst which protestation forsaid, Mr. Alexander Forbes and Mr. Jhon Robertstone, memberres of the said Presbytery of Dear, entered ther disassent, and desyred to be put upon record.

The Assemblie perceaving the greatt heatt, splen, and differences betuixt Mr. Arthur Mitchell, minister at Turreff, and thie wholl Presbyterie of Turreff, as also that great differences betuixt the Presbyterie of Dear and thie most part of thee parishionerres of Auchredy, wherby ther was no probability of a peaceable setling of a minister in that congregation, therefor at the next Provinciaall Assemblie, Mr. Arthur Mitchell, minister at Turreff, and that congregation, is annexed to the Presbyterie of Dear, and thie congregation of Auchready to the Presbyterie of Turreff; agaynst the second part of the which ordinance, quich thie Assemblie conceived to bie the most peaceable overture for composing and eschewing farther differences and bad consequences, Mr Robert Keith, Mr. Duncan Forbess, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Williame Ramesay, Jhon Irving of Brucklay. Alexander Lumsden of Elsick, protested, bot all the remanent heretoriss, elderres, and parishionerres of Auchredy, did adhere to the said orlinance.

Session 8th. Apryll 21, 1654.

This day, Mr. Andrew Cant, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Nathaniell Martynne, &c., whose names ar underwreitten, did offer a paper of fyve sheetts, which they called a remonstrance agaynst the defection of those in the Church of Scotland who did owne the last tuo Generall Assemblies, and a representation of the corrupt procedour of this Assemblie, as they alleadge and desyred the same to be redd and putt upon record. Thee Assemblie declared that they were willing to receave ther paper, and putt the same upon record, onely shew that they would hardly condescend to the present reading theroff, it beeing a paper so large and of so great contrivinges, wherin so many brethren be south us hade hade speciall hand, and which was send from them as thie Assemblie werr credible informed, except what was added in the closure therof relating to the actinges of the present Assemblie : And becaus of thie greatt confluence both of countrey puple and strangerres ther and then present, who might conceive prejudice agaynst the wholl Church of Scotland, and render ther wayes invidious to those who have the power for the tyme, and particularly might strick agaynst the procedur of this Assemblie. Notwithstanding the dissenting brethren forsaid so vehementlie pressed the present reading theroff (whill, as thie Assemblie hade no paper in readinesse for the present to anser ther too, being surprysed therwith on a suddain), that they professed and allowed often and diverss tymes, with many threathning and reproachfull speeches, that the Assemblie should gett libertie to act on nothing till it werr first redd : And if thie Assemblie would not condescend, it should bie redd whether they would or not, in end least thie forsaid brethren, or any that werr ther present, should conceive that thie said paper did contayne any thing unanserable, either in poynt of reasone or fact, thie Assemblie did give way to the reading theroff, with this speciall protestation, that all the hearerres should think and conceive of the same as a meer noyse and emptie sound of words, till the Assemblie should give a full anser therunto in wreitt. And the Assemblie being presently to dissolve, appoynts Mr. Jhon Patersonne, Mr. William Douglas, professor, Mr. James Chalmer, Mr. Andrew Strachan, Mr. William Keith, Mr. William Scrogie, Mr. Adam Barclay, moderator, to meett after the dissolving of the Assemble, and to draw upp ane anser to the said paper, which is to be presented at the first session of the nixt

Assemble, and beeing publicklye redd then and approven, to bie putt upon record, ad futuram rei memoriam.

Session 4th. October 18, Wesdensday, 1654. Post Meridiem.

This Assemblie taking to ther consideration thie act of the former Assemblie, anent thie annexation of thie parish of Turreff to the Presbyterie of Dear, and of the parish of Auchredy to the Presbyterie of Turreff, which endured onely to this Assembly. It bieing found that thie forsaid annexationes hade not produced the desyred and intended fruits and effectes, bot that the Presbyterie of Dear hade studied to take possession of a power and jurisdiction ovir the parish of Turreff, and withall kepted thesselfes in possession of ther former power ovir the congregation of Auchredy, quharas thie act of annexation was copulative, and protested agaynst at the last Assembly by the Presbyterie of Turreff, unless that it werr copulative and provisionall, that is to say, that if thie parish of Auchredy would not submitt to the jurisdiction of the Presbyterie of Turreff, they would retayne ther former jurisdiction over the parish of Turreff, thie Assemblie, after muture deliberation, rescindes thie former act, and declares it voyd in tyme comeing. Agaynst quhich reannexation of thie parish of Turreff to thie Presbyterie of Turreff, Mr. Arthur Mitchell, minister of Turreff, in his owne name, and in name of the session of Turreff, and such of that congregation as would adhere, did dissent, protesting agaynst the forsaid act, and afterwards send in wreitt thie reasones of ther dissent, together with ane act of the session of Turreff.

Session 2d. Post Meridiem. May 6, 1656.

Anent a supplication presented by Mr. Androw Logie, sometyme minister at Rayne, bearing that hie was justlie deposed by the Generall Assemblie, 1643, for diverss points layd to his charge, the quhich guiltiness he does now humblie acknowledge, and desyres to repent for the same; as lykeways that he does acknowledge thie equitie and justice of the said sentence. And the said Mr. Androw in the said supplication, humblie desyryng that this reverend Assemblie would be pleased to look upon him as desyrus to edifie Gods people, and for that end his mouth might be opened to preach the gospell. Thie Assemblie, taking the said supplication to ther consideration, ordaynes thie Presbyterie of Garioch to meett at thie kirk of Rayne upon such a day as they shall appoint, with thie first conveniency; and that the said Mr. Androw shall, in thie face of thie congregation at Rayne, stand upp and acknowledge the equitie of his sentence, and that he is sorie for giving offense to thie Kirk of Scotland; and therupon to open his mouth as ane expectant only.

Session 5th. Ante Meridiem. May 8, 1656.

Thie said day, compeared Mr. Thomas Gray, provost of Aberdeen, George Morisone, late provost therof, and Robert Forbes, present bailiey of thie said burgh, Robert Smith, master of thie Kirk Work, and some otheres commissioned from thie Councell of Aberdeen, in ther owne names and in name of thie communitie of thie said burgh, and gave in ane petition under ther hands, in name forsaid, desyring thie Assemblie to cognosce and determine in thie materr of ane appeall maid by them from thie Presbyterie of Aberden to this synod, and anent ane protestation made by them agaynst ane act made by Mr. Androw Cant in thie session of Aberdeen, contayning (as they alleadged) diverss innovations and encroachments upon thie christian liberties of thie congregation; and desyred the forsaid appeall and protestation, and dывerss other paperes relating therunto, to be presently redd, cognosced upon, and determined; which supplication beeing redd, thie partie petitioning beeing remoooved, thie Assemblie judged it convenient, befor they should enterr upon any legall discusse in thie said business, to essey ane amicable composure of thie differences betuixt thie said petitioneres and thie said Mr. Androw Cant and session forsaid, therfor they did ordayne Mr. David Lyndesay, Mr. Jhon Patersone, Mr. Alexander Seaton at Banff, Mr. Androw Strachan, Mr. William Douglass, Mr. Alexander Scrogie, Mr. William Guild, Mr. Alexander Garden, Mr. Gilbert Andersone, James Ogilvy of Ragall, ruling elder, to meett in thie session house at tuo afternoone, to mediate ane reconciliation and to take away thie forsaid differences, to thie which peaceable overture thie commissioners of Aberdeen above wriitten did most willinglie acquiesce. Lykeas, tuo brethren beeing sent from thie Assemblie to Mr. Androw Cant's house did acquaynt him of thie conference, and tyme and place theroff, received ane anser from him that he was content to attend it.

Session 6th. Post Meridiem. May 8, 1656.

After prayer hade, this day, thie brethren appoynted for the conference betuixt thie provost, bailzies, and councill of Aberdeen, and Mr. Androw Cant, and session theroff, reported that thie commissionerres of thee burgh off Aberdeen above expressed did meett in thie sessione house at thie tyme appoynted, and werr readie with them to have gone on in a freindlie conference with thie said Mr. Androw and his session, butt that nether the said Mr. Androw, nor any from thie session, did countenance thee said meeting. Thie Assemblie judged it ther ducty to proceed in thee trying and determining doctrinallie, at least, anent thie saids presentes novationes, and to discusse the appeal. And accordinglie, haweing heard thee said appeal and protestation above wreitten, and other paperres relateing to that business, tuisse redd, and haweing called befor upon Mr. Androw Cant, or any in his name, or in thie name of thie session, as commissioner from them to appear in that cause: Whill as thie Assemblie was going about the trying of that mater in a most sober, peaceable, and tender way, they werr commanded peremptorily by ane officiar from the commander in cheife within the towne, to desist from meddling any more in that business, or otherwise to ruse; upon which motion thie Assemblie waved thie business, and layd it asyde to a more convenient tyme.

Session 2d. Post Meridiem. Apryll 21, 1657.

Anent the profanation of thie Sabbath by salmound fishing on Dye and Done, it is found that the same in some measer is restrayned, butt not fullie, for quhich cause the Presbyterie of Aberdeen is ordayned to use thie discipline of thie church agaynst transgressores in that business, and to deall effectuallie with the justiciaries of peace for curbing the same by ther authority.

Anent Mr. Androw Logie, sometyme minister at Rayne, thie Presbyterie of Garioch ar appoynted to hawe ane watchfull ey over him, and to look exactly to his conversation ; and if they shall find him walking unusuitable to his former professiones of repentance, to censur him corringlie.

Session 3d. Apryll 22, 1657. Ante Meridiem.

Overtures for ane Union betuixt thie Provinciall Assemblie off Aberdeen and thie dissenting brethren within this province.

This Provinciall Assemblie, laying to ther deepest and most serious consideration thie sadd and lamentable effectes which thie divisiones and rapture of thie church have produced these few yeares bygone, to thie strengthening of thie hands of wicked men, enemyes to trueth and reformation, and to the weighting and afficting of the spirites of thie godlie, who have been groaning under that woefull vreath, and looking for a day of healling : And more particularlie, casting ther eyes back upon the disorderres and confusions which thie publick differences have produced in this Synod, to thee great offense and stumbling of thie Lord's people in this corner of thie land, have resolved, in order to peace, and for cementing and soulderring together of this distracted and disjoyned Assemblie, that we and our brethren may sitt and act together joyntlie, in all materres ecclesiastick, for the advanceing of trueth, holiness, and peace, both amongst ourselfes and thie Lords people under our severall charges, not to search in a censorious way, nor to rype upp and reflect upon any heatt, splen, prejudices mistakes, and disorderres, which have fallen out in our former meettinges, butt burying all these personall overreachings in oblivion, that in tyme coming ther may bie ane harmony and more brotherly understanding amongst us, have unanimously, on our partes, concluded to offerr, lykeas wee doe offerr to our dissenting brethren thie overtures following :

1. First, we ar content, in order to peace and agriement with our brethren, to lay asyde, and not to medle with, thie publick differences, nor any branch theroff ; reserving all wayes thie freedome of our judgment anent thie constitution and authoritie of the tuo late Generall Assemblies at St. Andrewes, Dundy, and Edinburgh respectiue, and anent thie publick resolutiones. Lykeas wie desyr the samen of our brethren, reserving to them thie libertie of ther judgment anent the said resolutiones and Generall Assemblies, and anent ther declinaturs and protestationes agaynst them. So that wie ar content that none of these thinges bie once named amongst us in order to any debate, contest, or censur.

2. Secondlie, we ar content, in order to peace, to take off, lykeas wie heerby, for the end forsaid, wie doe take off any restraynt which hath been by this synod upon any presbytery within the same, or putt by any presbyterie within its own boundes upon itself agaynst thie entering to thie ministerie of any cxspectant, transplanted minister, or elder. upon thee accompt of thie publick differences, or for ther judgment anent this declinations and protestationes forsaid; and that no such bounds or restraint, for this tyme to come, shall be layed on by this synode, or any presbyterie within its bounds; reserving, as befor, this freedome, libertie, and authoritie of the tuo last Generall Assemblies, and ther actes theranent. And wie shall not putt any of those actes to execution, for peace sake: provyding alwayes that none be enterred to the ministerie, nor any office in Gods house within this province, who ar not orthodoxe, and off a sound judgment anent Presbyteriall government, in this due authoritative subordination of inferiour church judicatories to higher ecclesiastick judicatories, according to this covenants and actes of Generall Assemblies befor our late differences did aryse.

3. Thirdlie, wie ar content, iff our brethren return and sitt with us in our Assemblies as memberres theroff, that, iff it shall happen any particular differences to aryse amongst us about ecclesiastick differences, relating properly to this provinciall, or any presbyterie, or congregation, or person therein, that this saids materres shall be discussed in a brotherly, peaceable, grave way, without any reflexiones (which are unbeseeing this preachers of peace); and that this synod shall give formall sentence in this saids particulares, according to the word of God and actes of uncontroverted Generall Assemblies. And, iff any of the Assemblies shall apprehend themselves greived by any such sentence so judged, then, and in that case, it shall not bie lawfull for any minister or member, or presbyterie, or partie in this Assemblies, to declyne or separate from this Assemblies, but modestly to enter his or her dissent, protestation, or appeal. But the mater judged in to stand so, till it bie reduced or rectified, or made voyd, by ane superiour church judicatorie, or by a succeeding Provinciall Assemblies.

4. Fourthlie, wee desyr that there bie no encroachment made by any presbyterie, or minister, or elderres amongst our dissenting brethren upon this just power and libertie of christian congregations in this call of ther ministeres, nor upon this just authoritie and jurisdiction off presbyteries and synods in this entrie of ministeres to ther offices and benefices, nor upon any other presbyterie, or member thairoff, contrarie to this established lawes and practise of this church, and to this actes of Generall Assemblies befor our late differences did aryse. Lykeas we promeyse this lyke on our part.

siderred, werr approven unanimously (except Mr. Adam Barclay, younger, who did enter his dissent), and, by a public vote of thie synod, ordayned to bie thie basis and foundation off this present union weth our brethren ; with which ordinance and concessiones above written, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Alexander Cant, Mr. Robert Cheyne, Mr. George Watsone, Mr. Androw Abercrombie, as representing and haweing commission from ther remanent brethren, bieing personallie present, werr fullie satisfied, and acquiesced thertoo, and accordinglie did presentlie joyne and sitt as members of thie Assemblie.

Session 4th. Wesdensday, Post Meridiem. Apryll 22, 1657.

This said day, thie Assemblie takeing to ther consideration thie differences betuixt the Presbyterie of Turreff and Mr. Arthur Mitchell, and how necessarie it was to take tryall off, and to settle thie controversies betuixt thie forsaid presbyterie and thie said Mr. Arthur, did nominate Mr. Jhon Patersone, Mr. William Douglas, Mr. Androw Strachan, Mr. Alexander Cant, Mr. William Seaton, younger, Mr. George Garden, Mr. Robert Cheyne, Mr. Alexander Midltoun, Mr. Alexander Swann, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, Mr. Arthur Forbes, Mr. William and Mr. James Chalmeres, Mr. Alexander Scrogie, Mr. Alexander Garden, Mr. David Lyndesay, Mr. Gilbert Andersone, George Meldrum, Mr. Jhon Abercrombie, and William Gordounn of Lesmore, ruleing elderres, to meett at Turreff upon the first Wesdensday of Junii nixt, bie ten houres in thie morning, with power to them to adjourne thie meeting in respect of tyme and place as they shall find necessarie ; giveing and granting to thie said brethren and ruleing elderres, or any eleven of them (who ar heerby declared to bie a quorum), full power and commission to try, cognosce, and to give finall sentence in all thie particular controversies and differences betuixt thie said presbyterie and Mr. Arthur Mitchell, particularlie concerning ane act registrat in thie Presbyterie Book off Turreff agaynst thie said Mr. Arthur as a calumniator, as also anent thie processe and deposition off Mr. Jhon Lasone, schoolmaster at Turreff, as also anent the process and excommunication off William Hendersone in Auchredy, and generallie, to close and finallie determine all other differences betuixt the forsaid presbyterie and Mr. Arthur Mitchell, according to the Word off God and actes of Generall Assemblies befor our late differences did aryse, and to bie anserable in thie wholl procedure to thie nixt Provinciaill Assemblie ; as lykewayes, thie Assemblie gives power to thie forsaid brethren and ruling elderres or to a quorum of them, as said is, to take cognition of thee supplication presented by Mr. Thomas Thores, for opening of his mouth as ane expectant, and, if they did see just and evident grounds, to open thie said Mr. Thomas mouth as ane expectant. Lykewayes, thie Assemblie did recommend to thee forsaid brethren to deall effectuallie with thie Laird of Fedderate, and some otheres of thie parish of Auchredy, that they would bie pleased to acknowledge and accept off Mr. Gilbert Clerk as ther lawfull minister, that so his ministerie might bie thie more peaceable and comfortable ; and thie Assemblie ordaynes Mr. William Douglas, Professor off Divinity, to preach at the said meeting.

Thie said day, Mr. Alexander Scrogie, who was commissioned by thie former Assemblie to goe to Edinburgh, and ther to represent to thie Counsell of Estate thee increase of poprie within this province, and to deall effectuallie with them to take speedie course for repressing of poperie heer, did declare befor thie Assemblie, that, seeing thie counsell at Edinburgh was takeing (as appeares) exact course theranent, he was advysed by dyverss of thie gravest and wysest of thie ministerie to delay his overgoeing till this Assembly. Thie Assemblie, haweing heard and consideredd thie tenor of this his report, werr well satisfied theruith, and discharged thie sending over of him or of any other commissioner to the counsell in order to thie repressing of poperie, till they should sie what effectes ther actes lately made agaynst papists should take.

Session 3d. Ante Meridiem. October 22, 1657.

After prayer hade, thie Assemblie ordaynes that Mr. Jhone Paterson, Mr. William Douglas, Mr. Androw Strachan, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Ludovick Dunlopp, Mr. Alexander Swann, attend the next meeting of the justiciars of peace, that course may bie taken for obtayning so much of penyaltes as belongs to the Church's part.

This said day, thie commissionerres from thie parish of Crimound did present to thie Provinciaall Assemblie off Aberdeen a complaint and supplication agaynst Mr. Jhon Stewart, bearing that ther minister, Mr. William Hay, was interrupted and hinderred by him in thie discharging of his ministeriall charge at thie kirk of Crimound. Thee Assemblie after hearing, reaseoning, and debaiting off thee forsaid business for thie space off tuo or thrie houres, and a full hearing off all parties interested, finding it manifestlie notour that the said Mr. Jhon Stewart complayned upon was guiltie off ane unparalleled intrusion upon thie said congregation off Crimound and upon ther minister, William Hay, thie said Mr. Jhon haweing no lawfull calling to that charge, butt studyeing to keep himselff in his forsaid vsurpation over that parish by misrepresenting thie said mater to his Highnes Councill in Scotland and to thie civill judicatories, which misrepresentationes shall bie made out befor his Highnes Councill in tyme and place convenient, when they shall bie called for; as also, thie Assemblie taking to consideration thie long continued sufferinges of that people by thie said Mr. Jhon and thie Presbyterie of Deer, his abettors, as shall bie made manifest in tyme, when they shall bie called for: Therfor, thie Assemblie does declar thie said Mr. Jhon ane intruder upon thie said congregation, and ordaynes him to desist from thie exerceiss of thie ministerie and all thie exerceiss theroff within thie said congregation of Crimound from this day foreward; and that under thie pain off deposition in case off his transgression off this present act Agaynst which ordinance, Mr. Robert Keith, Mr. Androw Cant, Mr. Alexander Cant, Mr. Duncan Forbes, Mr. Arthur Mitchell, Mr. Robert Cheyne, Mr. George Watsone, entered ther dissent. of this bill challenging him off fornication unsatisfied for ; lykeas Mr. Robert Keith protested, and appealed to thie next frie Generall Assemblie.

Session 7th. October 23, 1657. Ante Meridiem.

The said day, Mr. Adam Barclay, younger, minister at the kirk of Kinbetrock, did offerr to the Assemblie ane supplication, quhilk had been given in to the Presbyterie of Awfuird formerly, subseryved by a number of the elderes off Kinbetrock, desyring liberty to erect and establish one to read the Scriptures in thie face of that congregation Sabbathlie before sermon, backed with a number of alleadged reasones, quhilk the Presbyterie of Awfuird had referred to this Assemblie, together with a procuratorie granted bie thie said elderes to thie said Mr. Adam Barclay, ther minister, giving to him full power, in ther vice and stead, to present and vrge thie said supplication before thie Assemblie : Quhilk was at first by thie Assemblie altogether repelled, not granting libertie to read it, as beeing impertinent for thie Provinciall Assemblie, as contayning that quhilk is contrarie to thie mynd and ordinance of the Generall Assemblie ; yett afterwards, it beeing much pressed by some of thie Assemblie that the said supplication might bee redd, that they might hear quhat it did containe, ther desyr was granted, and thee supplication redd, wherwith thie Assemblie was much displeasd, and ordayned that no minister uithin the province should sufferr this or any such innovation gett any way uithin ther severall congregations, but that thie directorie for worshippe established by thie Generall Assemblie bie observed in all poyntes, under the pain of censur.

This Assemblie haweing heard Mr. Adam Barclay, younger, utter, in face off thie Assemblie, some speiches agaynst Mr. Alexander Cant, and taking offense therat, did sharplie rebuke the said Mr. Adam, and gravely admonished him to stryve agaynst humor and heat. The said Mr. Adam humbly revered thee judgment off thie Assemblie theranont, and craved them and thie said Mr. Alexander Cant pardon.

The Provinciall Assemblie of Aberdeen haweing, upon verie just, releuant, and conscientious groundes, convicted Mr. Jhon Stewart guiltie off a most unparalleled intrusion upon the congregation of Crimound, and ther minister, Mr. William Hay, and haweing commanded thie said Mr. Jhon to desist from the forsaid intrusion in all tyme comeing, under thie pain of deposition, did judge it convenient for thie undeceiving of his Highnes Councill of Scotland, and off other civil judicatories to whom thie said mater hath been already misrepresented, and for cleiring and vindicating ther proceedinges therein from any future misrepresentation, and for testifieing the synods report to his Hignes Councill, and other civill judicatories, and that thie Assemblie hath not rubt in the least measure upon any order issued from them anent thie forsaid business, and for vindicateing of trueth, preserving of the christiane libertie of congregationes, and for stopping such a dangerous prescident, which may overturne thie government of this national Church in thie entrie of ministers to ther office and benefice, to send a commissioner for the effect above wriitten : therfor the Provinciall Assemblie does heerby commissionat and impower ther reverend brother, Mr. James Chalmer, minister of the gospell at Cullen, to appear befor his Highness Councill of Scotland, or any other judicatorie befor whom thie said business shall come, and, in ther name, to informe, reasone, and to offerr everie other thing necessarie for cleiring off thie said business, quhilk thie Provinciall Assemblie could have done being ther present themselffes, and to hold firm and stable his present commission.

The said day, thie committee appoynted by thie former Assemblie for setling thie differences betuixt the Presbyterie of Turreff and Mr. Arthur Mitchell, minister at Turreff, in all the particulars, whilk ar containyd at length in thie commission granted to them by thie said Assemblie, being called to give ane accompt of ther diligence, ansered, that they had kept thrie diverss meetinges for that effect, one at Turreff, another at Tarvass, thie third at Ellon ; and yett, the debaites and differences beeing long, and sometymes wanting a quorum, they had not as yett concluded any thing, although they had brought these debaites a greatt length towards agriement : therfor the Assemblie ordayne, for peace sake, to wave any further procedour theranent, till thie next Assemblie, till which tyme all thie forsaid particulars should continue in eodem statu quo prius.

Session 3d. Ante Meridiem. April 21, 1658.

The said day, ane humble supplication from thie Universitie of Old

Aberdein, under the handes of thie principall, civelist, professor of medicine, sub principall, humanist, and regentes theroff, was presented to this Assemblie, shewing, that they, being verie sensible off ther great straitning, and want of due accomodation, for ther students, as also haweing in thie north east quarter off thie said universitie ane unsure and unseemely patent place, hade resolved (God willing) to close it upp with a new fabrick already begun and goeing on daylie; and, becaus the said new fabrick will call for vast charges farr beyond ther present power to reach; and, except thie Lord moove thie heartes off favourers off pietie and learning to commiserate ther house, a seminarie off both these, and a nurserie both for church and state, and to contribute with them some considerable charitable supplie for promooving of so laudable and profitable ane undertaking, it may certainly bie feared to runn verie neer to thie ruine of that ancient and famous seed plott: therfor they humblie supplicate, and earnestly intreat ther honours and wisdomes of this reverend Assemblie to contribute with them such charitable supplie, for thie advancing off that abovesaid fabrick, as thie Lord shall moove ther hearts to bestow upon so necessarie, so pious, and so good a work, everie one of them nameing (as some others have done) his owne charitable contribution, that they may hawe thie list of all under thie clerks hand; and that they may bie favorablie pleased each of them to assist ther respective commissioners in thie ensueing vacancie, in obtayning such charitable supplie from noblemen, baronss, gentlemen, wedsetters, and all heretoris whatsomeuer, within ther respective parishes, as thie Lord shall moove their hearts to bestow; and that after preymonition they obtayne a collection from thie commons, in ther severall respective parishes, for the above said use. Thee Assemblie, haweing at length heard, and taken to ther grave consideration, thee said supplication, does heartily and unanimously accept of thie same; and, haweing caused ther clerk call upon thie severall ministeres present at this Assemblie, students of divinitie, and ruling elders, everie one did name his owne charitable contribution, as thie paper contayning everie on his charitable contribution at length beares, and to hawe ther severall contributions in readiness at the next Assemblie.

Session 6th. Post Meridiem. Thursday, Apryll 22, 1658.

After prayer hade, a supplication being given in by thie burgh of Peterhead for a charitable contribution for thie helping to put upp thie bulwark of ther south and north harbours of that sea port, utterly demolished by the extraordinarie storm in December, 1655; and thie redificeing theroff being of so much concernment for thie good of thie country, and tending so much to thie preservation of ther shippes, goods, and lyves of many persones, thie Assemblie, takeing to ther consideration the necessitie of thie work, and that it is above the power of thie towne to performe it, recommendes thie said business to thie charitable contributions of thee severall ministers, barons, comons, and others, and that thie ministers of this province shall deall effectuellie with them therin.

Anent the Lady Meldrum, Anna Crightoun, relict of umquhill William Seatoun of Meldrum, who is maryed with George Ogilvy, ane excommunicate papist, and by a preist, as is alleadged, thie Assemblie ordaynees thee Presbyterie of Garioch to process the said Anna Crightoun for her scandalous cohabitation with thie said George Ogilvy, and for unlawfull alleadged marriage.

Session 2d. Post Meridiem. October 18, 1658.

Anent Lord Charles Gordoun, thie Assemblie appoyntes Mr. William Douglas, moderator, Mr. Jhon Patersone, Mr. Jhon Menzes, Mr. James Chalmer, and so many brethren of thie Presbyterie off Kincardyne, as they shall think fitt to joyne with them, to conferr with thie said Lord Charles anent his relligion, and that thie place of meetting and conferring with him shall bie in his oune choyse, either in Aberdeen or elsequhair, he being advertised; and that thie forsaides brethren be ready to give ane accompt of ther diligence at the next Assembly.

Session 4th. October 19, 1658. Post Meridiem.

This said day, Mr. Jhon Patersone, late moderator, produced a letter from his Highness Councill of Scotland, desyring that Mr. Jhon Stewart, and Mr. William Hay, minister at Crimound, might be planted elsequhair, that ther might bie a third able godlie minister planted at Crimound, upon thie call of thie congregation ther, which letter beeing seriouslie thought upon by thee Synode, they did in obedience thertoo, and for peace's sake, make offerr to thie Presbyterie of Deer, that thie church of Deer should bee presentlie declared vacant, that so thie congregation might proceed to call a third to bie ther minister, resolving to cast over Mr. William Hay upon the providence of God, albeit lawfullie called and admitted to that congregation: For thie Assemblie judged it a greatt burden upon that people to keep them longer in a starving condition in reference to Gospell ordinances, for they knew not how long it might bie befor Mr. Jhon Stewart could have a call to any place, in respect of his intrusion upon the parochyne of Crimound, and of his open contempt of the authoritie of the Synod. This peaceable and rationall overturè beeing much pressed upon thie Presbyterie of Deer, they did peremptorily refuse thie same: Wher upon thie Assemblie found them ingaidged to proceed agaynst thie said Mr. Jhon Stewart, for thie vindication and maintenance of ther oune authority; and thie Assemblie beeing credible informed that thee said Mr. Jhon Stewart was either absent of purpose, or lurking within the towne of Aberdeen, to eschew the censure of thee Syond, thie Assemblie knowing it to be abundantly notour that thie said Mr. Jhon Stewart hade transgressed ther former act most proudly, avowedly, and contemptuously, by constant preaching at the kirk of Crimound since ther forsaid act, to fyve or sex inconsiderable persons within the parish of Crimound, whill as thie wholl body of the people was forced many tymes to waitt on publick ordinances in thee open air, did depose, and doth heerby depose, the said Mr. Jhon Stewart from the ministerie in all thee parts theroff, and commanded him to forbear, hinc inde, to exerceiss any part of thee ministeriall calling, under thee pain of excommunication. Immediatly after thee pronouncing of which sentence, Mr. Jhon Stewart appearing in thie Assemblie, as it would seem from his skoulking, thee moderator did intimate thee forsaid sentence unto him, beeing personallie present, which sentence thee said Mr. Jhon did take most proudly and contemptuously, and did avow in thie face of thie Synod that hie would disobey thie forsaid sentence; agaynst which act of deposition Mr. Robert Keyth, Mr. Nathaniell Martyne, and some other protestators, entered ther verball protestation, promising uithin ten dayes to give in ther protestation in wreitt to thie moderator or clerk, contayning reasones theroff.

Session 2d. Tuysday, Apryll 19, 1659. Post Meridiem.

Anent Walter Ogilvy his marriage with Anna Gordoun above mentioned, thie Assemblie ordayne, that in respect of a letter from thie Presbyterie off Fordyce to the Presbyterie of Gareoch anent thie said mariage, that the tuo forsaid presbyteries shall meett and take course theranent, and give ane accompt off ther diligence to the next Assemblie.

Session 4th. Apryll 20, 1659, Wesdensday. Post Meridien.

The grounds and reasons of Mr. Jhon Patersons call to bie minister at Aberdeen, represented to thie reverend brethren off thie Provinciall Assemblie of Aberdeen, convened at thie Kings Colledge in Old Aberdeen, the nyntent day off Apryll, 1659 years.

The said Mr. Jhon Paterson was called to bie minister of Aberdeen bie consent off thie wholl inhabitants of thie said burgh and people of this congregation, viz., bie thie provost, bailies, counsell, and community, as thie severall acts off counsell and toune, bearing thie samen doe sufficiently instruct; and at thie tyme of thie wholl people ther call, ther werr convened many hundreds of peple of all sortes, and all in one voyce did consent, except onely our reverend pastor, Mr. Androw Cant, who, without any just reasone yett knowne to us, though oft requyred, can not be induced to give his consent to thie said call, but oppones thie same, and hes not ceased since that tyme to reflect upon thie persone called. Wee conceive his call ought not to be refused by thie Presbyterie of Aberdeen, it bieing grounded both upon commone reasone, equitie, and law, bicaus, when thie peple are destitute of ane pastor, it is ther duety and priviledge to desyr and fall upon ane fitt and able persone who may give them contentment; and haweing all respect to thie ecclesiastical judicatories, and nowayes to derogat any thing from them to supplicate the brethren of the presbyterie that they would approve of ther choyse, and goe on in thie ordinarie way for obtayning thie persone nominate to bie ther minister; and seeing the toune off Aberdeen have been so tender and so observant of the presbyterian way and present order of thie Church of Scotland, it is our desyr that in these tymes of different judgments they bie not discouraged, and gett noe just ocasion to startle as others doe; and this povir off nomination by thie people hes been observed in this burgh since evir it was in capacitie to hawe ministers off thie Gospell, yea, without any respect or relation to ane right of patronage which may bie alleaged to hawe been taken away bie thie late acts off Parliament and Assemblies, which is cleer by thie call off Mr. Androw Cant and othirs since his entrie; as also, wie hawe this bie our greatt charter granted by the supreme authorities to this burgh. We shall only mention the last charter granted in anno 1638, the words whereof relating to this purpose are: Et quia ecclesie Sancti Nicolai vetus et nova, ecclesia Franciscanorum, ecclesia collegiata vocat. capella Sancte Catharine, capella Sancti Niniani super montem castris, capella Sancti Clementis, ecclesia de Futtie nuncupat. infra dictum burgum nostrum de Aberden, libertatem et territorium ejusdem jacen. ad quas ecclesias capellanas dict. prepositus, balivi, senatus et communitas ejusdem burgi nostri sui que predecessores omnibus temporibus retro actis quando vacare contigerint ministros et capellanos elegere presentare nominare et providere solebant et illis persolvere stipendia (nulla alia stipendia nec victus habentes). Igitur pro causis supra scriptis nos cum consensu predict. ratificamus approbamus et hac presenti carta nostra confirmamus, tenore ejusdem ratificamus, approbamus ac pro nobis nostrisque successoribus pro perpetuo confirmamus antedict. usum consuetudinem et possessionem, que dictus prepositus Balivi senatus et communitas dicti burgi nostri sui que predecessores in eligendo nominando presentando et providendo ministros et capellanos antedictis ecclesiis et capellis, et capellaneis eorundem quando vacare contigerint Et volumus concedimus proque nobis nostrisque successoribus pro perpetuo decernimus et ordinamus, quod dicti prepositus, Balivi, senatus et communitas dicti nostri burgi de Aberden sui que successores omnibus temporibus affuturis antedict. privilegium usum et consuetudinem observabunt et exercebunt et in futurum ut in temporibus retroactis in eorum jure et possessione hujusmodi permanent atque ministros capellanos aliasque personas ad curam serviendi predictas ecclesias et capellas in futurum ut in temporibus preteritis eligent presentabunt nominabunt et providebunt, absque ullo impedimento, molestia, perturbacione vel contradictione Et volumus et ordinamus ut episcopus Abredonensis et ordinarius pro tempore recipiat et admittat ministros et personas per dict. prepositum balivos et senatum dicti burgi nostri suosque successores eligendos, nominandos et presentandos in et ad ecclesias et capellas servitium eorundem et functionem aptos et qualificados existen. et illis institutionem et collationem si opus fuerit in debita forma absque obstaculo seu impedimento quocunque desuper dabit. Ratified in Parliament anno 1645, which are without any expression of patronage or right thereof, but only giving the nomination to the people. This is also conforme to the book of discipline, giving the nomination to thie people in thie call off thie ministrie is in thie first book of discipline, pag 27, and syndrie other places ; as also, this is conforme to thie act of Parliament in [                    ], 1649, wherin is taken away thie power of patronage, and thie nomination declared to belong to thie people. Butt if it shall bie alleadged that thie power off nomination is in thie session's hands, and doth belong to them as thie representative of thie people, and that act off Parliament remits to the Generall Assemblie to determine what is thie proper interest of congregations and presbyteries in provyding off kirks, and quhat is to bie accounted thie congregation haveing that interest, and that thie Generall Assemblie holden in anno 1649 hes determined that thie minister is to bie chosen by thie session, it is ansered to that, that reference in thie act of Parliament doth nowayes concerne us, becaus our nomination was still befor in thie people's hands, and could not fall under that act as bieing taken away, for we hade not thie nomination bie vertue of that power, butt bie thie peoples priviledge. 2. That reference is onely to determine what shal bie thie proper interest off thie congregations and presbyteries in provyding kirks, at which wie did never quarrell nor make question that thie presbyteries part was to approve, examine, admitt, and give ordination, and wie beleue they will not crave more. 3. As for that expression in thie act (what is to bie counted the congregation haveing that interest), and that is ansered by thie act of thie Assemblie, that the session hath thie nomination, wee say, first, that it is not referred to them to determine what part of thie congregation, whether the representatives or thie wholl body, shall have that interest, and iff ther bie tuo representatives, what representative, but quhat is to be counted the congregation, and this seemes to bie rather ansered in thie 5 and 6 articles of that act, that no scandalous persone should have voyce, nor no malignant congregation should have that power. 2. This cannot strick agaynst us, wee bieing not comprehended at all under thie abuse of stranger patrons, which is thie reasone off thee act, butt wee haveing thee power off nomination in thie people's hand, which is approven be the act, and wheroff we have been in use ever since thie act off Parliament and thie Assemblie as in Mr. James Durrham's nomination, which was never challenged by the reverend Assemblie of Glasgow, and in Mr. George Meldrum's procedure, wie know no other way to have been observed, butt that which was still observed within this burgh. And thie method of this last act of the Generall Assemblie was in no wayes thought upon, looked to, nor observed, which can not have thie force off ane law, never being reported to thie parliament, and approoven ther, which proves onely the essence to ane law; and albeit we conceave thie peoples priuiledge in this nomination to be ondoubted, and doe adhere therto; yett, but prejudice of our right, we still stryve to informe thee reverend Assemblie, that ever in this poynt, in relation to thie consent of this present session, Mr. John Patersone his call is to be approoven, for we offerr us to prove that, upon the sexteint day of December last, when thie state off thie question being call or not call, and it being voted in session, Mr. Jhon Menzeis being moderator, and Mr. Androw Cant haweing remoooved befor thie stating of the question, ther werr then onely but eight others, to witt, Mr. John Menzes, Mr. Alexander Skeyne, Mr. John Campbell, Charles Dunne, George Meldrum, Charles Robertsons, Thomas Melvill, and David Gregorie, wheroff fyve, to witt, Mr. Jhon Menzeis, George Meldrum, Charles Robertsons, Thomas Melvill, and David Gregorie, werr assentters to thie call off thie said Mr. Jhon Patersone, and did call him; and thrie onely, to witt, Mr. Alexander Skeyne, Mr. Jhon Campbell, and Charles Dunne, did disassent from thie said call; and so thie assentters ar superiors, and in numberr more then thee disassentters. Iff it be objected that Mr Androw Cant, ane dissenter, is omitted, it is ansered, that Mr. Andrew Cant was not ther thie tyme off thie voyce, and so cadit suffragio: iff it be replied that hie hade expressed his dissent befor, it is dupleid that non relevat except hie hade been present at the voyce, for who knowes butt at that tyme thee Lord might have fallen upon his heart and changed his opinion, and hie changed his voyce as others did in our contrar. 2. If it be objected that James Swaun is ane elder, and did disassent, it is ansered, that hie can have no voyce, being clerk and ane stipendiarie, which was never seen in Aberdeen that any stipendiarie clerk hade voyce in session, and we beleue that it is not observed in othir places in Scotland. 3. Iff it be objected that Walter Melvill is ane elder, and did disassent at that tyme, it is ansered, that he is a deacon, and be act of session, daited thie 19 day of Februarie, 1656, hie is adjoyned in ane precinct as deacon with Mr. Alexander Forbes, who was undoubtedly elder; and albeit in that same act ther ar tuo deacons joyned with one elder, yett never one elder putt for ane deacon, and no precinct without ane deacon, for that would bie agaynst thee narrative off thie act running upon the paucitie of elders in respect off ther not acceptance and not attending; 2. Walter Melvill did ever goe about and discharge thee office off a deacon, in distributeing thie moneyes belonging to thie poor; 3. Hee did subscribe Mr. James Durrham and Mr. William Raites calls as deacon, quich wie can instruct be ane act of our counsell, contayning thie report of ane commission granted bie thie session, and asserting it to bie subscriyved bie Walter Melvill as deacon, thie veritie theroff, in further corroboration, wee referr to Walter Melvill his oath. 4. Iff it be objected that David Gregorie is deacon, and wie reckon him as ane assenting elder, it is ansered, he is ane elder bie thie said division of precinctes, and hes George Pyper adjoynd to him as deacon; 2. Hie subscriyves thie said commission as elder; 3. Hie hes exercised onely thie place off ane elder, and not the function of ane deacon. And albeit it hade been so that one or tuo elders werr dissenters more then assenters, wie trust the reverend Assemblie shall never regard them to counterpose thie wholl body of thie inhabitantes off this burgh, and this wholl congregation, consisting of some thousands, who did give him ane vnanimous call upon thie [ ] day off [ ] last. Wie shall therfor humblie desyr all our reasons to bie taken in complexe, and thie estate of this burgh rightly to bie considered, that as ther many good Christianes, it may not bie altogether of Mr. Androw Cants judgment, who notwithstanding ought not to depryved off thie benefit of the Gospell and publick ordinances; and ther is no reasone or cause ever mentionned agaynst thee said Mr. Jhon Patersones, nor can ther be any as wie conceive; and what prejudice thie inhabitants of this desolate burgh may sustayne, thorow thie long vacancie off ane minister. All these beeing considered, wie shall esteem ane hopefull expectation of ane favorable anser.

Session 5th. Thursday, Apryll 21, [1659.] Ante Meridiem.

After prayer hade, the said day, compeered Mr Androw Cant, and such of thie Presbyterie of Aberdeen as did adhere to him, desyring that thie last paper which was given in to thie Assemblie by thie commissioners of thie burgh off Aberden, in reference to Mr. Jhon Patersones call, might bie delyverred to him, promising to returne ane anser thertoo this day, at four houres in thie afternoone; which desyr thie Assemblie granted, and rekyred all parties interested to bie present at the said dyett.

Session 6th. Thurisday, Apryll 21. Post Meridiem.

Anent James Crowdan, a charmer within thie bounds off thie Presbyterie off Deer, referred to thee uisitation off thie book of Deer; as also, thie Assemblie recommends to all ministers within this province to speak agaynst charming, heathenish customes in cutting off thee heades of beasts, and carieing off them from one lairds lands to another, when ther exercises shall offer occasion to speak to that poynt, and upon conviction to processe them.

In respect off thie shortnes off tym thie Presbyterie of Aberdein hade to consider the commissioners of Aberdein ther last paper, wie shall not trouble thie Assemblie with a particular anser to everie article therin, according to thie method they hawe sett doune; butt, considering all that they hawe said may bee reduced to these tuo heads, viz.: 1, They endeavour to proove that thee act of Parliament for disannulling patronages cannot militate agaynst them, bicaus by that act the power of presentations was onely taken out off thie hands off extrinsick persones, and putt in thie hands of thee people; which power hes at all tymes remainyd in thie hands of provost, bailyes, and komunitie of Aberdein, as may bie seen by diverss of ther evidents and greatt chartors confirmed by thee successive authorities, particularly by thie last chartor granted in anno 1658, wherby they plead that the church sessions can clayme no more interest in thee nomination of ministers then evir they hade before the year 1649, wherin that act for annulling patronages was made. 2, That tho it should bie evinced that thie session hes thee onely powir off nomination by tuo off thie late actes of Parliament and Generall Assemblie 1649, yett they undertake to make out that thee pluralitie off elders did give a call to the said Mr. John, which they think sufficient; and layes by deacons as haweing no power of voting in any act of sessione, whether judiciall or not. But to the first of these, viz., that thee act for disannulling patronages can not strick agaynst them, for the reasone above mentionat, it is ansered, 1, That that act hes more in it then taking away the power of presentationes out of the hands of extrinsick persons, sieing it wes of so large an extent that it must needs be understood to comprehend the case and condition of all the congregations off this nation, intending thereby to lay a settled foundation for the right orderring off a call to ministers in all the congregations off this land, that they should not be any want of due privilege in one congregation more than in another ; and therefore did recommend to the care and wisdom of the Generall Assemblie to sett doune such a way as might be an uniform rule for all, and to determine what is the proper interest of congregations, and who was to have the privileges thereof. But so it is, that in order to that reference, the Generall Assemblie has putt the wholl regulateing of the nominations and calls of ministers in the hands of sessions, and the most proper representative of the congregations in all ecclesiastick affairs : therefore the magistrates and council ought not to medle with the same any further than as they are members of this congregation, and private men, unless they be elders ; or that magistrates and council in burghes and townes be expressly excepted in these acts, which we are confident they will not alleadge. 2, Whereas they say they never quarrelled at the determination off the Generall Assembly, whereby they hold not the proper interests of congregations and presbyteries in provyding kirks, it was butt to well known and avowed, and hinted at in their own papers, that the magistrats and council of the burgh of Aberdeen have allways medled with the nomination and calls of ministers without any acknowledgement of the sessions privilege therein, which has been the stopp of former calls, as, for instance, Mr. Jhon Paterson his call anno 1654, and Mr. William Raitt his call once and again, viz., anno 1655 and 1658 ; and we hope that this reverend Synode will be no lesse tender off session privileges and actes of Generall Assemblies than other presbyteries and synods elsquhair in this land. 3, Whereas they say they have been in use of this ever since that act 1649, as they instance in this giving calls to Mr. James Durhame, which they alleadge was never challenged by the reverend Synode off Glasgow, and in Mr. George Meldrums call, which we did not challenge, nor look to the method used in the said call, it is answered, that the reverend Synode of Glasgow and Presbyterie ther carried ever so as we did in Mr. Meldrums call, taking most speciall notice of the unanimous call off the session, and assent off the people; and looking upon acts of councell butt as cumulative, not takeing heed whether session or concells acts werr prior. And heer it is to be observed that thee commissioners off Aberdeen declares they have no regard to thee late act off the Generall Assemblie 1649, denying it to have the force off ane law, and not to be observed or looked to; becaus (as they alleadge) it is not reported to, and approoven in, Parliament, though it bie undoubtedly knowne they werr impowered to make that act by thee Parliament: what this savors off, wee leave it to the Assemblie to judge off. As to thee se-cound head of the commissioners off Aberdeen ther paper, wherin they undertake to proove that the said Mr. Jhon Paterson hes ane sufficient call from the session (so, in thee mean tyme, they adhere to ther oun power, denying thee power off the session, which, wee alleadge, this reverend Assemblie should take notice of,) alleadging that the pluralitie of elders did assent therto, it is ansered, 1, That it seems that thee commissioners off Aberdeen layed by deacons as ciphers from haveing any vote at all in session, which, wee trust, no church judicatorie will doe. And, for our selfs, wie was, and will bee, verie loath to make such a preparative, especiallie seing it is the commone practice of the wholle nation. 2, When the Generall Assemblie devolved the power off nomination off ministers by ther late act 1649 into thee hands off thee session, wee see no distinction made between elders and deacones, seing it was notour that deacons werr memberres of sessiones as well as elderrs; therfor wee see no reasone why they should be denyed a voyce. 3, When wee considerr that thee meanest member off the congregation hes ane assent or disassent in thee materr off thee nomination off ther minister in ther spehare, how much more ought thee deacons to have a vote in ther spehare, whose office in all ages has been in greatt esteem in thie Church, and allwayes have been thought members off thee church representative. 4, Wee did hint at some reasons in or former paper, why thee deacons ought to have this priviledge as well as elderrs; and iff thee Assemblie doubt off this materr, wee shal bie ready to hold out sufficient proof for thee same, so that iff this reverend synod graunt that deacons have a voyce (as wee doubt not butt they uill), then wee judge it cleer thie session hes given no call to Mr. Jhon Patersone, which was thee thing alleadged, being ten deacons dissenterr, and butt three assenterr. Yett, wheras they undertake to prove that they have the pluralitie off thee elders off thee session to bee assenterres to thee call off thee said Mr. Jhon, rickoning thee first sederunt to have consisted off eight elders, viz., Mr. Jhon Menzeis, Mr. Alexander Skeyne, Mr. Jhon Campbell, Charles Dunn, George Meldrum, Charles Robertsons, Thomas Melvill, and David Gregory, wheroff they alleadge fyve to have been assenterres, to uitt, Mr. Jhon Menzeis, George Meldrum, Charles Robertsons, Thomas Melvill, and David Gregorie, and three onely dissenters, viz., Mr. Alexander Skeyne, Mr. Jhon Campbell, and Charles Dunn, from thee said call off thee said Mr. Jhon Patersone, 1, Wherunto wee anser, according to thee best information given us by thee session off Aberden, that thee wholl business was caried on as followes, to uitt, that Monoday, December 13, beinge ane ordinarie session day, that many of thee session beinge at ane countrey mercat, thee session did conclude Thurisday, December 16, ane extraordinarie meeting for nominateing and calling off ministers, butt thee weather beinge so stormy, ther werr many off ther number kept back, so that ther werr no more butt thee tuo ministers of thee place and eight elders, viz., Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. Jhon Menzeis, ministers, and Mr. Alexander Skeyne, Mr. Jhon Campbell, Charles Dunn, James Swann, Walter Melvill, who, with Mr. Androw Cant, did dissent, though it bee true thee said Mr. Androw Cant did remooove befor thee mater came to a voyce, yett befor he remoooved hee did enter his dissent, and wee think it no reasone to deny him his voyce; and wee think thee reverend Assemblie uil bee loath to deny him a voyce in this session. Thee last who assented werr, George Meldrum, Thomas Melvill, and Charles Robertsons, with Mr. Jhon Menzeis, minister; so ther ar sex dissenters and butt four assenterres. As for thee difference betuixt thee enumeration off elders given upp by thee session, and that which was alleadged by thee commissionerrs from thee Councell off Aberdeen, wee shall say onely this, viz., as to James Swann, wee hope ther is no reasone why his beinge clerk should deprive him off haweing any voyce as ane elder, hee beinge choysen ane elder befor he was choysen clerk, so (as is alleadged) hee bee ane stipendiarie, seeinge it is thee constant practise, both off synods and presbyteries, to have one of ther number ther clerk, who retaynes his priviledge off voteing, though stipendiarie; as for thee question started by them concerninge David Gregorie his beinge ane elder, and Walter Melvill ane deacon, wee werr informed off thee contrarie by ther act of election given in to us by the session which wee thought a sufficient ground for us to judge upone, for which wee trust this reverend Assemblie uill not blame us ; as for ther subscriyving themselfs otherwayes then they ar designed in thee act of election, as is allcaded in thee calls off Mr. James Durhame and Mr. William Raitt, they might have subscriyved themselfs ministers for ought wee know, for wee ar not holden to walk according to ther rules, butt according to thee act off election, to quhich wee referr this reverend synod for ther better information, yett for thee more full cleering off thee question in difference, ther beeing dyverss weeks interveening betuixt thee vote past in this first sederunt and thee drauing upp and closeing off thee act for giving it to thee presbyterie, to uit, from December 16, 1658, to Januarie 31, 1659, thee act beeing publickly redd in session, thee most part off thee memberres formerly absent beeing present, viz., Walter Cochroune, William Gordoun, Jhon Ross, Robert Burnett, elders, Jhon Moor, Jhon Malie, and George Ppyer, chosen deacons, beeing personallie requyred, did adhere to the act and disassent therin expressed, and gave ther expresse consent thertoo as iff they hade been present at the first sederunt, which was evidenced to us by ane paper under thee clerk's hand, and which votes wee thought ourselfes obleidged to avow, seeing they werr given in, lite pendente, befor thee mater was closed or thee act drawn upp, which act beeing drawne upp was acknowledged by both parties to bie secundum rem gestam. Thus wee have given this reverend judicatorie a full accompt of our proceedings, and wee shall not doubt but this Assemblie shall judge us to have walked orderly and legallie. Haweing thus given ane short accompt off the grounds of our procedur anent thee call of Mr. Jhon Patersone, wee shall humblie desyr to informe this reverend judicatorie that wee have been verie farr from doing anie thing in this out off the least disrespect to Mr. Jhon Patersone, whom wee look upon as ane verie reverend man, and one of eminent partes worthy of all respect due to a minister off thee Gospell, nor yett out of any humor to please Mr. Androw Cant, as some ar sinistruously apt to judge, but meerly and sincerely out of thee tender respect that wee ar bound in conscience to hawe (as wee judge) to thee just priviledges of thee church and due interests of kirk sessions, whertoo wee off this Presbyterie of Aberdeen thinks ourselfs thee more obleidged to bee carefull off that wee have perceaved this many yeers bygone, the magistrates and counsell off

Aberdeen to bee so ready (as wee apprehend) to inroach upon thee privilege off ther session. And wee trust this reverend Assembly will goe befor us and all other presbyteries within the province as a good examPELL off tenderness and zeall therin, especiallie in such dangerous tymes. Sic subscribitur, Mr. Androw Strath, as moderator in this business; Mr. David Lyndesay, clerk.

This Assemblie, after a long hearing off all thee papers given in by both parties, and after much debate and reasonieing (all parties interested beeing remooved), thee synode takeing thee wholl materr off thee said appeal and call to ther most serious consideration (haweing thee glorie off God befor ther eyes, thee long vacancie off Aberden, and sade desolatione in respect theroff, the moderator haweing desyred all to speak ther mynd in this business, and none appearing with new reasons in opposition to thee call), did find and declare, lykeas heerby they doe declare thee said Mr. Jhon Paterson's call to bee one of thee ministers's off Aberden, full, formall, and orderly, according to thee lawes and constitution's of this nationall Church, as proceeding from thie session, councill, and communitie of thee said burgh. After which vote and sentence, all parties interested beeing called in, and thee samen beeing intimated to them, Mr. Androw Cant, in his oune name and such off thee Presbyterie off Aberdeen and others as would adhere to him, did protest agaynst thee same, and gave in his disassent and protestation.

Session 7th. Friday. Ante Meridiem. Apryll 22, 1659.

After prayer hade, the said day, compeered the commissionerss off Aberdeen above mentioned, and in respect that Mr. Androw Cant, and such off thee Presbyterie off Aberdeen as adhere to him, hade protested agaynst thee call off the said Mr. Jhon Patersone, desyred that the Assemblie would appoynt some of ther number to concurre with such off the Presbyterie of Aberdeen as assented to thee said call, and with thee councill and community of thee said burgh to prosecute thee said Mr. John his transplantation from the church of Ellon to bee one of thee ministeris off Aberdeen. Which desyr thee Assemblie thought reasonable, and to that effect ordayned Mr. Alexander Ross at Monymusk, Mr. William Scrogie, Mr. Adam Barelay, younger, Mr. James Gordoun at Touch, Mr. Alexander Middletoun, or any tuo off them, to concur for prosecutinge thee transplantation off thie said Mr. Jhon, in everie thing which was incumbent to the Presbyterie off Aberdeen, or the dissenting partie of thee session of Aberden, to have done in thee said transplantation, if they hade not protested agaynst thee same, and in case the transplantation bee granted for setling thee said Mr. John one off the ministrers off thee said burgh.

Thee said day, Mr. Alexander Dowglas, sometye minister at Auchredy, presented ane humble supplication for opening his mouth to preach thee Gospell as ane exspectant, and for a charitable supplie, in regard of his verie mean and poor condition, for the tyme. Thee Assemblie, takeing thee said supplication to ther consideration, did graunt thee last part off it, and ricommended it to be presentlie gone about; butt was pleased to lay over and continue thee other part off it to ther next meeting in July nixt.

Thee said day, Mr. William Dowglas, late moderator off thee Synod, produced a letter from thee Councill of Scotland, with a complaynt given in to thee said Councill by Mr. John Stewart, complayning upon thee former Synode for deposing him from thie ministrie, and appealing to them in thee said materr, in which letter the Councill desyred to bee satisfied anent thee reasones off thee said sentence pronounced agaynst thee said Mr. John. Thee Assemblie haveing heard thee forsaid letter off thie Councill, and complaynt and appeal off the said Mr. Jhon thertoo, and takeing thee same to ther most serious consideration, judged it ther duty (without prejudice to thee libertie and autoritie off this Church, butt reserving the same,) to give thee Councill information in ther wholle procedur in that business: And for this effect nominated, and bee thir presentes nominates Mr. Jhon Patersone, Mr. William Jaffray, younger, to appear befor thee said Councill of Scotland, for informing ther Lordships anent thee grounds and reasones off ther deposing of Mr. Jhon Stewart, with power to thee saids commissionerers to represent to thee Councill thee growth and increase off poperie, and insolencie of papists, in many partes within this province, and that severall excommunicat papists ar employed in publick offices, such as notories, messengers off arms, and collectors of excyse, that thee Councill might take some course for remedie theroff; and thee saids commissionerers to report ther diligence at the next ensueing Assemblie.

Thee said day, William Forbes of Leslie presented a supplication from John Kennedyes, elder and younger, sometymes lairds off Kermucks, wheroff thee tenor follows :—Wheras your petitioners hes for a long tyme, to thee greatt greiff of our hearts, lyen under thee fearfull sentence of excommunication, and as wee ar heartilie weighted and pressed downe with thee sense of this our sadd condition (beeing depryved of thee comfort of thee ordinances and comfortable company of thee saincts in the visible Church), so are wee no lesse sensible of thee dolefull and deplorable occasion theroff; therfor, our humble desyr and request is, that your reverend uisdoms uill take thee sadd condition of your petitioners to your charitable and christiane consideration, and that yee would take such course for our satisfaction and absolution as your uisdoms shall think convenient, which wee shall most humblie and uillinglie undergoe, provyding it bee appoynted at such tyme and place wher your petitioners may in saffie and uithout danger appear, that therupon wee beeing relaxed from that dreadfull sentence may bee received into thee bosome of our mother Church, and so bee admitted unto thee comfortable fruition of thee ordinances and fellowship of our fellow christians, from thee which wee have beene so long sequestrat. Thee Assemblie takeing thee forsaid supplication to ther serious consideration, and haweing heard severall grave brethren declare upon good grounds that thee above specified supplicants werr much weighted with thee sense of ther greatt sinne of manslaughter and of thee sentence pronounced agaynst them for thee same, and that as they werr certanely informed they did behawe themselves humblie under that sentence, and lykewayes beeing convinced that uithout greatt hazard thee above mentioned supplicants durst not appear in any place uithin thee province of Aberden to give evidence of ther repentance, did conclude it necessarie earnestlie to recommend thee forsaid supplicants to thee reverend brethren of thee Presbyterie of Kaitness, wher thee forsaid supplicants for thee tyme (as wee ar certanely informed) have ther residence, to take speciall notice of thee conversation and deportment of thee forsaid supplicants, and strictlie to examine whether they bee rightly sensible of ther guiltiness and weighted uith that sentence, and accordingly to proceed to thee relaxing of them from that heavie sentence of excommunication, according to thee acts and constitutions of this Kirk.

Session 2d. Post Meridiem. Apryll 17, 1660.

Thee said day, Lord Charles Gordoun haweing written a letter to thee ministers and professors of Aberdeen (which letter was read in thee face of thee synode, and ordayned to bee kept in retentis) earnestlie intreating that thee Provinciall Assemblie would bee pleased to allow to him ane considerable tyme for conference uith thee ministeres and professors of divinity of Aberdeen, and such other brethren as thie synode should be pleased to adjoyne to them, in respect that hee hade already entered in conference uith thee saids ministeres and professors in Aberdeen, and hoped that they might bee instrumentall to satisfie his scruples and doubtes in thee poynts of religion as others, uithall promising that upon conviction and force of argument, reasone, and evidence of truth, holden out, to forsake poperie and to imbrace the Protestant religion. Thee Assemblie takeing thee forsaid desyr to ther most serious consideration (beeing verie desyrus to use all lawfull means, uithout sinfull forbearance, to reclayne thee said Lord Charles from thee error of his way), and takeing to heart how much advantage it might bring to thee Protestant religion in these partes, iff thee said Lord Charles should bee gayned to thee trueth, they did condescend to his desyr, and did allow him and appoynt that hee should keep as frequent conference as hee could possiblie uith thee brethren above expressed, and such of thee Presbyterie of Kincardyne as thee said presbyterie should adjoyne to them; and in case thee said Lord Charles should neglect or slight dyetts of conference, and remaine still in thee way of poperie till thee next synod, uithout givinge any satisfaction to thee brethren appoynted for conference, that in that case hee should bee processed for poperie, according to thee acts of this nationall Church.

sessed thee said James Ogilvy of thee said roome and accommodation. Thee Assemblie takeing thee said materr to ther serious consideration, and finding thee said James Ogilvie peaceable sett, and farr from enterring into debate, ordaynes thee Presbyterie of Fordyce, with thee assessors following, viz., Mr. William Jaffrays, elder and younger, Mr. Alexander Midltoun, Lairds of Auchmedden and Birkenbogg, and earnestlie desyres Mr. Jhon Reidfuird, uithin thee province of Murray, as assessors, to meett at thee said kirk of Ennerboynie, and to use all possible meanes for setling and accomodateing thee said James in his roome and accommodation uithin thee said kirk, they haweing found that thee act of thee bishope, assessors, and Presbyterie of Fordyce, was verie reasonable and just; and iff thee said Walter Ogilvy of Boyne shall not acquiesce in ther determination in thee said mater, that thie business bee represented to thee civill [court] for redress and reparation.

The said day (after prayer), the lord bishape and bretherine of the synode, being informed that in the toune of Aberdene frequent messes haue beene observed, it is recommendit to the magistratis therof, and ordained that they goe about the vigorous executione of the late act off Parliament against all privat conventicles.

The said day, a petitione being given in to the bishope and bretherine of the synode, desyryng that all the ministeris uithin this diocie should bring in uith them at evrie synode the list of the dead uithin ther parochines, and that uidowis should not be maried until the testamentis of ther former husbands be confirmed, the bishope, uith consent of the bretherine of the synode, grantis the foirsaid petitione, uith this speciall provisione, that the testamentis of ministeris and ther relictis shalbe confirmed gratis.

The said day, ane double of ane act of Parliament in favors of Collonell Alexander Ramsay, anent his losses in anno 1648, being presented and redd, the bishope, with consent of the bretherine of the synod, taking the said mater to serious consideratione, doe earnestlie recommend to the seuerall brotherin within the diocie to deall effectuallie with ther parochineris for a contributione, to the effect aboue writtin.

The said day, it is ordered, with consent of the bretherine of the synode, that ministeris in ther publick prayeris shall pray for the king, after this forme following : Blesse thy servand, oure soveraigne, Charles the Secund, by the special grace of God, King of Great Brittain, France, and Irland, Defender of the Faith, over all persones, and in all causes, alsweill civile as ecclesiasticall, nixt and immediatelie under Thee and thy Christ, supream governor within his majesties dominiones. Lykas, it is ordered that ministeris in ther publict prayeris shall blesse the Lord for settlement of the Church, and government therof, and governors therein, arche bishopis and bishopes by name, and our ordinarie, Daudid, by the mercie of God, Lord Bishope of Aberdene ; and that they shall not faill heirin, under the paine of censure.

The said day, it is inacted by the bishope, with consent of the bre-therine of the synode, that no chaplane shall haue exercise in a familie, no pedagogue shall attend a youth, no young man shall teache a schoole, no young man shall preache the gospel in burghes or land, without licence and authoritie from the bishope.

The said day, it is recommended by the bishope, with consent of the bretherine of the synod, that, in tyme of publict prayeris, people shall pray ather standing or kneeling, as the most reverend gesture in prayer; and that the seuerall ministeris of the diocie shall recomend the same to ther people, and shalbe exemplarie therein themselfis; and that, at the singing of the doxologie, the people shall stand up and not sit.

Session 7th. Fredday, 24th Oct. 1662. Ante Meridiem.

The said day, the promises and professione of canonicall obedience, being, according to the late act of the synode, signed and subscribed by the whole members of the synode, (some few of the exercise of Aberdene only excepted) who did humblie desyre some few days to be more rylie advysed, which was indulged to them, the bishope and synod, after much forbearance and a great deall of paines taken upon Mr. John Menzeis for conformitie, did requyre him to signe the foirsaid promise and professione; or, iff he wes not yett fullie advysed in that mater, that he might haue a further tyme allowed him for clearing himself of any scruple he had in order therunto. The said Mr. John did, instead of signing the foirsaid promise of canonicall obedience, or of creaving further tyme for his awin clearing, give in a paper, wherin he did nowayis satisfie the bishope nor bretherine of the synode : because that it conteaneth nothing of a promise of further submissione and obedience then what he might haue promised to any intruding or usurping power over Gods Holy Churche, which being observed by the synod, and that the said Mr. Johne hade all along, in the votes relating to privat baptism and private comunione, and of praying for the King, with these titillis and priuiledges conceaved in the oath of alledgeance and supreamacie, and of praying for the reverend fatheris of the Churche, the arche bishopis and bishopis, by name, he did judge these things meit to be forborne by the bretherine of this synode, they being to be imposed (in his judgment) by a more publict authoritie. And least the practise of these thingis in this synode should savor of shisme, the bishope declared that he had oft and dyvers tymes requyred the said Mr. John Menzies to declare and subscriue his submissione to and owning of the present government of the Churche by archbishopis and bishopis, whiche he, as a professor of theologie, was obleidged unto by the [ ] act of the last sessione of this current parliament ; yett, notwithstanding, he could never be induced to obedience of the said act. The bishope and synod, taking all the premisses to grave and serious consideratione, did, by unanimous vote, suspend the said Mr. Johne from the exercise of the holy ministrie, or any pairt therof, as also of his professione of divinitie, untill the first Jannuir nixt to come, 1663. And iff, betuixt and the fairsaid day, he doe not signe the promise and professione of canonicall obedience conteaned in the act of this present synod for signing therof, then, and in that case, he is heerby ipso facto simpliciter deposed, at the fairsaid day declared to be deposed. Whiche sentence being intimat to him be the bishope in face of the synode, the said Mr. Johne Menzeis did protest and appeal to the nixt judge competent for recognitione. Lykas the commissioners of the toune of Aberdene did heerupoun protest that the fairsaid deed of the synod might be nothing prejudiciall to ther right of patronage to the professione of divinitie in the Marishall Colledge in New Aberdeen.

The said day, the bishope and synode finding that Mr. George Meldrum, minister in New Aberdene, wold, by no meanes nor essayes used upon him for conformitie, give any further satisfactione then what was conteaned in the above specified paper, given in be Mr. Johne Menzies in his awin and the said Mr. George ther names; notwithstanding that the said Mr. George had entered the holy ministrie sine the year of God 1649, and therfoir by the [ ] act of the last sessione of this current parliament, was obleidged to promise and profes canonicall obedience; the bishope, with consent of the whole synod, did adjudge the said Mr. George Meldrum to the same censure inflicted upoun Mr. John Menzies, both being involved in the same guylt, viz.: They did, and heirby doe, suspend the said Mr. George from the exercise of the holy ministrie, and evrie part therof, till the first of Januar nixt, 1663; and iff, betuixt and the forsaid, he doe not signe the promise and professione of canonicall obedience, conteanit in the ffourteint act of this present synod, sessione quarta, for signing therof, then, and in that caice, he is ipso facto deposed, and at the foirsaid to be declared deposed.

The said day, Mr. Alexander Seattoune, minister at Banff, haueing holden furth befoir the bishope and bretherine of the synod that his patrone wes not in capacitie to give him ane presentatione, as also Mr. Williame Burnet, minister at Insh, holding furth that the patrone of his churche is not certainlie knowin to him, the bishope and bretherine of this synode, taking the same to ther consideratione, orderis that the foirnamed bretherine shalbe acknowledged ministeris in these places wher the presentlie ar; and all uther ministeris who are in such ane cais, to be acknowledged ministeris in the places wher they are for the present, till the contrairie shall appear.

The said day, it is inacted by the bishope, with consent of the bretherine of the synode, that evrie minister shall labor to perswade the people to uniformitie and canonicall obedience; and in caice they shall not tak paines heirin, they shal be represented to the lord bishope, that he may proceed against them.

The said day, it is inacted by the bishope, with consent of the bretherine of the synod, that all ministeris as aither haue or not subscribed the declaratione for canonicall obedience, and who shal be found seduceeding ather his awin people, or people under the charge of other ministeris, by laboring to infuse in them suche principles as are contrare to the due obedience of the canones of the synode, especiallie to the canon relating to the gesture in publict worships, shal be proceeded against as ane contemner of the canones of the synode.

A forme of excommunicatione to be pronounced against such papists whose processes are closed and approvin.

It is not unknowin to you who are heir present, that our Lord Jesus, he being ane lawgiver of his Church, hath in his blessed word comanded us to withdrawe ourselues from everie professed member of the church that walketh disorderlie, as the Apostle Paull sheweth us, 2 Thess., cap. 3, 6, 7, and, for that effect, hath impowered the governoures of the church to reject and cast out from the communion and fellowship of the faithfull, such as, efter lauchfull admonitione and due meanes (according to his appoyntement,) used for ther reclaimeing, doe, notwithstanding, continue obstinately in ther sinfull and scandalous walkeing, contrair to the wayes of truth, holieness, and peace, according to that of our Saviour in the 18 of Mathews Gospell, v. 17, 18, he that neglecteth to heir the church, let him be unto yow as ane heathin and publican. Verily, I say unto yow, whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heavin. And now, for as much as A. B. hath fallin of from the truth of God and unitie of the church unto the error and schisim of poperie; and, being convict therof, hath, according to the lawes of Christ, beine frequentlie admonished heirof, and earnestlie prayed for, and his repentance long and patientlie expected, but, after all these meanes used, hath not beine prevailed with, but yet continowes obstinat, without any evidence or signe of his true repentance, to the great dishonour of God, and offence of his people: thairfor it is ordaint be the bishop, our ordinary, and the bretheren of our presbitrie, that the dreadfull sentence of excommunicatione be pronuncit this day, and in this place, against him be the minister heir officiateing; and, in obedience to his order, I doe, in the name of the great God, and by authoritie of his sone, our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious head of this church, excommunicat the said A. B. from the communion of the church, and rejects him from the priviledge and fellowship of the faithfull, leaueing him bound to the judgment of the Lord, untill he give sufficient evidence of his repentance, and reconcell himselfe to the church: requyreing yow and all the christiane people, according to the commandement of Christ, to avoid the said persone, and hav no company with him, that he may be ashamed, untill he be againe reconcelled to the church, as ye wold not incurr the displeasure of God and censures of the church, which, upon such as transgresse heirin, shall be inflicted.

Let the prayer accompanyeing the sentence be to this effect :

That God, who hath appoynted this terrible sentence for removeing of offences, and reduceing of obstinat sinners, wold mack this his ordinance effectuall to all these holy ends for quhich he hath appoynted it, that his retaineing of the offendaris sinne and shuteing him out of the church may fill him with fear and shame, break his obstinate heart, and be a meanes to recover him from the power of the devill, that he may yet be saved, that uthers also may be stricken with fear and not dare to sinne so presumptuouslie ; and that all such corrupt leavin being purged out of the church, quhich is the hous of God, Jesus Christ may delight to duell in the midst therof.

A forme of excommunicatione to be pronouced against such Quakares whos process are closed and approvin.

It is not unknowine to you who are heir present, that our Lord Jesus Christ, the king and lawgiver of his Church, hath in his blessed word comanded us to withdrawe our selves from everie professed member of the Church that walketh disorderlie, as the apostle Paul sheweth us, 2 Theis. cap. 3, v. 6, and for that effect hath also impoured the governores of the Church to reject and cast out from the communion and fellowship of the faithfull such as, efter lawfull admonitione and due meanes, according to his appoyntment, used for ther reclaimeing, doe notwithstanding continew obstinatlie in ther sinfull and scandalous walking contrair to the wayes of the truth, holienes, and peace, according to that of our Savior in the 18 of Mathews Gospell, v. 17, 18, he that neglecteth to heir the Church let him be unto you as ane heathin and a publican : Verily I say unto you, that quhatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heavin, and quhatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heavin. And now, for as much as A. B. hath feillin from the truth of God and unitic of the Church unto the pernicious errors and unchristiane practises of that lait risen sect comonlie called Quakers, particularlie in slighting and revyleing the publict ordinances of God, and being convict therof, hes, according to the lawes of Christ, beine frequentlie admonished therof earnestlie, and prayed for, and his repentance long and patientlie expected ; but after all these meanes used, hath not beine prevailed uith, but continowes obstinat without any evidence or signe of his true repentance, to the great dishonour of God and offence of his people ; and therfor it is ordered by the bishop, our ordinarie, and the bretheren of our presbitrie, that the dreadfull sentence of excommunicatione be pronounced this day, and in this place, against him, by the minister heir officiating : And, in obedience to this ordor, I doe, in the name of the great God, and by authoritie of his Sone, our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious head of this Church, excommunicat the said A. B. from the communione of the Church, and reject him from the priviledges and fellowship of the faithfull, leiving him bound to the judgment of the Lord, untill he give sufficient evidence of his repentance ; re quyreing you and all Christiane people, according to the commandement of Christ, to avoid the said persone, and to haue no companie uith him, that he may be ashamed untill he be reconceilled to the Church, as you wold not incurr the displeasure of God and censures of the Church, quich upon such as transgresse heirin will be inflicted.

A prayer accompanyeing the sentence to be ut supra.

A forme of excommunicatione to be pronounced against such who refuse to submitt themselves to the discipline of the Church, for removeing of the scandell of some grosse offences, efter ther process is closed and approve.

It is not unknowine to you who are heir present that our Lord Jesus Christ, the king and lawgiver of his Church, hath, in his blessed word, comanded us to uithdrawe ourselves from evrie professed member of the Church that walketh disorderlie, as the apostle Paull sheweth us, ii. Thess. cap. 3, v. 6 ; and for that effect hath also impoured the governours of the Church to reject and cast out from the communione and fellowship of the faithfull such as, efter lawfull admonitione and due meanes, according to his appoyntment, used for ther reclaimeing, doe notwithstanding persist and continew obstinat in ther sinfull and scandalous walking, contraire to the wayes of truth, holieness, and peace, according to that of our Savior in the 18 of Mathew's Gospell, v. 17, 18, he that neglecteth to hear the Church, let him be unto others ane heathen and a publican: Verily I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall bind one earth shall be bound in heavin, and quhatsoever ye shall loose one earth shall be loosed in heavin. And now, for as much as A. B. hath fallin into the grosse sinne of (heir mentione the scandall), and being convict therof, haue, according to the lawes of Christ, beine frequentlie admonished heirof, earnestlie prayed for. and his repentance long and patientlie expected, but, after all these meanes used, hath not bene prevailed with to submitt to the discipline of the church for removinge the forsaid scandell, but yet continewes obstinat, without any evidence or signe of his true repentance for this sinne, and contempt of the church, the great dishonour of God, and offence to his people: and therfor, it is ordained, be the bishop, our ordinarie, and brethren of our presbitrie, that the dreadfull sentence of excommunicatione be pronounced this day, and in this place, against him by the minister heir officiating. In obedience to this order, I doe, in the name of the great God, and by the authoritie of his sone, the Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious head of this church, excommunicat the said A. B. from his communion of the church, and reject him from the priviledge and fellowship of the faithfull; leaveing bound to the judgement of the Lord untill he give sufficient evidence of his repentance: requyreing yow and all christiane people, according to the commandement of Christ, to avoid the said persone, and to haue no companie with him, and that he may be ashamed, untill he be again reconceiled to the church, as you would not incurre the displeasures of God and the censur, of his church, quich, upon such as transgresse heirin, will be inflicted.

The moderator shall ask the rest of the presbyterie if any thing be knowin to any of them of ther brother or bretheren removed which they think fit to be imparted to the presbitrie. After all this, the moderator is in few words to exhort all to faithfulness and diligence in all pairts of ther office ; and that they be so faithfull and freindlie one to another, as to admonish one another privatlie when they sie cause ; and that, when they meet with such friedome, they faithfullie and kyndlie accept of it from one another ; and that they lay hold on all ocasioness to excite one another to zeale, faithfulness, and dilligence, to all which each shall faithfullie engadge themselves.

Iff anie of the bretheren be absent from these tryalls, the nixt day that they are present the reasones of ther absence shall be strictlie examined, and unles it be found verie relevant they are to be rebuiked ; and, however, they are to undergoe ther privat tryall and censure after the same maner with the rest of ther bretheren, onlie it shall not be necessar to read againe in publick the ordor of visitatione of churches upon ther accompt, but onlie they are to be demanded whither of late they hade seriouslie pondered the samen ; and to this effect evrie brother is to provide himselfe of ane extract of the forsaid ordor for the visitatione of churches, and for the privat tryall and censure of ministers, with his first conveniencie, from the clerk of the presbitrie, for his privat use.

The which paper being publictlie red and seriouslie considered, after mature deliberatione was, by the vot of the synod, approvyn and apointed to be made use of in ther respective visitationes and privat censures.

21st Aprill, 1675.

The said day, it is ordored that at each paroch kirk uithin this diocese ther be a charitable collectione for the releise of Walter Gibsone, skipper of the Marrie of Inverkeithin, and Johne Reid, his mate, who are prisoners uith the Turks in a miserable and painfull conditione, who are to be ransomed and releived uith no les then fyve or sex hundred dollars a peice ; and this is recommendit be ane act of Privie Counsell, of the date at Edinburgh the fyft of November, 1674. The Presbyterie of Aberdene hath alreadie contributed to the effect forsaid, and that quhat shall be collected at each paroch kirk be given in to the respective moderators. and delyvered be them when called for to Captaine James Burnett at Inverkeithing, or at his ordor.

22d Apryll, 1675.

The said day, it is ordored that these presbitries that have not called the schoolemasters and chaplaines uithin ther bounds to tak the oath of alledgeance and the promise of cannonicall obedience, shall doe it uith the first convenience ; and that a coppie of the said oath of alleadgance and canonicall obedience shall be sent to each presbitrie, uith the referrs of this synod.

6th October, 1675.

The said day, it being represented by some bretheren that severall persones are found, who, in the tyme of ther publict professione of repentance for ther scandalls, doe relapse in the same or other scandalous sines, and yet uill still professe a uillingnes to submitt to discipline, whilset yet they continue (for ought that com be them) stupid and careles ; its therfor thought fitt, that iff the presbitrie find sufficient evidence of these new scandalls or stupid carelesnes under professione of repentance, that, by ordor of the presbitrie, such persones publictlie, and by name, be pub-littlie debarred from the benefite of participating the sacrament of the Lords Supper; and for the more orderlie and uniforme way of performing it, that this be done after the maner following:—In the name of our Lord Jesus Chryst, and at the command of the Churche, I declair A. B. to be unworthie to partake of the holy sacrament of the body and blood of Chryst, and thairfor, in name and authoritie forsaid, I solemnlie suspend him from fellowshipe with the people of God in the Supper of the Lord, until he, upon his repentance, obtaine relaxatione from his dreadful sentence; as lykwayes, I requyre all the Lords people to look upon him as suche, that he, being ashamed of his sine, may seriouslie lay it to heart, and humble supplicat for absolutione.

Bot no minister is to think himselfe therby disobleidged from takeing care of or paines upon such persones, but even after the pronouncing of the sentence, the respective minister is to continue in the use of all fitt meanes for bringing such to repentance; and also it is thought fitt that none be relaxed from his censure untill they supplicat the presbitrie, being recomended to them by the sessione, which is also recommendit to the further consideratione of the bretheren, whether or not it might be found both ordorlie and edifieing, that, after convictione of any publict scandall, ther be some publict burding by censure, als weill as ther is ane publict absolutione; and they ar requyred to give in ane accompt of ther thoughts therin at the nixt synod.

And seeing the edificatione of persones by censures doeth much depend on the ordorliness and solemnitie of the censure, it is ordored, that no privat minister doe debarr any persone by name from the Lords Supper, for dishaunting of ordinances, neglect of catechising, or sicklyke, untill the matter be represented to the presbitrie, and the persone delinquent cited before the presbitrie, that upon evidence of the guilt, they may judge of the expedience of the censure, and give ordor for it.

The said day, the bishop haveing found, in his revising the presbitrie bookes, that, at visitatione of the churches, divers things anent the churches and outinseills thairof have been recommendit to the minister and heritors, quich are afterwards forgotten, no account thairof being requyred till the nixt visitatione of that churche; thairfor, the bishope, with consent of the synod, appoynt and ordaine that whatsoever is recom-mentit by anie minister or heritor at the visitatione of the churches, inquiry shall be maid by the presbitrie at the nixt privie censure, what dilligence hath been used therin, and record taken thairof.

The said day, the lord bishope haveing inquyred of the bretheren, what fruite and advantage they found in getting about the privie censure in presbitries in the solemne and serious way recommendit by order of the synod ; it was acknowledged that they found the said ordor verie usefull for begetting and mantaining one ther heart a sense of the duties of ther calling ; and it being represented that (sieing all other exercise and doctrine was laid asyde for that day) it would be for edificatione iff, besyde the breiff exhortatione of the moderator, one of the bretheren doe open up some scripture relating to ministeriall duties, it was ordored by the bishop, with consent of the bretheren, that, in the day of the privie censure, one of the bretheren (haveing been thairto appoynted by the presbitrie) shall preach from some scripture suitable to the purpose in hand, and that per vices, that so they may edifie one another, and mutuallie excite one another to the conscientious discharge of the duties of ther calling ; and that the lenth of the sermone hinder not the rest of the work, that it doe not exceed halfe ane houre.

The said day, it is ordored that the severall ministers shall recommend to the heritors and kirk sessione to take some effectuall course for supplieing the poor of ther own respective parochines that so they may not be burdensome to other congregations ; and that they give ane account thairof to the respective moderators, and the moderators to the lord bishop, betuixt and the first day of January nixt.

7th October, 1675.

The bishop and bretheren of the Synod haveing consulted the presbitrie book of Aberdeine, and the late visitatione of the church of Kinnellar therin contained, and it being found thereby that the people of that congregacione hade long suffered great prejudice, not only by ther pastor, Mr. John Merser, his bodilie infirmitie, which hath continewed this divers yeiris bygone, in all which tyme they have bein destitute not only of the benefite of catechising, but also through the long want of the ordinance of the Lords Supper, which hath not been celebrat amongst them this fifteine yeiris bygone and more. The bishope and synod, considering the said Mr. John his present weak and sicklie conditione, thought fitt to appoynt Mr. George Meldrume, minister at Aberdeine, and Mr. Hendrie Scougall, professor of divinitie at Old Aberdeine, to go to the said Mr. John Mercer, and to acquaint him with ther deep resentment of the sad conditione of that congregatiōne, and requyre him now at last to provyde ane authorized and qualified man to assist him in the ministeriall work ther, and to send ane account of his dilligence therin to the Presbitrie of Aberdeine befor the first of December nixt to come, and to show him that iff he failie therin, the bishop and Presbitrie of Aberdeine will goe one in proces against him.

The said day, ther being divers complaints and regraitts given in to the Synod be severall bretheren, that some, under pretence of trances or familiaritie with spirits, by goeing with these spirits commonlie called the fairies, hath spoken reproachfully of some persones, whairof some are dead and some living, it is recommendit be the lord bishop and synod to the presbyteries and ministers interested, carefully to endeavor the suppressing of that seductione by warneing the people of the danger of it, and calling befor them the seducers; and if the seducers be compotes mentis to proceed in censure against them, and lykwayes against the consulters, if after admonitiōne publicklye given, they forbear not such practises, or to vent and spread such reproachfull speeches, whairof the seducers are the authors.

19th April, 1676.

The said day, it being represented to the lord bishop and synod that ther are thrie noblemen of his Majesties Privie Counsell commissionat and empowered to meet at Ellon on Tuesday nixt, being the tuentie nynt of this instant, to notice the conventicles of Quakers, Non Conformists, and Papists, and finding it necessar that some bretheren be sent to attend the said meeting of these noblemen, and give information of these who are guilty of trespassing after that maner, the lord bishope, with consent of the synod, does for this end ordaine master Arthour Strachan at Morthlick, Mr. Johne Hay at Rathven, the Moderator of Ellon, the Moderator of Turreff, the Moderator of Deir, and failing of him Mr. Robert Bruce at Deir, and Master James Gordone at Banchorie, to keep the said meeting of the said noblemen upon advertisement from the bishop, and to be readie to give informatione so far as they know or shall be enquired.

The said day, the lord bishop and bretheren of the conference having taken to ther consideratione the straittis and necessities wherunto the relicts and childerene of several ministers are redacted many tymes, and finding how commendable and charitable a work it would be to contribute for the supplie and honest maintainance of such, especiallie sieing (besydes the commone motives of charitie,) the credite of ministers is neerlie concerned heirin, did therfor fall upon ane overture for that effect, viz.: That evrie minister within this diocesse should give in yeirlic the hundreth penny of ther yeirlic stipend, to be employed for the end above mentionat, and after the manner as shall be afterward condiscendit upon. Which overture being publicly proposed to the synod, it was cordiallie approvyn of and intertaind by them; and the cattalogue of the ministers names being called, the lord bishop and all the bretheren present did particularlie, and by name, consent to the same, and engadge themselfs therto, except one, Mr. John Irving, who was non liquet. And sieing the particular method of collecting and imploying the said contributione could not be at present so fully condiscendit upon, as requiring more mature deliberatione, thairfor the bishop and synod did recommend to Mr. John Menzeis, and Mr. Hendrie Scougall, professor of divinitie, Mr. George Meldrum, minister at Aberdene, Mr. James Gordone at Banchorie, Mr. Adam Barclay at Keig, with anie others whom they shall think fitt to adjoyne to themselfs, to think upon some proposals wherby the said overture may be rendered more effectuell and practicable; and to give in ther thoughts theranent with the first convenience, to be transmitted to the severall presbitries, that the respective bretheren may be acquainted therwith, and give in ther judgment theranent at the next synod

12th October, 1676.

The first moyetie of the foresaid charitable yearlie contributione is ordered to be brought in the next synod, and Master George Meldrume, minister at Aberdeine, is appoynted collector therof, to whom also it is re-commendit to procure the subscriptiones of these who hes not as yet subscribed.

The said day, it being found too frequentlie, in manie congregations, that some persones doe withdraw from the sacrament of the Lords Supper, when it is celebrat in the parish, upon the profest accounte of ther variance and discord with ther neighbors, which yet they refuse to remove by a freindlie reconciliatione, upon reasonable termes, and that such persones appear to be more hardened in that unchristian and uncharitable practise, in regard no publict censure have been made use of against them for the same hitherto : It is, therefor, ordored by the bishop and synod, that when anie, after paines taken to convince them of the sine and danger of such ane unchristiane practize, doe refuse to be reconciled with ther neighbour upon reasonable termes, that ther presbyterie be acquainted with it, and they cited before them ; and if they shall refuse to be reconciled, as said is, that the presbyterie give ordor to the minister of the place to sentence them, with the lesser sentence of excommunicatione, according to the form preserved by the bishop and synod.

The said day, it is ordored that ane solemn fast and humiliatione be keptit throughout all this diocie, in each parochine, for ane blessing from God upon the ensueing seed season, upon the last Wednesday of February next.

25th April, 1677.

The said day, it is appoynted that if anie persones shall receipt strangers from another parioch, they who receipt them shall give notice of the saids persones to the minister of the parioch wher they are receipt, within fourteine dayes after ther coming thither ; and if anie shall conceal persones for the said space, unacquainted the minister, as said is, or if the persones concealed by them be found afterward to be scandalous, the persones receptors of them shall be censured by a publict appearance befor the congregatione.

26th April, 1677.

It being found, in visiting the presbitrie book of Ellon, that ther has been some difference amongst the brethren of that presbitrie anent the tryalls of Mr. George Mill, preacher of the gospell, in order to his entrie to the ministrie at Ellone, the bishop did therupon represent that he had called a meeting of some brethren with the presbitrie of Ellone, for cognosceing in that affair, upon the thirtie-first of January last. The account thereof is as follows :—

Att Old Aberdene, January 31, 1677.

The quhilk day, the bretheren of the presbitrie of Ellon, together with severall of the bretheren nominat at the last synod for the privat conference, being mett with the bishop upon advertismēt, after prayer, the bishop did signifie unto them, that he haveing been informed that the tryalls of Mr. George Mill, before the presbitrie of Ellone, in order to the ministrie at Ellone, had been much delayed, he had sent a letter to the said presbitrie, desyreing to know ane account of ther diligence herein, and that if ther wer any differences among them anent the said Mr. George Mills tryalls, they should let him know what they wer, and what wer the particular grounds theroff, wherupon the said presbitrie had sent in a return to him thairoff by concert, the tenor thairoff is as follows :—

Ellone, 2d January, 1677.

May it please your Lordship,

Having received a letter from your lordship, desyreing ane account of our dilligence, and opinion concerning Maister George Mill his tryalls, in obedience quhairunto, this day, all our number being mett, except Mr. John Strachan, who is south, the said Mr. George did undergoe the questionarie tryall; and, he being removed, the bretheren gave ther opinion of this and all his former tryalls, as follows: Maister George Buchan declaired that he judged him sufficiently qualified for the ministreie at Ellone, and was cleer to recommend him to your lordship for admission thereto. The ministers of Crowden, Foverane, and Methlick, declaired, they could not recommend him as one fitt for the ministrie at Ellone, both in regard they judged him not sufficientlie qualified for that place, as also in regard of the universall aversion of all the heritors and bodie of the people so frequentlie testified, as, particularly, at his admission to tryall, and also this day, by the comperance of Achterellone and Fechill, in name of the rest of the heritors and parochiners; which oppositione. to our certain knowledge, doth not proceed from any dissatisfactione to the government, but from an earnest desyre to have the place well settled.

The minister of Slaines declairs that ther wer but few poynts of tryall

quhich he had heard, quhairin he conceived the said Mr. George gave ordinarie satisfacione, however, in regard of the greatnes of the charge, and constant universall aversion of the heritors and bodie of the people, he doth not judge him so qualified as in conscience he can recommend him for institution to that charge. The minister of Udny approved of such tryalls as he formerly heard, but declairs that he had not this day so great satisfacione as before; howevir, he thinks him one of ordinarie qualificationes. But, becaus of his unacquaintednes with the charge and people of Ellon, he will not take upon him to recommend him to be minister thair. What further did occur this day, the bearer will informe your lordship more fullie. This, with our dutie and respects presented to your lordship, is all at present from your lordships most affectionat sons and humbles ervants, (sic subscribitur,) Mr. George Anderson, A. Leask, Jo. Ross, W. Fraser, Al. Buchan, J. Cockburn.

And, seing that ther wer some differences among the brethren of the said presbitrie anent the said Mr. George Mill his tryalls, he had also thought fitt to advertise the bretheren of the privie conference to keep this meeting, for giving their advyce in that affair. And, becaus that all the bretheren of the said presbitrie had not, conforme to an act of the last synod, given thir judgement particularlie of every one off the said young mans tryalls, and the reasons theroff, therfor he had sent advertisement to the bretheren of the said presbitrie to keip this meiting, for giving more full and particular informatione in this affair, and ther judgement anent the said Mr. George Mill his tryalls.

But, becaus much of the forenoon was now spent, therefore the bishop resolved to adjourne this meeting till the afternoon, quhairupon it was reported that ther wer some of the heritors of the Parioch of Ellone without, desyreing to be heard; who, being called, compeered Collonell Foulertone of Dudweck, Robert Udny of Auchterellone, John Gordone, younger of Fechill, and Collonell Foulertone, in name of the rest, and, as he alleadged, in name of others, the heritors and parochineris of the said parish, protested that ther should not be any further procedor in the matter anent the kirk of Ellone at this meeting; 1st, becaus they wer not certaine whether the said kirk was yet vacant or not; 2d, becaus ther was a lybell given in against Mr. George Milne, and presented to the Presbitrie of Ellone, and as yet depending before them, quhairunto they did adhere; as also, becaus the Presbitrie of Ellon had declaimed the said Mr. George Mill utterlie insufficient for that charge, and therupon did appeal from this meeting to the bishop and synod. Unto the quich protestation the bishop did reply, that, as for the vacancie of that place, he should be anserable; and, as concerneing the lybell quich was given in to the Presbitrie of Ellone, it was not as yet subscribed by any persone, but if they had any subscribed lybell to give in against the said Mr. George Mill, it should be received from them in the afternoon. And, as concerneing the pretended judgement anent the said Mr. George his tryalls, they wer to take that into consideration: quhairupon the meeting was continued untill tuo o'clock in the afternoon.

The bretheren being mett more frequentlie than in the forenoon, Mr. James Gordon, Mr. Patrick Sibbald, Mr. John Menzies, and Mr. Hendrie Scougall, professors, Mr. George Meldrum, minister at Aberdeine, Mr. Robert Reed at Banchorie, Mr. George Melvill, Mr. Adam Barclay, Mr. James Strachan, Mr. Alexander Mowat, Mr. Andro Skeen, Mr. George Garden, together uth the hail Presbitrie of Ellone, except Mr. John Strachan and Mr. John Ross, the bishop did resume before them what he had spoken in the forenoon anent the occasion of calling this meeting.

Whereupon there was presented a testificat granted formerlie by the Presbitrie of Ellone to Mr. Georg Mill, the tenor quhairof is as followes:

Wee, undersubscriberis, the moderator and remanent brethren of the exercise of Ellone, do by thir presents testifie and declar to any whom it may concerne, that the bearer hereoff, Mr. Georg Mill, student of divinitie and preacher of the gospell, hath been, dureing the tyme of his residence among us (about the space of seven yeers, or therby), off a pious, sober, orderly, and unblameable deppartment, for ought wee ever could learn to the contrair, and that dureing the said tyme he hath, in his vice, given publick specimen of his proficiencie in the studie of divinitie by handling of controversies, and haveing the exercise and addition before our presbiteriall meetings, and also preaching, as he was employed in severall of our pulpitts to our no small contentment and satisfaction, so that we conceive he may, by the Lords blessing, prove a hopeful and usefull instrument in the work of the ministerie, whensoever and wheresoever it shall please the Lord to grant him an orderly entrance therto. In testimonie quhairoff, we have subscribed thir presents at the respective places of our residence (not having at this tyme the opportunity of meeting together at the ordinarie place of our exercise), upon the sixteenth [ ] dayes of June, in this present year of God, m<sup>vic</sup> three score and sixteen years. Sic subscribitur.

Jo. Strachan, Mod<sup>r</sup>.

A. Leask.

Mr. Georg Anderson.

G. Buchan.

Jo. Ross.

Wil. Fraser.

Which testificat being read publicklye, the brethren of the Presbitrie of Ellone did acknowledge and own, but uithall alleadged that it was not given by them being presbyteriallie mett; and that lykewayes some of them at the subscribeing of it had particularlie enquyred of the said Mr. George, if he did demand it in ordor to the kirk of Ellone, which was then vacant, quhich he did altogetther deny, and told that he was to remove out of their bounds, and therefor requyred the said testimonie from them.

The bishop and bretheren of this meeting thought fitt for their further clearing anent Mr. Georg Mills tryalls, that the bretheren of the Presbitrie of Ellone should assigne the reasons of ther approving or disapprooving of the said Mr. Georg; and therefor, Mr. Alexander Leask, minister at Crouden, being enquyred the reasons for quhich he judged Mr. Georg Mill unqualified for the kirk of Ellone, replyed, that at present he was not cleer to giv them, but in privat he would do it to the bishop. Mr. Georg Anderson being in lyke maner enquyred, declaired that he was not satisfied uith his popular sermon in regard of the mater and method, nor yet uith many of his ansers to the questions that wer proposed to him at hes questionarie tryall, and particularly to these quhich wer proposed by Mr. John Cockburn.

Mr. William Fraser being in lyke maner enquyred, declaired that the reason why he could not recommend the said Mr. George Mill for ordination to the kirk of Ellon is the unanimous opposition quhich the heritors and all the bodie of the people made to his entrie to that charge. Mr. John Cockburn being enquyred, gave in his judgement as he had done formerly in the letter to the bishop, and lykewayes gave an account of such questions as wer proposed to the said Mr. Georg Mill at his questionarie tryall, and of the ansers the said Mr. Georg gave therunto, uith quhich he was not so well satisfied.

Mr. Georg Buchan being enquyred, declaired that the ground why he did approve of the said Mr. Georg Mills tryalls was the satisfaction quhich he had given in all his tryalls as ordinarlie others uses in the lyke cause to give; and that he was particularie privie to much of his deportment in his lyfe and conversation as being a resider in his parish of Logie; and that the said Mr. Georg Mill had preached sometymes in his church, and given satisfaction to all his hearers.

Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. Georg Andersone being further interrogat, whither they judged the said Mr. Georg Mill qualified for the ministrie in any lesser churche than Ellone, they replied that they wer not cleer to give ther judgement theranent at present, and therefor desyred a further tyme to anser to this poynt.

Mr. William Fraser being interrogat, declaired that he thought Mr. Georg Mill qualified for a lesser charge than Ellone, wher the people wer satisfied.

Mr John Cockburn being interrogat, declaired that he judged him of such ordinarie qualifications as that he could not be altogether rejected from entering into the ministrie.

This meeting is continued until to-morrow at ten a clock in the forenoon; and it is appoynted that Mr. Alexander Leask give in his reasons against that tyme to the bishop, why he was not cleer to approv Mr. George Mills tryalls, and recommend him for ordination; as also, that both the said Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. Georg Anderson give in ther judgment positively whither or not they think the said Mr. Georg Mill qualified to enter into the ministrie in general.

Session 3d. February 1, 1677. Ante Meridiem.

This day, the bretheren being mett, after prayer the bishop did signifie unto them that Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. George Anderson had been speaking with him, and had given ther reasons why they wer not free to approv Mr. Georg Mills tryalls in order to the kirk of Ellon, and that Alexander Leask had told that he was dissatisfied with Mr. Georg Mills exercise and addition, becaus that wheras the one part of that tryall is for cleering of the word and resolveing such questions and doubts as did aryse therefrom, yet the said Mr. Georg had tutched none of these questions, but onlie said in generall that ther wer severall doubts which did aryse from the words quhich at present he could not insist upon, and insisted for the most part in explaining the ambiguitie of one word in the text, and in the additionall part of the tryall he had insisted upon things which were not of such weight and moment; and that the said Mr. Alexander said lykewayes that he was dissatisfied with severall particulars in his questionarie tryall, and that he had taken occasion to ask the said Mr. Georg concerning some of the Quakers controversies, by reason that the parioch of Ellone is infested with that heresie at present, and is lyke to spread more therein, if ther be not a minister settled in that place who is seen in ther controversies, and also to refute them: And that the said Mr. Georg being enquiryed anent objective and subjective revelation he did ascrive that unto the Quakers which we maintain, and that unto us which the Quakers do maintain: and after discoursing further anent the Quaker controversies, the said Mr. Georg did declair that he was not acquainted with ther principles, neither knew quhair to find them; and that the said Mr. Georg being enquiryed about the opinions of the familists could give litle or no satisfaction theranent. The bishop did lykewayes declair that he had requyred the said Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. Georg Andersons judgment anent the said Mr. Georg Mills qualifications in order to the ministrie in generall, or to any other charge lesser than Ellon; that Mr. Alexander Leask had told that possiblie ther might be some in the ministrie already who are not of more eminent qualifications then the said Mr. Georg, but that he was not cleer to recommend him or any other to enter upon the ministrie as things do now stand, except that they wer found sufficientlie qualified for the ministrie in any place quhatsoever, by reason that he who is once entered upon the ministrie in a meaner charge may be presented by a patron to a greater, and can hardly be rejected. Mr. George Anderson told that he thought the said Mr. Georg Mill ordinarlie qualified for entering into the ministrie in generall, but protested that this should no way militat against him in reference to his judgment which he had formerlie delivered anent the said Mr. Georg Mill his qualifications in order to the ministrie at Ellon. The bishop and bretheren, considering Mr. Alexander Leasks declaration relaiting unto the said Mr. Georg Mill his failing anent the Quakers controversies, thought fitt for ther further satisfaction to call in the said Mr. Georg and propose unto him some questions anent the Quakers principles, to the quich the said Mr. Georg, when interrogat, gave the ordinarie usuall ansers. And becaus the said Mr. Alexander Leask had excepted against the said Mr. Georg his exercise and addition, therfor the said Mr. Georg told that upon that same day on which he had the exercise before the presbitrie, he did instantlie after his delivering of it in publick consigne his papers quhairin it was written in Mr. John Strachan their moderators hand, that when the bishop or others thought fit to call for it it might be in readdiness, but that at present he could not command it, the moderator being at Edinburghe. It was lykewayes thought fit that, seeing Mr. Georg Andersone was dissatisfied with his popular sermon, therfor the said Mr. Georg Mill should read the sermon as it is in his papers, and he having declaired that he had delivered the same before the presbitrie as it is in his papers without any material alteration, he did read the same in audience of the bishop and bretheren present. And afterward the said Mr. Georg Mill being removed, and the bretheren of Ellon declaring that, after reading of the said sermon, they could observe no materiall alteration therin from quhat he had delivered before them in publick, the bishop desyred of Mr. Georg Andersone quhat was now his judgment anent that sermon, and he told that he persisted in his former thoughts theranent. The bishop haveing also desyred to know the thoughts of the rest of the bretheren present, they all told that they were satisfied with the said sermon. The meeting is continued untill the afternoon.

The bishop and bretheren, being mett, it was thought fit that, becaus some others of the Presbitrie of Ellon wer dissatisfied with his ansers at his questionarie tryall, therfor the said Mr. George Mill should be called in, and enquiryed anent some questions in divinitie, quich ordinarlie all ministers, and such as ar looking that way, are obliged to know; and the said Mr. George having accordinglie undergone a considerable tryall, both in positive and polemick divinitie, and in church historie, and such of the Presbitrie of Ellon as wer present (Mr. Alexander Leask being absent, item his session; and Mr. George Andersone and Mr. William Fraser being necessarlie withdrawn,) being enquiryed their judgment anent the said tryall, Mr. George Buchan professed that he was more confirmed in his former thoughts anent the said Mr. George. Mr. John Cockburn declaired that he was satisfied with his ansering now, quich made him apprehend that his failure in his questionarie tryall before the presbitrie did proceed from some discomposure, especiallie he having travelled on foot the most part of the night before. Thereafter, the rest of the bretheren of this meeting being enquyred, declared that they wer satisfied with his ansers.

The bishop and bretheren considering the whole matter, and finding that the bretheren of Ellon had formerlie given such an ample testimonie to the said Mr. Georg, and that none of them had excepted against his tryall in the languages and catachetick divinitie, nor against his exegesis and dispute therupon, and that none had excepted against his exercise and addition but Mr. Alexander Leask, and that the said discourses had been consigned in scriptis in the hands of the moderator immediatlie after delivering theroff in publick to be presented to the bishop and examined if need wer, and that none had excepted against the popular sermon but Mr. Georg Anderson, and that the same had been read this day in hearing of the bishop and bretheren present, and that Mr. John Cockburn had declaired himself more fullie satisfied anent his questionarie tryall at this tyme; therefore, the bishop haveing the unanimous advyce and consent of the bretheren now mett, declaired that he saw no ground to stop the serving of an edict after the next dyet of the presbitries meeting, in order to the said Mr. George Mill his entrie to the ministrie at Ellon, iff ther be no subscribed lybell given in against him betuixt and that tyme; but uithall, if the patron and heritors of that parioch could fall upon any accommodation which should not be prejudiciall to the interest of the church, that he would verie gladlie accept of the same.

After reading of the foresaid account, it was represented that, since the foresaid meeting, there had been a subscribed lybell given in to the Presbitrie of Ellon by some of the heritors and pariochiners of Ellon against Mr. Georg Mill, and that the said Mr. Georg had lykewayes given in his ansers to the said lybell, and that the whole matter was referred to the bishop and synod; quhairupon the said lybell being read before the bishop and bretheren of the conference, togither uith Mr. Georg Mills ansers therunto, it was resolved that the whole matter should be continued untill the second Wednesday of June nixt, att which dyett the bretheren of the conference are appoynted to keep a meeting uith the bishop at Old Aberdeine for examining that affair concerneing Mr. Georg Mill, and any other business referred till then; and it is appoynted that the subscribers of the said lybell be cited to compeer and adduce uitnesses for proving the same at that meeting, with certification if they compeer not that they uill be held to have deserted their lybell simpliciter, and precepts are to be issued forth by the bishop for citeing both pairties and witnesses as said is ; and the approbation of the presbitrie book of Ellone is continued till the nixt synod, and the lybell given in against Mr. Georg Mill, with his ansers, ar appoynted to be kept by the clerk in retentis.

Att the Bishops Lodging at Old Aberdeen. June 13, 1677.

The quhilk day, being conveened conforme to an act of the last synod, the bretheren of the privie conference then named, together also with the bretheren of the Presbitrie of Ellon, after prayer the bishop did represent that, in order to the examination of the lybell given in by the heritors of the parish of Ellon against Mr. Georg Mill, he had issued forth precepts for summoning the pairties subscriberis of the said lybell, viz.: Colonell Foulerton of Dudweck, Robert Udny of Achterellon, John Gordon, younger of Fechill, and James Gordon, chamberlain to the Lady Dowager of Erroll, and for citeing the said Mr. George Mill and the tutor of Wattertoune ; as also that he had directed furth precepts to the said lybellers, for citeing such witnesses as they alladedg for proving the severall articles of ther lybell : and the executions of the foresaid precepts being given in under the hands of William Gauld and Gilbert Philip, officers in that pairt, the foresaid pairties were severally called, and of the lybellers foresaid compeered onlie Collonell Foulerton of Dudweck and Robert Udny of Achterellone. Compeered also, being called, Mr. Georg Mill. Thereafter, the bishop and bretheren present havinge found that the other tuo subscribers of the lybell against Mr. Georg Mill had neither compeered themselves nor sent any excuse of their absence, although they had been cited with certificatione that if they did not compeer they would be held to have deserted their said lybell simpliciter : therefor the foresaid tuo lybellers, viz., John Gordon, younger of Fechill, and James Gordon foresaid, wer judged to hav deserted their lybell simpliciter, conforme to the certifiat given in their summones : Whereupon the other tuo subscriberis of the said lybell did signifie to the bishop and brethren now mett, that as they were come in upon citation before this meeting, so they wer come especially with purposes of a friendly accomodation anent the planting the kirk of Ellone.

The quihlk day, the bishop and bretheren of the conference being mett, together with the bretheren of the Presbitrie of Ellone, conforme to the appoyntment made at their meeting in June last, after prayer, it being found that, at the meeting foresaid in June, it was ordained that such of the heritors of the parioch of Ellone as had subscribed the lybell against Mr. Georg Mill, and were present at the last meeting, should attend this day preciselie be tuo a clock in the afternoon, and they had been cited apud acta to this dyet with certification, as the act at that dyet doth bear, and were appointed to cite witnesses de novo for proof of their foresaid lybell, accordinglie the foresaid lybellers wer called, viz., Collonell Foulerton of Dudweck and Robert Udny of Achterellone, but neither of them did compeer, nor any in their name; and Georg Mill being lykewayes cited apud acta to this meeting, and called, did compeer. But the bishop and bretheren considering that although ther wes no report come from the heritors of Ellone this afternoon, yet ther might possiblie some account be sent from them against to-morrow, did therefor think fitt to continue the whole affair untill to-morrow at nyne a'clock in the forenoon; and Mr. Georg Mill is cited apud acta then to appear.

The bishop and bretheren being mett, after prayer, the affair depending against Mr. Georg Mill being brought into consideration, the bishop caused read the precepts issued forth before the meeting in June last, for summoning the subscribers of that lybell against Mr. Georg Mill, together with the executions theroff, as also the act past at the meeting anent the said lybellers. After reading of quhich, compeered John Gordon, younger of Fechill, and told that he was commissionat by the heritors and parochiners of Ellone, and desyred to make excuse for Collonell Foulertone his absence, he being at the present detained at home by his wyfes seiknes; and the said John Gordon did, in his own name, and, as he alleadged, in name of the heritors and pariochiners of Ellone, desyre that ther might be a new dyet appoynted unto them for proving their said lybell against Mr. George Mill, and that new precepts may be issued forth for summoning witnesses for that effect. Quhairunto the bishop did reply, that, as for tuo of the subscribers of the said lybell, viz., the said John Gordon of Fechill, and James Gordon, they had been cited to the meeting in June, with certification, if they did not compeer, that they would be judged to have deserted their said lybell simpliciter; and, therefor, wer decerned to have deserted their lybell simpliciter at the forsaid dyet, they neither having compeered then nor sent any excuse of their absence. And, as to the other tuo, viz., Dudweck and Achterellone, they wer cited apud acta at the last meeting in June, to compeer before this meeting, with certification forsaid; and appoynted to cite uitnesses de novo, for proof of their lybell; and they not compeering at this dyett, neither haveing cited uitnesses to appear, that did look in them lyke a deserting of the dyet. And, whereas the said John Gordon alleadged a commission from them, the bishop desyred that he might instruct his commission under ther hands; but he replied, that, as for Dudweck, he could have no commission from him, he being at South; and, as for Auchterellone, he alleadged that he had a verball commission from him, altho not a wreiten one. And therupon the said John Gordon did take instrument in the hands of Georg Kilgour, notar publick, and removed himself instante. The bishop and bretheren present, taking into ther consideration the whole affair relaiting to the lybell given in by the heritors of Ellone against Mr. Georg Mill, and finding that, altho the subscribers of the said lybell had been cited to compeer before the bishop and bretheren mett for examining the same, upon the 12th of June last, with certification, that, if they did not compeer, they should be held to have deserted their said lybell simpliciter, yet tuo of them, viz., John Gordon, younger of Fechill, and James Gordone, chamberlaine to the Lady Dowager of Erroll, had neither compeered nor sent any excuse of their absence; and, altho the other tuo subscribers of the said lybell, viz., Dudweck and Achterellone, did compeer before the said meeting in June, and intreated for a new dyet to be granted to them for proving the said lybell, and they had, there upon, been cited apud acta to compeer before this meeting upon the 24th of this instant, be tuo oclock in the afternoon preciselie and wer appoynted to cite uitnesses de novo against the said dyet, yet the said tuo lybellers, being called, did neither compear nor send any relevant excuse of their absence, neither had adduced uitnesses for proving their lybell, nor once requyred any precept for that effect from the bishop. And also, that this day John Gordon, younger of Fechill, had compeered, and told that he was com-missionated by Robert Udny of Achterellone, and others of the pariochiners there, to desyre in their name a new dyet for examining the said lybell, and new precepts for citeing uitnesses; yet, being desyred to instruct his commission, he could not do, but alleadged a verball commission onlie: therefor the bishop and bretheren, after mature deliberation upon the haill premisses, having put the mater to a voice, did judge that the said lybellers should be looked upon as having deserted their said lybell simpliciter. And, Mr. George Mill being called in, the bishop did accordingle intimat unto him the judgement of the meeting, and appoynted the clerk to give him an extract hereoff when requyred.

It is appoynted that the bretheren nominat at this synod for the privie conference, togither with Mr. John Menzies, professor, shall be in readdiness upon advertisement to keep meetings with the bishop betuixt and the next synod; and that Mr. Robert Burnet at Rain keep the said meetings, in case that Mr. Alexander Ross at Monymusk be necessarlie hindered.

17th April, 1678.

It is recommended to the severall moderators to be cairfull in calling to an account the bretheren within ther bounds, iff they do celebrat the sacrament of the Lords Supper within their respective congregations at least once each yeer; and that, conforme to an ordinance of the former synod, they requyre such ministers as hav not given the Communion as said is to make furthcoming what is condescended upon by law for provyding communion elements to be imployed for pious uses.

9th October, 1678.

It is recommended to the severall bretheren within this diocess to make search if ther be any within their respective charges who are about the sending of their children out of the countrey to popish colledges, and to give notice theroff tymouslie to the bishop.

10th October, 1678.

This day, the bishop did represent to the brethren of the synod that the professor of divinities place in Old Aberdeine being now vacant thorow the decease of Mr. Henrie Scougall, lait professor ther, it was expedient that some course should be fallen upon at this tyme for filling of the said vacancie uith an able and qualified persone; which the bretheren of the synod (after ther expression of the sense they had of that loss which the Church doth sustain by the removal of the said Mr. Henrie) taking into ther serious consideration, did approve of the motion made by the bishop, and judged it fit that they should proceed to a present nomination and election; and finding that the old registers of the synod, which did containe the way and method of electing the professors of divinitie in former tymes, could not at present be had, it was overtured that the election at this tyme might be gone about after this method, viz., by the bishops nominating a man to the synod, and the brethren by ther voices declairing if they did accept or not of the man named by the bishop; wherupon the matter being put to a frie voice of the synod, it was thought fit that the foresaid method proposed should be followed pro hoc vice allenerlie, and uith this speciall proviso, that this way taken at present, and condescended unto by the bishop and synod, should in no wayes be a preparative in any tyme coming, or hinder the prosecution of any other method that shall afterward be fallen upon by the bishop and synod; and uithall, that ther might be some persones appoynted to think upon a method of electing the professor of divinitie in the Kings Colledge in tyme coming.

Whereupon the bishop did name and propose to the synod Mr. John Menzies, present professor of divinitie in the Marishall Colledge at Aberdeine, and the said Mr. John being removed, the bishope did desyre that the names of the bretheren of the synod might be called, and that they would deliver ther mynd in order to the said Mr. John, iff they did approve of the nomination, and accept him to be professor of divinitie in the Kings Colledge at Old Aberdeine: Which accordingly being done, and the matter put to a free voice of the synod, the bretheren did unanimously approve of the nomination, and did accept, elect, and choise the said Mr. John Menzies to be professor of divinitie in the Kings Colledge as said is, and to enjoy the whole fruits, profits, benefits, and emoluments belonging to the said place. And therupon, the said Mr. John being called in, the bishop did intimat unto him the mynd of the synod, as is above specified: And the said Mr. John, after a thankfull resentment of the bishop and synods respects towards him, did earnestlie intreat that ther might be a whyles continuation granted unto him for speaking uith the magistrats of Aberdeen, and those among he had hitherto borne charge, before he could be free to give his anser positivlie, whither he could accept of the foresaid charge of being professor in Old Aberdeine, which accordinglie was granted unto him; and he was appoynted to give his anser theranent positivly to the bishop once betuixt and the last day of November nixt in this present year, 1678.

This day, it was represented that there is a flagrant scandall and fama clamosa of an symoniacall paction supposed to have passed betuixt Mr. Alexander Leask, minister at Turreff, and Mr. John Lumsden, student in divinitie at Aberdeine, in order to the obtaining a presentation to the said Mr. John to the kirk of Marieculter. Whereupon Mr. Alexander Leask, being present and interrogat upon the premisses, told that he had done nothing in that affair under board, and that although there had been a condescendance betuixt him and the said Mr. John, yet it was but conditionall, iff so be the bishop should be satisfied theruith, and that now there is no standing compact betuixt them concerneing that church, it is thought fit by the bishop and synod, that by reason the said Mr. John is not present at the synod to anser, but is in town, therefore the matter be continued untill to-morrow at nyne oclock in the forenoon; and Mr. Alexander Leask is cited apud acta ther to appear; and in regard that Mr. John Lumsden had offered and undertaken to the bishop and Presbitrie of Aberdeine to cleer himself anent any such compact quhatsoever, the bishop should requyre him therunto; therfor it is appoynted that John Ross, synod officer, do summones the said Mr. John to compeer before the bishop and synod to-morrow at nyne oclock to anser in order to the said affair, uith certification.

October 11, 1678.

The bishop and synod considering that Mr. James Gordon at Banchorie, and Mr. Alexander Leask, had uttered some unbeseeing and passionat expressions yesternight, the one against the other, in face of the synod, therfor both the said bretheren wer rebuiked publickly for the same.

Anent the affair concerneing Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. John

Lumsden, Mr. Alexander Leask being present did alleadge that ther wer some persones in the synod who had, out of malice and rancor purposed to render Mr. John Lumsden incapable of entering into the ministrie, and himselff incapable of continueing therin, and did therupon instantly appeal from the bishop and synod to the Archbishop of St. Andrews his grace. The bishop desyred that the said Mr Alexander might instruct the persones whom he alleadged to be his enemies, and if they were found to be such they should be removed from sitting as judges in this affair, but the said Mr. Alexander replyed that he should do it in the process; whereupon the bishop did declare that the said appeal was made without any just gravamen. Mr. John Lumsden, student in divinitie, being cited to this meeting to anser in the said affair anent the kirk of Maryculter, did send in a paper to the bishop and synod, subscribed with his hand, which he called an appeal, wherin he did declayne the judging of that matter of a symoniacall compact made by him with Mr. Alexander Leask, parson of Turreff, for a presentation to the kirk of Mariculter, and that without ever once appearing before the bishop and synod, or having any just ground of gravamen, notwithstanding that he had formerly engaged to the bishop and Presbitrie of Aberdeine to compeer for that effect, whensoever and whersoever he should be called therunto; whereupon the bishop having taken this contempt to his serious consideration, did, with the advyce of the bretheren, ordaine that for silencing the said Mr. John from preaching, his licence should be called in, and by thir presents does recall it. The bishop and synod, finding that, for the more speedy and orderly dispatch of this affair, it wer needfull that one of ther number should be commissionat to go to the primat for representing of the whole matter to his grace, and receiving his mynd in order to the said appeal, if he did sustain the same or not; and therupon it was appoynted that Mr. John Cockburn, minister at Udny, should go south for the effect above specifreit whensoever the bishop shall think expedient; and for defraying his expenses, it was condescended unto by the bretheren of the synod, that the said Mr. John shall hav a merk Scots from each of the bretheren; and it is appoynted that all the bretheren of the synod shall be in readiness whensoever the bishop shall find needfull to call them, to meet upon a fourteen dayes advertisement, at Old Aberdeine, for considering the foresaid affair concerneing the kirk of Marieculter, uith certificatione of censure to those who shall be found absent.

The quihilk day, severall bretheren being mett uith the bishop, in order to the admission of Mr. John Menzies, professor of divinitie in New Aberdeine, to be professor in the Kings colledge, at Old Aberdeine, the bishop, after prayer, having caused read the act of the late synod anent the nomination and election of the said Mr. John, did represent that, conforme to the said act, the said Mr. John, at the tyme appointed, had given his anser, wherby he did embrace the said call of being professor at Old Aberdeine, and that now it onlie remained that he should be admitted to the foresaid charge: whereupon, the bishop having administrat unto him the oath de fidei administratione, he did admitt the said Mr. John Menzies unto the charge of being professor of divinitie in the Kings Colledge at Old Aberdeine, by delivering unto him the book of the holy scriptures, and giving him the right hand of fellowship; and did give him reall right and title to the haill mortified lands, houses, fruits, benefits, and emoluments belonging to the said place. Upon all which, the said Mr. John asked and took instruments in the hands of Mr. Thomas Crevey, clerk to the synod, and Gilbert Beedie, notar publick in Aberdeine.

Anent Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. John Lumsden ther transaction for the kirk of Marieculter, the bishop did represent that, conforme to the appoyntment of the former synod, he had dispatched Mr. John Cockburn, minister at Udney, to the primat, for making a representation of that whole affair, and receiv his mynd theranent. Whereupon the said Mr. John did give an account of his diligence in discharge of the commission given unto him, and that upon his representing the affair to the primat, hes grace had called a meeting of other fyve bishops then at Edinburgh for considering that matter, and Mr. Alexander Leask being ther present, both the said Mr. Alexander and he wer heard before the said meeting; and after that the primat and other bishops then convened had considered the whole affair hinc inde, it was remitted back to the bishop of Aberdeine, and that the primat had sent back nith him a letter of advyce to the bishop, in order to the closing of that matter.

Whereupon the bishop did produce the primats letter, and did read so much of it as concerned that affair, to uitt, that the primat, with some bishops then at Edinburgh, had convened Mr. Leask before them, and considered the whole affair anent the kirk of Marieculter, and had rebuked Mr. Leask verie severlie for his unwarrantable dealing in that matter, and that he seemed to be sensible of his overreaching therein, and had been insnared and transported upon the account of his brother's interest to do something which is not allowable in the Church; and that, considering the present stait of affairs and circumstances in which the Church doth stand, it was not fit to make any further noise about that matter, and therfor he had remitted the said Mr. Alexander Leask back to the bishop and synod of Aberdeine to be sharply rebuked before them, and oblidged to more circumspect walking in tyme to come. Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. John Lumsden being both cited to this meeting and called, did compeer, and both of them did submitt themselves to the bishop and synod, and did pass from ther appeall, and by reasone that Mr. John Cockburn did represent that Mr. Alexander Leask had uttered some expressions at the south land which did reflect upon the bishop; therefor, the said Mr. Alexander being interrogat theranent, denyed any such expressions, yet Mr. Cockburn did averr in his face that he uttered some unbeseeing expressions anent the bishop. Mr. Alexander Leask and Mr. John Lumsden being interrogat if the moderator of Aberdeine or any of the ministers had been privie to that transaction betuixt them anent the kirk of Marieculter, both of them declaired that none of the ministers of Aberdeine had ever any knowledge theroff or hand therein, and that neither of them ever spok so anent the ministers of Aberdeen.

The bishop having represented unto Mr. Leask, that seeing the primat in his letter did declair that the ground wherupon he had given advyce for such a myld censure to be inflicted upon him was upon the account of the sense which Mr. Leask seemed to have of his failing as said is, that, therefor, it wer fit that the bretheren of the synod should have his acknowledgement from his own mouth, and what sense he had of his overreaching; whereupon the said Mr. Alexander did declair that he having his serious reflections anent the plantation of the kirk of Marieculter, he was sorie for his being accessorie to the keeping of that place so long vacant, and that upon too much forwardness to promote his brother, Mr. John Leask's interest, had been ensnared and transported to do some thing which is not allowable in the Church, and which had given offence to the bishop; and out of an apprehension that by reason his brother had been at a great expence in prosecution of his presentation to the kirk of Marieculter, he supposed there might have been something allowed unto him in a charitable way from any that should enter into that place (he being put by it), that, therefore, he had taken unhandsome and indirect wayes for that effect, which had given occasion of offence; and whereas he being too forward in his own vindication at the south land had expressed some way which was interpreted to reflect upon the bishop or any other minister in the diocess, he declared he never designed any such reflections by his expressions, and was sorie that he had given offence to the bishop and synod, and did humbly beg pardon therefor, and referred himself wholly unto them.

The bishop and synod having again seriously considered the contents of the archbishop's letter and the advice given therein, did pass to a voice, and order the said Mr. Alexander should make his acknowledgement, and be rebuked (as the primate advyces) in a most humble manner, upon his knees or in any other posture; and the said Mr. Alexander being removed and the catalogue cited, it was carried by the pluralitie of the voices of the synod (some dissenting), that his acknowledgement should be made, and he rebuked publicly in face of the synod in a most humble manner upon his knees. Whereupon the said Mr. Alexander being called in, the mynd of the synod was intimat unto him; and he having accordingly humbled himself did make acknowledgement as is above writen, and was sharply rebuked by the bishop, and seriously exhorted to walk more circumspectly in tyme coming, with certification if he shall afterward miscarry or give scandall that this offence shall be remembered against him for the heavier censure; and Mr. John Lumsden is referred to the bishop and Presbitrie of Aberdeine to be rebuked before them.

The next meeting of the synod is appointed to be upon the second Tewsday of October next, 1679 years.

Indigent persones recommended by the bishop and synod to the charitable supplie of the severall congregations within this diocess, are, Alexander Urchart and Patrick Watson in Bamff.

16th October, 1679.

Anent the centesima of ministers stipends appoynted by act of synod for the supplie of ministers relicts and children, it being represented that ther are severall within this diocess who have not as yet subscribed the bond theranent, and that there are others who, although they have subscribed the bond, yet have not payed conforme to ther obligation, as also Mr. George Meldrum, collector, haveing intreated that some might be appoynted for taking in his accounts of quhat he hath already collected, it is therefor ordained by the bishop and synod, that such as have not as yet subscribed the said bond be requyred to do so, and that the names of such as are deficient in paying be givn up by the collector to the bishop and synod, and that such out of each presbitrie as shall be nominat for reviseing the foundation and writ belonging to the profession, and are to meet at the dyet above specifcit, do lykewayes take up the collectors accounts at the said meeting; and they are also impowered by the bishop and synod to think upon a method for stocking, secureing, and improving quhat shall be found to be already collected.

And because at the synod in October, 1678, there was proferr made by the bishop and synod unto these who should advance seven yeers of the said annuitie togither, that they should be exonered of paying the said annuitie yeerlie in all tyme coming, and seeing the moderators of presbitries do report that, upon enquire, they fund that the pluralitie of their bretheren do encline to follow that method, it is therefor appoynted that such as are uilling to embrace the said overture do advance the seven yeers annuitie of ther stipends once betuixt and the first Tewuesday of Februarie nixt, otherwayes they are not to have the benefitt of the fore-said proferr; and that if need be, the bond subscribed be them shall be cancelled, and another bond drawn up to be subscribed by those who are cleer onlie for a yeerlie paying of the said annuitie, quhich bond is to stand in rigor dureing the bishop and synods pleasure, both as to these who are presently in charge, and as to these who shall hereafter enter into the ministrie, and shall not choise to advance seven yeers annuitie togither, as said is.

It is recommended to presbitries to be diligent in visitation of kirks within their bounds; and if it shall happen that any scandall shall arise in a parioch in which the Church is more neerly concerned, that they do tymouslie give notice theroff to the bishop, who is to give particular order to the presbitrie for visiting such a congregation.

It being represented unto the bishop and synod, how much the Lords day is evrie where profained by drinking, travelling to mercats, seeing of servants, and making other bargains and contracts, it is therefor recommended to the severall bretheren within this diocie to testifie against these abuses by preaching publickly against them, and making intimation unto their people against whoever shall be found guiltie after this manner shall be lyable to severe censure.

4th February, 1680.

The bishop and brethren, considering that notwithstanding the Lord hath vouchafed unto this countrey the light of the glorious gospell, and loadened the inhabitants with plenty of temporall benefits, yet iniquitie doth exceedingly abound in this diocess and part of this Church and kingdome, and particularlie the sins of drunkenness, whoredome, and horrid cursing and swearing, which doe loudly cry to Heaven for judgements upon us, and call for humiliation and prayer to God from us, have thought fit to appoynt, and hereby do appoynt, Wednesday, this day fourteene days, being the eighteenth of this instant Februarie, to be observed as a day of solemn fasting and humiliation in all the churches of this diocess, that, by fasting and prayer and turning unto God, the flood of wickedness being stopped, the Lords favour may be towards us; and among other blessings, that it would please his divine Majestie to bless the land with seasonable weather in the seed tyme, and bless the seed to be sown with increass, and his people with grace to serve the Lord their God with their plenty. And it is recommended to the bretheren now present to send tymous advertisement hercoff to the rest of their brethren in their respective presbitries; and for this end the clerk was appoynted to draw up a coppie of this present act for each presbitrie, that it may be dispersed into the respective congregations.

Nota.—It is to be observed, that there is a bond of corroboration granted by the commissar of Aberdeine for such sowms of money as the Bishop of Aberdeine is resting to the profession.

14th October, 1680.

The bishop and synod, considering that the professors place in the Kings colledge at Old Aberdeine is now vacant thorrow the translation of Mr. John Menzies to the professor of divinitie in New Aberdeine, and, therefor, that it wer expedient that a qualified persone wer nominat and chosen unto the said charge, did therefor proceed to a present nomination; and, after reading of the act anent the election of Mr. John Menzies in October, 1678, it being found that although there had been some purposes for settling a constant method of electing the professors of divinitie in tyme comeing, yet there had been nothing as yet done in order thereunto, therefore the bishop and synod did condescend that the election shall be gone about at present after the method following, viz.: that each of the bretheren of the synod shall propose a list of three whom they judge most qualified for the said charge, and that, out of the three who should have the most votes in the synod, the bishop shall choose one, who shall be declaired professor ; but with this speciall proviso, that this method shall not infer a preparative, or obstruct any other way which shall hereafter be fallen upon by the bishop and synod.

Whereupon, the catalogue being cited, and the severall bretheren having proposed a list of three, it was found, after numbering of the votes, that Mr William Meldrum, minister in Edinburgh, Mr. James Garden, minister at Carnbee, in Fyfe, and Mr. Robert Bruce, minister at Old Deer, wer the three who had most of the votes of the synod ; and the said list being proposed to the bishop, he did choise and declair Mr. James Garden, minister at Carnbee, in Fyfe, to be professor of divinity in the Kings colledge at Old Aberdeine.

And it is appoynted that the said Mr. James be acquainted therewith with the verie first conveniencie. As also, that upon the said Mr. James his embracing the forsaid charge, the severall moderators of presbitries be in readdiness, with any other, whom the presbitries are hereby appoynted to name, to come in upon advertisement to this town, for tryall and admission of the said Mr. James ; and, for that end, in caise he accept of the said charge, that he publish theses de efficacia gratie, and sustain a dispute thereupon ; and the dyet for his tryall and admission to the said charge is referred to the bishop.

Att Old Aberdeine, 2d February, 1681.

The quhilk day, being conveyened with the bishop severall off the brethren commissionat by their respective presbitries, together with some of the moderators of presbitries, in order to the tryall and admission of Mr. James Garden to be professor of divinitie in Old Aberdeine, conforme do the act of his nomination in October last, it was found, after enquire, that the said Mr. James his theses de efficacia gratie had been tymouslie sent forth to the respective presbitries within this diocess, and that they had been dewly advertised of this dyett appoynted by the bishop for his tryall and admission. It is also reported, that all the presbitries have nominat certain of their number to keep this meeting, with their moderators, except the presbyterie of Turreff ; but that the stormieness of the weather hath hindered severalls of the bretheren from coming in. The act in October last anent the nomination of the said Mr. James to be professor being read, the brethren conveyened desyred that the foundation of the said profession might also be read, and the said Mr. James interrogat, anent the closing uth that charge upon the terms therein contained, so far as it is compatible uth the present government of the church : which accordinglie being done, the said Mr. James, in his aners, did modestly express his sense of the weight of that charge, and his insufficiencie for the same ; and uthall his sense of the bishop and synods respects towards him in their election of him therunto ; and declaired himself willing to close theruith, upon the terms contained in the said foundation ; and that he should endeavor, as the Lord shall enable him, to maintain and assert the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus, in opposition to the errors of poprie, arminianisme, and others quhatsomever, which either seriously or of lait have disturbed the church. And referred himself to Providence in the issue of these tryalls, quibich are usuall in such caises.

Wherupon, the bretheren conveened haveing repaired to the Kings colledge kirk, the ordinarie place appoynted for the disputs (the bishop being unable to go thither throw infirmitie and age), the said Mr. James, aiter delivering of his warrand, did sustain the dispute of his theses for-said (Mr. John Menzies, professor in the Marischall colledge, being preses) ; and, after closing of the whole action, the brethren did again return to the bishops lodging, viz. : Mr. Patrick Sibbald, moderator of the Presbitrie of Aberdeine, and Mr. John Menzies, professor, and Mr. George Meldrum, minister at Aberdein, Mr. Patrick Innes, minister at Bamff, as commissionat by the Presbitrie of Fordyce, Mr. Thomas Garden, moderator of the Presbitrie of Alfoord, and Mr. Robert Farquhar-sone, commissionat by the said presbitrie, Mr. Robert Bruce, commissionat by the Presbitrie of Deer ; and the said Mr. James Garden being removed, the foresaid bretheren did give report to the bishop of quhat had past at the disputes of the theses, and ther being some other brethren occasionallie present who had not been commissionat by their presbetries, viz., Mr. William Blair, minister at Fordyce, Mr. Robert Irvine, minister at Towie, and Mr. Adam Hay, minister at Montwhytter, the bishop did desyre to know, both of these brethren, and of the rest who were appoynted and commissionat anent the said Mr. James, who did all unanimously approve of his tryalls, and declaired that they judged him qualified for the said charge. And the said Mr. James being called in, the judgment of the brethren was accordinglie intimat unto him ; and the bishop haveing administrat the oath de fidei administratione unto him, did admitt him to the foresaid charge off being professor of divinitie in the Kings Colledge at Old Aberdeine, by delivering unto him the book of Holy Scriptures. and giving him the right hand of fellowship, as use is in such caises ; and did give him reall right and title to the hail houses, lands, rents, profits, and emoluments belonging to the said place ; upon all and evrie one of which the said Mr. James asked and took instruments in the hands of Mr. Thomas Crevey, clerk to the Synod of Aberdeine, and Georg Kilgour, notar publick in Old Aberdeine.
